PEACE PROSPECTS VANISH

Demand Is Made on Editor to Retract Charge of Delay in Track-Removal Plans.

CONTROLLER BLAMES HYLAN

New Line-Up of Estimate Board Expected—Governor Says He Will Not Interfere.

The feud between Controller Craig and Mayor Hylan, which broke out on the eve of the Mayor's departure for Palm Beach, when the Mayor threatened to have the Controller disqualified as a member of the Sinking Fund Commission, took on a new aspect yesterday, which not only brought William R. Hearst into the controversy, but threatened a disruption of the city's business. A wide-open split in the Tammany organization, according to politicians, also is in sight.

Controller Craig, who has been recovering from an attack of laryngitis at Lakewood, N. J., returned to his office in the Municipal Building yesterday, and his first act was to write to the editor and publisher of The New York American, demanding a retraction of an article The American printed on Sunday in which the Controller was blamed for the delay in having the New York Central Railroad tracks removed on the west side of the city. The Controller called the article libelous and hinted at a suit if a retraction was not made. Later the Controller issued a statement in which he said that the Mayor's "fatuous" course regarding the truck removal litigation was "calculated to delay or defeat my plan and to continue Death Avenue and the garbage dumps."

Craig in Belligerent Mood.

All prospect of peace between the Mayor and the Controller seemed shattered, for the Controller was in a particularly belligerent mood, and there were many indications that he intends to make a fight to the finish. Just how far the controversy will embroil the Tammany organization was a matter for much speculation. It was said that it will be only a matter of time before Charles F. Murphy will be forced to take a hand.

One report was that Murphy will first try the rôle of peacemaker, and some action of this kind is looked for within the next few days. It was pointed out, however, that with Hearst definitely linked up with the Mayor in the fight as a result of the Controller's action yesterday, it could be expected that the editor would attempt to block any effort toward peace.

With a split within the Tammany organization in sight, the principal speculation had to do with the possible future line-up in the Board of Estimate. It is expected that orders from Tammany Hall will force Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, to take sides with the Controller, and that Borough Presidents Miller of Manhattan, Bruckner of the Bronx and Riegelmann of Brooklyn will be found in the Controller's camp.

All attempts to have Governor Smith take sides failed when the Governor, at the Hotel Biltmore, said he was not concerned in the matter one way or the other. The Governor frankly stated in answer to a question that he knew nothing about the controversy, didn't want to know anything, and intended to remain as far away from the firing line as possible. The Governor was asked if he intended to take sides, either in the interest of harmony or anything else.

No Engagement With Craig.

That would be the height of ridiculousness," he replied, emphatically. "I hope I have too much sense for that. I haven't seen the Controller since the election. I don't expect to see him and I have no engagement to see him.

"What do their quarrels mean to me? I characterized it the other day as a Gallagher-Shean affair, and that's all I have got to say about it."

"Are you not concerned over the fate of your traction program?" the Governor was asked. "The matter has to come before the Board of Estimate, and how can the plans be carried out in a house divided against itself?"

"If the Legislature is right fundamentally, that is as far as I am concerned," the Governor replied. "I have stated, and I still believe, that a municipality should be given the fullest amount of home rule to settle its own problems. You cannot hold up the program simply because the whole world is not at peace. It never has been, if it comes to that."

The Governor said he expected the new transit bill to be ready for the Legislature within the next ten days. He said he couldn't tell just what the details of the bill will be, although he thought his recommendations would be carried out.

In his letter to The New York American the Controller wrote:

PRINCESS YOLANDA TO WED COUNT CALVI

MATCH PLEASES PEOPLE

She Met Count in London Last Year—Her Name Had Been Linked With Many Princes.

ROME, Feb. 5.—"Their Majesties the King and Queen of Italy have today, Feb. 5, graciously consented to the engagement of their first-born daughter Princess Yolanda to Count Calvi di Bergolo, Captain of cavalry and bombardier during the war, who was wounded in the defense of his country and was decorated for bravery." This announcement was made today by Premier Mussolini, in his capacity of ex-officio lawyer of the royal household, during a reception at the Quirinal Palace.

The announcement has filled Italy with joy. The attachment of the Italian people for the reigning house is traditional and the birth of the Princess Yolanda twenty-two years ago called forth unforgettable enthusiasm throughout the length and breadth of Italy. Since then Yolanda has been the darling of all Italian hearts, and bonfires are again blazing tonight as an expression of joy for her engagement.

There is no doubt that the match between the Princess Yolanda and Count Calvi is a love match. Rumor has lately been busy reporting Yolanda's engagement to this or that person high in the aristocracy. This was the natural result of the deep affection of the Italian people for their Princess, but now Yolanda's heart has spoken, cutting short all these idle reports.

Story of Match is Romantic.

The whole story of the engagement is most romantic. Princess Yolanda first met Count Calvi in London last year. She was there as a treat for her coming of age. He was there for the international military tournament, being a member of the Italian team. In the riding competitions Count Calvi rode with great distinction, repeatedly receiving the applause of the spectators, among whom there was also Princess Yolanda. This led to their first meeting, which soon ripened into a more intimate relationship, their common proficiency in riding and their love for horses proving a strong link between them.

On their return to Rome Princess Yolanda and Count Calvi continued to see much of each other, he being a constant visitor at the Quirinal Palace and often riding with the Princess to the hounds. Their relationship culminated in today's announcement of their engagement.

Count Calvi is the first born son of a very ancient and noble Piedmontese family with a long and enviable record of patriotism, having given many gallant officers who fought for Italy with bravery and distinction. He himself is no exception, having a war record of which he may well be proud. He entered the war as a cavalry officer, but finding that there was not much scope for cavalry in modern warfare he resigned and joined the bombardiers, fighting during the whole war in the first line trenches, where he was severely wounded. He was decorated for conspicuous gallantry.

Count Calvi was born in Pirias in 1887. He, therefore, is now 36 years old, while Princess Yolanda celebrated her twenty-first birthday last year.

No date has yet been fixed for the wedding, but it is believed that it will take place in the near future.

Name Was Linked With Many Princes.

Princess Yolanda was born in the Palace of the Quirinal at Rome, June 1, 1901, not quite a year after her grandfather, Umberto I., was assassinated at Monza. She and her sister, Princess Mafalda, are both older than their brother, the heir apparent, Umberto,

MUST NAME HARDING FOR RENOMINATION, DECLARES WATSON

Unanimous Selection in 1924 Certain if President Wants It, Says Indianan.

ONLY HE CAN RUN ON RECORD

LODGE DENIES NAMING AIDS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—If President Harding wants another term in the White House, he ought to be and will be renominated in 1924, Senator Watson of Indiana said in a Senate speech today. The Republican Party, he said, would stand on the record of the Harding Administration, because "it is not possible for the party to nominate somebody else than the President and then appeal for support on the record of the Administration of which the President is the head."

Senator Watson, who had only just returned from a visit to the White House, said he had no doubt that Mr. Harding would be a candidate to succeed himself in 1924. In his opinion, the next Republican Convention would consider no other candidate. He repudiated a story printed in Indianapolis last week which hinted that he might be an opponent of Mr. Harding for the nomination.

Mr. Watson's remarks were evoked by a speech from Senator Harrison of Mississippi, who commented on the announcement that Senators Lenroot and Wadsworth had been named as floor assistants to Senator Lodge, and referred to the Indianapolis report about Senator Watson as a possible candidate for the 1924 Republican nomination.

In reply to this Senator Watson said: "My jocose friend from Mississippi is always interesting and always amusing and never more so than on the present occasion. I do not know why he sought to bring me into this controversy, if there be controversy, because I am only an innocent bystander—one who always gets shot.

"When 1924 comes around the forces of the Republican Party, notwithstanding any seeming division which my friend may find in the ranks at this time, will be united and militant. They will stand upon a platform that will command the respect of the great body of the American people and they will nominate as their candidate, in my judgment, the present President of the United States without any opposition in the Republican Convention.

"My friend has been kind enough to mention my name in connection with that exalted position largely in order to make his speech more jocular."

"I was in hopes it was true," interrupted Senator Harrison.

"I have no doubt that the Senator would be glad to see any sort of opposition created to the President of the United States, but it will not be," replied Mr. Watson. "My own thought is that if Mr. Harding wants to be renominated for President he ought to be and will be, because the Republican Party must stand on the record we have made, the record of his Administration, and it is not possible to stand on the record of the Administration and yet repudiate the Administration.

"We stand upon the record made by Congress, by the President, by the legislative and by the administrative branches of the Government, and it is not possible for any party to nominate somebody else than the President of the United States and yet appeal to the people to support the party on the record made by the Administration of which the President is the head."

"I am very glad the Senator stopped at renomination," Senator Harrison remarked.

"That is as far as is necessary now," replied Senator Watson; "the other details will be looked after later."

The Indiana Senator went on to say that he had not sought to be assistant floor leader, adding: "If the Senator from Massachusetts wants to be leader in the next Congress I know of no reason why he should not be and I am for him. So far as the Republican Party is concerned, there is no division as to national leadership and no discord as to leadership in the Senate."

In the course of his speech, which drew out Senator Watson, Senator Harrison said:

"We have all known for some time that

Influenza Increase Reported, With 320 Cases, 7 Deaths

An increase in the number of cases of influenza and pneumonia was reported yesterday, compared with the figures of recent days, according to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, when 320 cases of influenza and 108 cases of pneumonia were registered. Seven deaths from influenza and forty deaths from pneumonia also were reported.

"While the figures do not give evidence of an epidemic," Dr. Copeland said, "yet it is disturbing to think that so many of our citizens are afflicted. A good many complaints come to me of the lack of coal. It is important that our houses be kept warm and comfortable. The railroad strikes are interfering with an abundance of fuel, so necessary at this time to maintain good health conditions."

INDIAN CHIEF TAKES HIS LIFE IN CROWD

Cashier Admits Exchanging Notes, but Didn't Think Big Cherokee Was Serious.

Chief White Horse of the Cherokee tribe of Oklahoma, who, when a war hero was known as Gabriel White Horse Hatting, shot and killed himself at 5 o'clock last evening at the soda fountain in Bloomingdale's store, Lexington Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, because his love for Mrs. Norma Pearl Moore Smith, the cashier, had been rejected.

White Horse fired three times as he sat on a stool a few feet from the young woman. Two shots went wild, narrowly missing a dozen women seated near him. The third penetrated his heart. As he fell to the floor fifty shoppers standing about counters near by rushed panic-stricken out into Lexington Avenue.

It was not until the arrival of policemen that Mrs. Smith, who is 27 years old and lives at 1,222 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, learned that the suicide was the Indian. She later told detectives that in the six weeks that White Horse had been employed as a night watchman in the store she had exchanged many love notes with him. She said that she carried on the affair "just for fun." She usually addressed him, she said, as "my Indian Prince," and signed the notes, "Your Indian Moon." She did not realize, she declared, that White Horse was seriously in love with her until two weeks ago, when he offered her a gold ring.

Planned to Die Near Cashier.

She said that when she told him that she did not believe he was serious and that the affair would have to come to an end because she was married, he became very depressed. When his body was searched at the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, all the letters which Mrs. Smith had written to him were found in his pockets. They also found a typewritten note, under which White Horse had added several rambling sentences in ink, which showed that he contemplated killing himself in the presence of Mrs. Smith last evening. The typewritten note read, in part, as follows:

"I am Chief White Horse of the Cherokee Indian tribe of Oklahoma. I am an overseas veteran, and in case anything happens to me ask the United States Government to take charge of my body. Bury me with Buffalo Bill. I was a member of his gang.

"The girls in the store are kidding me. How wild can I get? I am as wild as any fighting wildcat."

Mrs. Smith said that she did not notice White Horse when he entered the store shortly before 5 o'clock and took a seat at the soda counter. Several women witnesses to the suicide said that the Indian had a wild look in his eyes as he sat down and ordered a soda; that he watched Mrs. Smith intently as she made change for the stream of customers, and eventually drew a pistol from his hip pocket, twirled it above his head and shouted: "I love her: I love her!"

First Bullet Hits Candy Counter.

Those nearest White Horse dropped their drinks and started for the exit, but before they had gone five feet White Horse pointed the pistol in the direction of his chest and fired. The first bullet missed its mark and struck the candy counter across the aisle. White Horse, who appeared to have been drinking, pulled the trigger again, but this bullet also went wild and lodged in the ceiling. He steadied his arm on the counter as he fired the third shot, which went through his heart. Despite the mortal wound, the Indian, who was huge of stature, arose from his seat, and walked a few feet before he fell dead in front of the cashier's booth.

The shots caused much excitement among 300 or 400 women shoppers at various counters on the ground floor. Many of them started in the direction of the shots, but they were bowled aside by the women who were fleeing to the Lexington Avenue exit. Several policemen who were regulating traffic on the corner outside heard the shots, ran into the store, threw the doors open and calmed those who had not succeeded in getting to the street.

One of them called an ambulance from the Reception Hospital, and Dr. Goodman who came with it said White Horse was dead.

When she recognized White Horse Mrs. Smith immediately told of the love notes. She said that a few days after he struck up an acquaintance with her he pushed a note written in lead pencil through the window of her booth in which he expressed deep regard for her.

She said that White Horse had so pleasing a manner that she complied with his request for an answer, which she left for him at the soda counter that

2 POLICEMEN HELD, BY ENRIGHT'S ORDER, FOR ROBBERY OF BOY

MEN IDENTIFIED BY YOUTH

ASSERTS ONE STRUCK HIM

Arrests Made After an Investigation Directed by the Commissioner —Boy's First Tour of City.

Two policemen are under arrest following an investigation directed by Police Commissioner Enright, on charges of attacking and robbing a 16-year-old Glasgow sailor. The arrests were not disclosed until yesterday after thirty-six hours of secret investigation by the Commissioner. The offenses were alleged to have been committed on Sunday morning while the men were on duty in uniform.

The charge against the policemen, as it is booked in the West Thirtieth Street Station, is "holdup under threat of bodily harm." The alleged victim is an employe of the wireless room of the liner Italia, who was on his first tour of New York.

The policemen are Francis A. Carver, 23 years old, of 1,170 Third Avenue, the Bronx, and Stephen A. Lawless, 29, of 2,306 Morris Avenue, the Bronx. They were held in $2,500 bail by Magistrate Renaud in Jefferson Market Court yesterday for examination Feb. 27, when George Boyd, the youthful accuser, will have returned to this country. Boyd sails today for Glasgow. The men were arrested following an investigation of Boyd's charges by Inspector Underhill at the direction of Commissioner Enright.

Boyd's story, as told last night by a high city official, ran like this:

He left his ship at the Cunard piers on Sunday morning about 11 o'clock and strolled down West Street [illegible] Street. He had received his pay, $5, for the trip, but had spent $1 and was on the lookout for a suitable souvenir for his mother in Glasgow, some article on which he might squander the remainder of his pay. He walked over to Eighth Avenue.

Tells of Meeting Policemen.

At Eighth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, according to the story he told the police, he saw two policemen who stopped him. The policemen soon found that he was a stranger.

"Which way did you come to get onto Eighth Avenue?" asked one policeman. The youth replied that he came through West Sixteenth Street.

"You are just the fellow we are looking for—there's been a robbery in that street and we think you are implicated in it," said the spokesman for the two, according to the boy, adding: "It will cost you just $5 to keep out of jail."

"But I had nothing to do with any robbery," Boyd said he replied; "I'll go with you to the police station."

Apparently angered at this, he related, one of the policemen punched him, while the other shouted: "Oh, let him go!"

The boy ran west in Twenty-first Street, but as he got half way down the block he stopped to wipe his bleeding nose with his handkerchief. A letter of recommendation fluttered to the ground as the handkerchief came out. Boyd picked this up and replaced it in his pocket, hastening on.

Arriving at Ninth Avenue he walked south. Looking east around the corner of Sixteenth Street he saw the same two policemen hurrying toward him. They called to him to stop.

"What did you write on that paper you dropped?" one of them demanded.

Says They Took His Money.

"Well, we've got to search you and find out," and one grasped the boy by the shoulders while the other went through his pockets, coming at last upon a battered purse containing the treasured $4.

"Now, like a nice little boy, put the money in this hat," commanded one of the policemen, extending his helmet. Boyd obeyed. Then the policemen told the lad he'd "better run along."

Returning to the Italia in tears the boy told his story, which finally reached

"NOTHING IS BROKEN OFF"

Latter's Fear of Invasion of Thrace Said to Have Changed Their Conference Policy.

PARIS, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—M. Bompard, head of the French delegation at Lausanne, before he departed for Paris, had a long talk with Ismet Pasha, details of which he telegraphed to Premier Poincaré, who received his message late this afternoon. Ismet was more completely informed of the intentions of the Allies in the event that a settlement was not reached. He did not persist in his uncompromising attitude of last night and accepted the text of the capitulations previously submitted to him, thus removing the only obstacle to the signing of the treaty.

The reservations of the Turks on other points, such as Mosul, have already been accepted by the Allies.

Premier Poincaré hastened to transmit this favorable news to London, and it should be in the hands of the British Government [illegible] although perhaps not [illegible] meeting which [illegible] or Lord Curzon, the Foreign Secretary, from Lausanne.

Ismet Pasha told M. Bompard that if he should make a hurried trip to Angora it was fully understood that the Mudania armistice would continue in force at least during his absence.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—On his return from Lausanne this evening M. Bompard, the chief French delegate, told an interviewer:

"Nothing is broken off. The situation was never as grave as the press implied this morning. There is no rupture—merely a suspension of the conference. Consequently, M. Massigi [Secretary General of the conference] remains in Lausanne until further orders. The Secretariat of the conference continues to function normally."

Although the French Government will take no decision in the Near Eastern crisis until after the Cabinet has heard M. Bompard, head of the French delegation at Lausanne, give his report tomorrow, in official quarters the idea persisted today that negotiations with the Turks would be resumed.

This opinion seems based on the belief that the views of the Turks and the Allies are not far enough apart to justify a rupture and the almost certain war which would follow one. It is also believed in some circles here that if England refuses to join in reopening negotiations, France will begin to investigate the feasibility of a separate treaty with the Turks. On the other hand, one hears the opinion expressed that in the circumstances the interests of France will be better protected if she and England stick together.

Turks Respected British Firmness.

It is an interesting phase of the situation that after France had put the soft pedal on talk of an ultimatum and had shown the Turks a friendly spirit of conciliation as compared with the British firmness, the Turks ended by proving adamant on issues in which France was most interested and pliable on issues principally affecting England. But no one familiar with the situation is surprised at this. The Turks simply showed their respect for the British

French Occupy Another Town; Advance to Goddelau, Hesse

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A dispatch to The Times from Essen announces the occupation by the French of Goddelau, in Hesse.

The dispatch says the deepest point of the new advance beyond the frontier is twenty-five miles and that it seems extremely probable the big military movement which a week ago was expected to follow the presentation of an ultimatum to Berlin will now be made without that formality. The Germans expect the occupation of Mannheim at any moment.

PARIS, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—The French occupation beyond the Kehl bridgehead, opposite Strasbourg, probably will be maintained even if the Germans resume their co-operation in expediting international train service between Paris and Prague, it was stated semi-officially tonight in Government circles.

Offenburg and Appenweier, the easternmost points in the new occupied zone, it was said, were entered as a penalty not only for the Germans' obstruction of train service but for other failures to comply with French orders.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—According to a private message from the Ruhr district, the French authorities have decided not only to prevent the shipment of coal to unoccupied Germany but also all artificial products of coal, especially paraffin, benzol, lubricating oil and tar products. In manufacturing circles it is feared that this stroke is aimed at the German color industry and that the color factories in the Wupper Valley and Elberfeld will be seized by the French. For this reason, it is believed, the financial occupation was extended to the Wupper Valley.

This would certainly mean a severe blow to German industry, as many factories throughout Germany depend on regular supplies from Elberfeld, which are expected to cease, the employes and chemists in these factories being determined to strike if the French interfere.

Advance on Mannheim Rumored.

There are rumors in Berlin that the French troops have not stopped at Offenburg, but have already occupied the large manufacturing town of Mannheim. This rumor, however, may be without foundation and merely due to the fact that for several hours today it was impossible to get any telephone connection with Mannheim.

In Berlin the French occupation of Baden territory has caused great indignation and roused the populace to all kinds of spontaneous demonstrations against the French, stiffening the Government's determination of uncompromising resistance.

Reports from Frankfort, that the French appeared with a force of 500 officers, 1,700 men and 1,000 horses about 9 o'clock in the morning at Offenburg and Appenweier and placed tanks and machine guns in positions commanding the Appwach railway station. Meanwhile the commander of the French troops went to the City Hall of Offenburg and declared the city and the railway under the control of the Inter-allied Rhineland Commission.

According to the Tageblatt's special report, the troops behaved as if there was a state of war and requisitioned everything they liked. The correspondents of other papers give details of the alleged bad behavior of these troops.

Burgomaster Refuses to Obey.

Their commander had an interview with the Burgomaster of Offenburg, whom he informed that the occupation was not intended as a punishment for the population, but merely as a sanction on account of certain machinations of the German authorities which represented a violation of the Treaty of Versailles. When the Burgomaster declared that he and his subordinates, as well as all the State and railway officials, could not obey any French orders, but only those of the German Government, the French troops seized the telephone service and cut off Offenburg and Appenweier from all communication with the rest of Germany.

Later the French stopped all local railway traffic, permitting only international trains from Holland to Switzerland to pass through. The French occupation, it is said here, will cause great damage to the industry and trade of Baden.

Both sides are waging war on the correspondents based on Essen. After the four-day telegraph and telephone strike of protest had been called off in the interest of business and humanity the French started to show what they could PARIS, Feb. 5.—German miners in the Sarre Basin coal mines, operated by France under the Treaty of Versailles, went on strike this morning. The reason given for strike relates to wages.

For several weeks negotiations had been under way between the leaders of the men's unions and the League of Nations authorities in the Sarre territory. An agreement seems to have been reached on Saturday, but yesterday the result of a referendum by the miners was rejection of the terms of settlement. The strike this morning followed.

It is alleged that German agitators have been at work among the Sarre miners.

PARIS, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—The Government was informed today that the Sarre miners, who struck this morning, refused to accept a compromise on their demands that their wages be doubled, and now want the equivalent in buying power of their pre-war wages.

The original demands were presented to M. Le Trocquer, Minister of Public Works, last Wednesday by M. Rault, President of the Sarre Valley Governing Commission. The mines in the valley were taken over by the French Government under the Treaty of Versailles in compensation for the destruction of the coal mines in the north of France during the war.

To Reorganize Ruhr Traffic.

They plan to devise, in collaboration with Generals Degoutte and Payot, some method of handling the rail and water traffic both in the Ruhr and Rhineland to insure adequate provisioning of the army and move reparation coal, either with or without the aid of the German railroad workers.

This program of transportation, it is planned, will be enlarged gradually as the allies become better able to handle the situation.

M. Le Trocquer also will discuss with General Degoutte, as Allied Commander-in-Chief in the occupational zone, and M. Coste, head of the French Economic Mission, various future penalties to be imposed if Germany continues to resist.

Essen Police Threaten to Strike.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ESSEN, Feb. 5.—For a short time this morning Essen was faced by a most dangerous strike, that of the splendid Green Security police who so far have successfully stood between the Ruhr and riot. Their courage, resourcefulness, initiative, efficiency and common sense in discharging the difficult and thankless task of maintaining law and order under the occupation have stamped them as the outstanding heroes of the Ruhr struggle.

At 10 o'clock the Chief of the Security Police, Dr. Melcher, was arrested by the French who gave him just time enough to write a line to his wife that he was being expelled and would be deposited outside the occupied area at Olfe, and then was spirited away in a French military motorcar.

The reason for his arrest and expulsion was that he steadfastly refused to withdraw an order to the police force not to salute French officers or the French flag, which he had issued under instructions from Prussian Minister of the Interior Severing.

At noon Essen's entire police force assembled in the courtyard of the barracks. Their temper was additionally heated by a report that several their comrades, who had obeyed orders and refused to salute three French officers, had been beaten up by them, then arrested and since had not been heard of. The meeting deliberated on the advisability of going out on strike, but the call to duty proved stronger, at least temporarily.

The force unanimously adopted a sharp protest and sent it to French General Fournier, demanding immediate reinstatement of their Chief.

A committee also went to Düsseldorf this afternoon to hand the protest to General Degoutte. One paragraph read:

"The police force waives giving expression to its protest by engaging in a strike, but only because it has unanimity at heart the maintenance of public safety, quiet, order, and tranquillity of the sorely tried population. It must be assured that our protest will be taken thus earnestly on that account. Neither arbitrary ruthlessness nor threats will make us break our

Soft Coal Used in Furnace Causes Explosion; Janitor Is Knocked Unconscious and May Die

The first serious accident reported as due to the use of soft coal during the anthracite shortage occurred last night when the furnace exploded in an apartment house at 912 Tiffany Avenue, the Bronx. Roman Charkowski, the janitor, who had been attending to the furnace, was blown against the cellar wall and knocked unconscious. He was carried out by two policemen, who used handkerchiefs as masks. A pulmotor failed to revive him after thirty-five minutes' work and he was taken to Lincoln Hospital apparently dying.

The police report attributes the explosion to "spontaneous combustion, or a back draft." Alexander J. Fraser, Deputy Fuel Administrator for the Bronx, said that the accident probably was due to the failure of the janitor to follow instructions concerning the use of substitute fuels.

"Householders and janitors should be very careful in the use of soft coal," said Mr. Fraser. "It is highly volatile, some of it containing five times as much gas as anthracite. Some Pennsylvania bituminous, for example, contains from 33 to 35 per cent. gas. The draft must be kept open when using soft coal. Be sure to have the draft open when you feed soft coal into a very hot fire. When you shut off the draft, gas forms and makes an explosion possible.

"This does not mean that the use of soft coal is unsafe. There is an emergency, and soft coal must be used for some time to come. It is perfectly safe, and no trouble will come of it if it is properly used."

Mrs. Charkowski, wife of the injured janitor, said that the coal used in the furnace was Welsh bituminous. She and the policemen who rescued the janitor said the furnace door was open when he was discovered.

Hugo Stinnes in Essen on a Flying Visit; 'Can't Talk Here,' He Says When Interviewed

By CYRIL BROWN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ESSEN, Feb. 5.—Hugo Stinnes arrived in Essen this afternoon, accompanied by two close-cropped sons and a Director of his great industrial enterprises, and went to the Kaiserhof for luncheon.

The French engineers, officers and the international correspondents betrayed the liveliest interest when word spread that he was in the city. I had a few minutes' conversation with Herr Stinnes. In striking contrast to his forbidding features his voice was gentle, softly modulated, and his words were courteous. He betrayed no sign of pessimism, and one gathered the impression that everything was still all right with him.

Asked his view of the situation, he replied: "Can't say anything here." Questioned then as to the general feeling among his fellow-industrials with whom he had been in contact here, he answered affably: "Really, I cannot say a word about anything."

Stinnes talked business with his companions throughout an hour and a half devoted to luncheon, at the same time consuming the regular menu—filet of sole, boiled beef with horseradish sauce, German fried potatoes, sour pickles and cake à la St. Honoré.

His principal business here was to attend the annual stockholders' meeting of his Rhenish-Westphalian Electrical Works, of which he is Chairman of the Board of Directors, and which forms part of his Rhine-Elbe-Siemens-Schuckert electrical trust. Immediately after lunch Stinnes and his sons motored to Hamburg.

From a source of high reliability I learn that there is absolutely no talk of capitulation; that the resistance front of the Ruhr industrials is still intact, and Stinnes personally still in accord with his fellow-Ruhr industrials, including Krupp and Fritz Thyssen. All the factors involved, for that matter, are in agreement that the present policy of resistance must be pursued. I was able to confirm this from diametrically opposite labor union sources.

In a separate protest the police denounced the release of said "saltarcaps" for their comrade who had been beaten and arrested.

Cuno's Visit Still Undecided.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Resistance by German functionaries and railroad men, which had appeared to be faltering during the last few days, has been greatly stiffened by the visit to Essen of Chancellor Cuno.

The situation tonight is hopelessly deadlocked, and as far from solution as at any time since the French occupation. Some of the railroad men who had resumed work left their jobs again today and railroad service tonight was so badly crippled as to be practically nonexistent.

The cost of living is soaring. Today it was 200 per cent. higher than a month ago.

The mines continue to produce only small quantities of coal. That which is got is needed by the Ruhr industries is being dumped in the fields surrounding the mines.

Milk is scarce and the supply of fats is disappearing. It is announced in German sources that there is a four weeks' supply of flour on hand and a ten days' supply of potatoes.

The railroad strike is complete at Coblenz and Mayence. There were manifestations at Dorsten today in protest against the expulsion of the Burgomaster. The protestants were dispersed by the Schutzpolitzei, who handled the mob roughly. Several persons were wounded.

By individual interviews, the distribution of money, by promises and warnings, the German Government agents are declared in authoritative quarters here to be doing their utmost to encourage the resistance which had begun to weaken among the local functionaries and State employes.

The cordon of the valley to prevent coal shipments to unoccupied Germany remains unbroken. Some attempts have been made through the use of the private inter-mine tracks and railway cars to send coal through the French barrier, but these were frustrated.

Herr Sarter, Director of the Westhelle plate mines and a commercial Director for the Stinnes interests, is among the latest functionaries expelled from the Ruhr.

COLOGNE, Feb. 5.—Owing to the action of the German Minister of Railways the French have reoccupied all the railways in the Franco-Belgian sectors of the Cologne railway area. The action referred to presumably was that taken by Minister of Transportation Groener in Berlin last Friday in removing his orders to the German railway authorities in the Ruhr to refuse co-operation with the French and Belgians.]

To Sue French for Girl's Death.

BERLIN, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—The 100,000 marks offered by the French commander at Dusseldorf to the parents of the little German girl accidentally killed by a bullet from the rifle of a French Corporal yesterday has been refused by Dr. Gruetzner, Provincial President.

Advices received here say that, speaking in the name of the German Government, Dr. Gruetzner informed the French authorities that the offer was regarded as an "unheard of affront." [The sum mentioned at the present rate of exchange, is the equivalent of $2.10.]

Dr. Gruetzner has advised the parents of the girl to proceed against the French authorities in the German courts.

The shooting occurred at the railway station in Duisburg while a group of little girls were watching the detail of soldiers stationed there. It is understood the French Corporal whose gun was discharged will be court-martialed.

SOCIALISTS WANT RUHR PLACED BEFORE LEAGUE

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The Congress of the Socialist Party at Lille has issued an appeal to the League of Nations to solve the Ruhr conflict between France and Germany. The question was subjected to lengthy discussion between the French, Italian, Belgian and English delegates. The German delegates took no part, saying they would rather not participate, but adding, "Of course, if the French and Belgian comrades take the initiative with any chance to succeed we can assure them that the German Social Democracy will give warmest wishes for success." A resolution was finally adopted of which the following are salient points:

1. A definite decision on the limits of Germany's capacity to pay the German debt, reducing it to what is strictly necessary for reparations for damages inflicted on civilians and for restoration of the devastated regions.

2. Annulment of interallied debts.

3. Realisation by the League of Nations on Germany's behalf of international credit operations, enabling her to make immediate payments which are indispensable for the devastated regions. These operations also to enable the rehabilitation of German finances, stabilization of the currencies and re-establishment of normal relations between nations. So soon as the above agreements are concluded evacuation is to be carried out of all districts occupied under the Treaty of Versailles in view of Germany being forced to fulfill her engagements. A copy of this resolution will be forwarded to Washington.

"It is necessary to say that the Lille Socialist Congress doesn't carry much weight, because it is composed of men whose views and programs place them so far to the left that they are described as the right wing of the Bolshevisti.

Deputy Leon Blum, representing France; Vandervelde for Belgium, an English labor member, Walhead Roberts; the Italian Matteoti and the German Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, are the most prominent among the delegates.

The French Socialist following, always very small, has dwindled even further of late, and what they say and vote will certainly not have the slightest influence on M. Poincaré, who, as shown last Friday, has an overwhelming majority in the French Chamber with regard to his Ruhr policy.

JUSSERAND SEES NO PEACE.

But When Germans Admit Guilt France Will Melt, He Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Jules J. Jusserand, French Ambassador, declared in a public address here today before a body of women that France was "ready to talk matters over" if Germany came forward in the proper spirit.

"France," he said, quoting from Premier Poincaré's speech of yesterday, "does not seek the economic ruin of Germany, though Germany sought the economic ruin of France." That once understood by Germany, the Ambassador said, there would be peace, which France would welcome.

"If our former enemy would come now and simply say: 'We were wrong; we are sorry, France would melt," said the Ambassador.

Reviewing the reasons for the French occupation of the Ruhr the Ambassador declared the methods employed "gentle" and in marked contrast with the methods employed by Germany in France.

"Until the Germans admit their guilt and express repentance for it," said he, "there can be no truce and no real peace, much as France longs for it."

SAYS RUHR MOVE FORESTALLS WAR

"NO HURRY ABOUT LEAVING"

France Has Not Taken a Round-Trip Ticket, He Declares, and Must Secure Herself.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—General Castelnau, World War hero, Chairman of the Army Commission in the Chamber of Deputies and one of the leaders controlling the Nationalist faction in the French Parliament, declares in an article in the Echo de Paris today that the occupation of the Ruhr has saved France from a new war with Germany, which had been "planned for four or five years from now."

The General draws the conclusion that the French must be in no hurry about getting out of the Ruhr, regardless of what reparation promises Germany may make. He presents the arguments of Frenchmen who believe the occupation should be for a long time, and he says that France didn't take a round-trip ticket when she went into the Ruhr.

"It is important to unmask before the public opinion of the world the dark design of Germany to elude the Treaty of Versailles until the day when its total destruction could be obtained, if need be by force of arms," he says, adding:

"For several months our Commissions of Control have been meeting in their delicate duties a constantly increasing series of difficulties. The promises and even engagements of honor most recently given by the Germans were outrageously violated. The constitution of the so-called security police force [Shutzpolizei], was assiduously pursued. The plan of establishing in neutral countries factories for manufacturing tools was pushed. Construction of railroads for military use was being rushed. In a word, conquered Germany was preparing feverishly for the era of violences and injustices she intended to unchain upon the world when the time came to obtain changes in her political, economic and social position.

"The sources of information permitting us to interpret these facts are too documentary to permit of doubt. If Germany had obtained a moratorium for four years, as proposed; if she had obtained the substitution of a vague committee of guarantees for the commissions of control; if she could have taken the problem of payment of reparations out of the hands of the Reparation Commission, Germany would have won great things. At the end of the moratorium—that is, eight years after the armistice—she would have violently placed before us this dilemma: either give up our reparation claim of right. We would have had to choose between ruin and devastating war.

"The occupation of the Ruhr permits us to avoid this situation. If the Government, as we believe it will, persists in its policy of cold firmness. If, as we have the power to do now, we strike at great German business, that is, at the head of Germany in its source of riches and the domination of the rich, she will be disarmed not only militarily but politically."

After predicting that France would triumph over her present difficulties in the Ruhr, the General writes:

"Let the Government of Cuno have no illusions. When, after long efforts, we shall have definitely in hand the economic life of the occupied territory; when, by the imbecile hard-headedness of the leaders on the other side of the Rhine, we shall exercise the powerful force of the indulgent and liberal mentality of the French and Belgians, we will not be disposed to give up overnight the fruit of our patient and costly labor. We didn't take a round trip ticket when we embarked on this enterprise.

"When Germany finally becomes wise and surrenders to our absolutely legitimate rights and asks us to loosen our hold she will receive, perhaps, for long days this laconic reply from the uncompromising Allies: 'We are here and here we stay.'"

Panic-Stricken Lecture Audience Set Upon as They Rush From Building.

VIENNA, Feb. 5.—Disapproving of a lecture by Professor Hirschfield, a Berlin pathologist, two hundred alleged anti-Semitic Fascisti set fire today to the crowded Konserthaussaal, in which the lecture was being delivered.

Then, as the panic-stricken audience emerged, the Fascisti are alleged to have attacked them thrashing, stabbing and trampling many.

Thirty-five arrests were made.

CAIRO CABINET RESIGNS ON THE SUDAN ISSUE

Action Comes After Yielding to British Demand That Sovereignty Claims Be Dropped.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Feb. 5.—The Egyptian Cabinet resigned this afternoon as the result of the crisis arising from the British insistence on the removal from the law establishing the Constitution of two clauses asserting Egyptian sovereignty over the Sudan. King Fuad, who is anxious to style himself King of Egypt and the Sudan, fought for the retention of the two clauses, but finally the Ministry was forced to defer to the view of the British Government, which held that such clauses were in contravention of the declaration of last February, by which the subject of the Sudan was reserved for discussion between the delegates of the Egyptian nation appointed by a future Parliament and the representative of the British Government.

The yielding of the Government on Saturday aroused strong criticism in the Egyptian press which probably influenced the Cabinet to resign; but Premier Nessim is persona grata to the King, owing to his deference to all the royal wishes; and though the situation is a very delicate one, it is believed that the King may induce him to remain in office and put through the Constitution law. Otherwise it is expected that there will be considerable difficulty in forming a Ministry unless substantial concessions are made by the British to the Nationalist demands for the recall of Zaglul Pasha from exile, the abolition of martial law, &c.

The political crisis so far has not caused any demonstrations. The tourist season pursues its way placidly without outward signs of any trouble.

ITALY RAIDS COMMUNISTS.

Arrests and Seizure of Funds Follow Anti-Fascismo Threat.

ROME, Feb. 5.—The Government has ordered the arrest of ten Communist leaders and the seizure of the Communists' funds following the publication by the Communist Internationale of a violent manifesto calling upon the workers of the world to rise against Fascismo.

Large sums were seized today, including 350,000 francs found in the home of Signor Bordiga, a Communist and former member of the Chamber of Deputies.

A Moscow dispatch to The Associated Press last Friday told of the proclamation by the Communist Internationale and the Soviet trade unions of a "world-wide war" on Fascismo.

"We have decided," it was said in the proclamation, "to enforce materially, morally and politically the activities of the world proletariat in the struggle against Fascismo and to organize an international fund for that purpose."

BLAMES BRITAIN FOR DRUGS.

Mrs. Sire Says Poppies Are Grown Under Government Supervision.

Mrs. Lillian R. Sire, President of the Woman's National Democratic Club, in a speech last night blamed Great Britain for the growth of the drug evil. She spoke at a dinner of the League of Women Voters of the Seventh Assembly District at the Town House, 71 Central Park West.

"England," said Mrs. Sire, "grows poppies and manufactures opium under Government supervision, yet she does not allow its importation into the home country."

Mrs. Sire hinted that Japan might be sending drugs to our shores, because, she said, "it is easy to fight a nation of drug addicts." A resolution was passed calling on the President to designate an "anti-dope week" and to call an international conference to limit the supply of drugs.

'ANGEL OF SIBERIA' TO TOUR AMERICA

NOBEL PRIZE CANDIDATE

When the new 11,000 tons twin screw Hamburg-American liner Thuringia was made fast at Pier 86, North River, foot of West Forty-sixth Street, yesterday afternoon, one of the first passengers to descend the gangway was a tall, slender, fair-haired, blue-eyed woman with bold, clear-cut features that showed her descent from the Vikings.

She was attired in a dark gray suit and coat trimmed with fur, a toque of the same material, black shoes and spats and there was nothing to indicate in her modest bearing that she was known throughout Northern Europe as the "Angel of Siberia," where she had lived for six years among the suffering Austrian and German prisoners when they were dying in thousands of disease and hunger.

Miss Miss Brandstrom, daughter of the late General Brandstrom, who was the Swedish Ambassador to St. Petersburg when the war broke out in 1914, was surprised when the reporters informed her that it had been stated she was recommended for the Nobel Prize for 1923.

Will Lecture Here.

She said that the object of her visit to America is to give lectures and to collect funds for the benefit of the philanthropic work she is carrying on in Germany and Austria for the sick and disabled soldiers who had been prisoners in Siberia.

Miss Brandstrom has sixteen medals for her services from the Red Cross organizations of the various countries and is the only woman who has been decorated in Sweden with the Order of the Seraphim, which recently was conferred upon her by King Gustav. She is 34 years old.

"I decided," said Miss Brandstrom, "that the unfortunate prisoners in Siberia were in need of medical comforts, nursing and sustenance and I went there soon after the war started and traveled all over the country from Omsk to Vladivostok, a distance of more than 3,000 miles, visiting all the principal towns and villages. More than 600,000 prisoners died out of 2,000,000 during the time I was in Siberia, and I managed, with my assistants, to reach 700,000 prisoners and give them a little comfort.

"At times I reached camps where dozens of prisoners were lying frozen together, and in one place there were 2,000 prisoners dying of disease and exposure, with lack of food and medicine. They were suffering from typhus fever and tuberculosis."

Held Prisoner by Soviet.

Miss Brandtrom was held a prisoner by the Soviet Government for seven weeks when she tried to get through quickly from Siberia to see her father, who was dying in Stockholm.

For one year in Siberia she lived almost entirely upon dog meat and unleavened bread that had been baked in the ashes, she said. It was easy to make, and consisted of flour, water, salt and a pinch of baking powder, which was thrown into the hot ashes to bake. The people were glad to eat the bread, ashes and all, she said. She said that horse meat was a luxury.

Since her return from Siberia, in 1920 she had been conducting a sanitarium in Brandenburg, Germany, for mental defectives.

The Thuringia, in charge of Captain Paul Wiehr, brought 143 cabin and 332 steerage passengers. A stormy trip was reported. The liner is 475 feet long and sixty feet beam, has an average speed of thirteen knots and is driven by oil-burning turbine engines. She leaves again for Hamburg on Thursday noon.

ITALIAN SUCCESS IN TRIPOLI.

Two More Towns Occupied in Operations Against the Arabs.

ROME, Feb. 5.—An official communiqué, recording the continuation of Italian military operations near Homs, Tripoli, says that the Italians advanced in three directions, occupying two towns and extending their lines 100 kilometers south of Tripoli. Fifty natives were killed and many captured. The Arabs are said to have lost a considerable number of men in the other engagements, as the fighting was sharp.

PERMIT IS AWAITED IN CZAR GEM SEARCH

Treasury Treasury Official Ready, but Needs Approval of War Department.

William B. Williams, in charge of the special agents of the Treasury Department in this district, admitted yesterday that he had received instructions from the Treasury Department to go ahead as soon as the War Department would permit with the exhumation of the body of Seaman James Jones, whose casket is reported to be the hiding place of $4,000,000 crown jewels of the Czar. Jones's body was brought home aboard a steamer sailing from Vladivostock, where the Romanoff gems are alleged to have been smuggled on board, and the body is buried in the United States National Cemetery adjoining Cypress Hills in Brooklyn.

"We will not be able to make a start until we receive permission from the War Department," explained Mr. Williams. "Meanwhile a guard is being continued during the night at the grave to forestall any attempt at robbery. The guard gave chase several nights ago to several suspicious persons lurking near the grave of Seaman Jones."

Lieutenant Anthony Bushman, Superintendent of the National Cemetery, said he had not heard of any attempt made to disturb the grave, nor had he received any instructions from Washington or elsewhere to permit the opening of Seaman Jones's grave for the jewel search. He explained that permission would have to come from the office of the Adjutant General at Washington.

The story of the secretion of the jewels was called "bunk" yesterday by Captain Robert B. Fields, in charge of the Utility Division at the army base in Brooklyn. Colonel Arthur Thayer, in command of the general intermediate depot comprising the Second Corps Area, when seen at his offices at 39 Whitehall Street, said he was still without orders to open the grave of Jones.

DANES FOR BANK GUARANTEE

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 5.—After an all-night sitting, the Rigsdag early this morning passed a bill establishing a State guarantee for the Landmansbank, with an amendment providing that the guarantee expire on April 1, 1926.

The bill was presented to the King for signature by the Minister of Commerce at 5 o'clock this morning, enabling the Landsmansbank to open for business at the usual hour today.

The Danish Landmansbank is the most important bank in Scandinavia, and is closely connected with the shipping and industrial interests of Denmark. It maintains eighty branches throughout the country.

The bank was reorganized last Fall, the Danish Government participating to the extent of 40,000,000 kroner in the 100,000,000 kroner of preferred shares issued under the reorganization.

SZE LEAVES PEKING CABINET

Huang Fu Succeeds Him Temporarily as Foreign Minister.

PEKING, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Huang Fu was appointed Acting Foreign Minister today, replacing Alfred Sze, Minister to the United States, whose resignation has been accepted.

The Chinese Senate recently failed to ratify the appointment of Mr. Sze as Foreign Minister. It was unofficially stated that his defeat was caused by his alleged participation in an open letter that criticised the course taken by the Minister of Education in the investigation leading to the arrest of Lo Wen-kan, former Minister of Finance, who was charged with irregular conduct in connection with a proposed loan.

PURSER MUST PAY $3,000.

Telephone Operator Wins Suit for Breach of Promise.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice McCook gave a verdict for $3,000 yesterday to Miss Elizabeth Gillespie, who has been a telephone operator at the Sloane Maternity Hospital, against Thomas Dempsey, a purser employed by the White Star Line, in a suit for $15,000 damages for breach of promise. Dempsey did not appear to defend the suit.

Miss Gillespie alleged that Dempsey postponed the marriage thre times and said that after the banns had been published he wrote that he could not marry her because he had found a girl he "really loved." She said she spent $200 on her trousseau and lent Dempsey $150, of which he paid back half.

RIOTS IN MONTREAL ATTEND ELECTION

Thirty in Jail, Many in Hospitals, and Others Are Charged With Theft and Fraud.

QUEBEC GOVERNMENT SAFE

Majority of 57 Is Cut to 46—Montreal City an Overturn for Opposition.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—The Liberal Government, headed by Premier Taschereau, was re-elected in today's general elections in the Province of Quebec for the Legislative Assembly.

Of the 85 seats the Liberals won 62, the Opposition 22, leaving one seat, where the election was deferred, to be filled later.

In the last general election, 1919, the Liberals won 72, Conservatives 7 and Labor 2 seats in a House of 81 members.

At the time of dissolution last month the Liberals held 74 seats, having won two bye-elections since 1919; the Conservatives had 6, and one seat was vacant.

Opposition forces won a sweeping victory in Montreal today, capturing 15 out of 15 seats. Arthur Sauve, leader of the opposition, was re-elected.

Premier Taschereau, declared his Government would consider the results an indorsement of its policy on the control and sale of liquor.

Rioting, theft, assault and fraud attended the Montreal balloting. By noon thirty persons, charged with various offenses, were in jail and a number of others were in hospitals.

Fifteen men, said to have taken part in a riot in the St. Lawrence division, during which Antonio Tarte, the deputy election officer, was seriously injured, his ballot boxes stolen and the polling place demolished, were jailed. Destruction of the polling place ended voting for the day in the division.

Adolphe l'Archeque, opposition candidate in Mercier, caused the arrest of twelve men who, he said, carried lists of dead men they intended to impersonate in the voting.

Three members of a mob that broke into the office of Secretary Bourdonnier of the Montreal Tramways Union and seized lists of election officers and polling locations were arrested. Bourdonnier said the lists had been entrusted to him by the authorities.

QUEBEC, Quebec, Feb. 5.—Contests were held today in eighty-one of the eighty-five electoral districts for the Legislative Assembly, four members having been returned by acclamation. In the last general election, that of 1919, forty-five districts returned members unopposed.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Rivalry for the favors of a woman 50 years old caused the death of four persons here today. A disillusioned lover shot the woman and the other man, killed the police sergeant who attempted to arrest him and then committed suicide.

The cause of the tragedy, Mme. Marguérite Burit, was a washerwoman and the last person to be suspected, even by her closest friends, of liaisons. Since the death of her husband, however, she had carried on a love affair with a workman of her own age. This morning, paying an unexpected visit to her home, he found there a rival 25 years old. When he went away the woman's daughter, who lived in the same house, heard him shouting imprecations against her mother and hastily mounted to the apartment, where she found the couple lying dead in the corridor.

The police were notified, and four detectives under Sergeant Mercadier went to the man's home to arrest him. The murderer opened the door and fired, killing the Sergeant. The police sent for siege apparatus and were preparing a gas attack on the house when the man shot himself.

The Minister of the Interior and the Prefect of Police visited the hospital this afternoon to pay their respects to the body of the murdered officer, who will be named a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Verification of the theories respecting "zones of silence," a phenomenon of sound which caused considerable scientific speculation during the war, has been obtained through an experiment on Oct. 26 last, when 2,000 pounds of explosives were fired in Holland, according to a communique issued today by the University of Paris.

The results of the experiment, which have just been assembled, show that the noise of the explosion was heard within a radius of from twenty to seventy kilometers, according to the direction of the wind, while not the slightest sound was heard between distances of seventy kilometers and 180 to 200. In a zone distant more than 200 kilometers the sound of the explosion was again audible up to a distance of 900 kilometers.

The noise was heard at Chalons, Vitry and Dijon, in France, at more than 500 kilometers, and in an English town distant 700 kilometers, in Scotland at a distance of 750 kilometres and in Austria as far as 900 kilometers.

GERMANS SUSPECT AIM TO SEIZE DYES

do. As a reprisal for the Germans refusing telephone connection to the French, the latter cut off the electric power, deadening the telephone service, and then turned on the current again at night on account of possible fire peril.

As the Germans continued their sabotage of French calls, the French made reprisals today by shutting the power not only from the telephones but the whole telegraph works, so that Essen is again completely cut off from the world.

The ill wind of the Franco-German telephone and telegraph war blows good to the taxicab chauffeurs, who charge 2,000 times what the meter shows for nocturnal dashes to the nearest wires that are open, anywhere from ten to thirty miles away. Gelsenkirchen, Muelheim, Bochum and Dortmund are the favorite lines of retreat. Along all these roads the honk of the correspondents' cars can be heard until the early morning hours.

An irritating feature of the situation is that both the French and the Germans are likely to cease the sabotage without notice and then resume without warning.

Threats Sent to Cuno.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Chancellor Cuno received a score of threatening letters today from the so-called "Right radical side," extremist reactionaries, warning him against giving in to the French. "Remember Rathenau," it was said in the letters.

The Chancellor was shaken up, but not injured, when an express train on which he was riding was in collision with a freight train near Muenster, in the Ruhr district. Many persons were badly hurt in the accident.

The food crisis in the Ruhr has reached an acute stage. This fact more than any other is endangering the German program of passive resistance. It was this crisis which caused the Ruhr labor unions to send for Chancellor Cuno, so that he could see the seriousness of the situation for himself and agree with the labor unions on their proposed plan, which they asserted alone could save the Government from backing down on its program.

This plan consists of:

First—Rationing food.

Second—"Zwangswirtschaft," or the re-establishment of wartime food laws, by which the Government forces producers to accept the Government's set prices for food, which in turn would be sold by cards at a fraction of the free trade price.

Third—An increase in the workers' wages.

The Tribune learns that Herr Cuno's meeting with the leaders at Essen was tense and dramatic, chiefly on account of the presence of hard-handed and grimy workers' representatives who faced Hugo Stinnes, Germany's industrial colossus, across the conference table.

Representatives of the miners' and metal workers' unions, railroad workers and members of the Christian Labor Union were present with Herr Stinnes and representatives of the Krupps, Thyssens and others when Herr Cuno and his aids arrived.

Told of Starvation Danger.

Without mincing words the labor men told the Chancellor that the food crisis had now reached the last stage. Famine prices are prevailing in the Ruhr. Wholesalers and retailers are charging three times the Berlin prices. Bread costs 7,000 marks a loaf, and butter 16,000 marks a pound. The profiteering was unbearable, the labor leaders said. They explained that the stoppage of food supplies was only partly to blame.

The labor chiefs told Herr Cuno that starvation faced the workers under the situation, and that the tendency to raise prices was being continued. Rationing was advocated, but Government control of foodstuffs from the producers to the workers was insisted on as the only way to save the Ruhr from a communist uprising.

This is the program which Herr Cuno will now try to put through.

Numerous reports of communist activities in the Ruhr have caused a pessimistic view in official circles. A general strike under communist leadership, not against France but against the German Government and the owners of the industries in the Ruhr district, is reported to be planned. Numerous officials assert that they have evidence that the French have always been counting upon the communists to split up the solidarity of the German people in passive resistance when they entered the Ruhr. The danger of a communist uprising is considered greater than the danger of a food crisis.

The Social Democratic leaders, realising that no Government can accept any proposal for a conference with France by retreating from Herr Cuno's program of "no discussion while the Ruhr is under French bayonets," favor a national referendum as to Germany's course.

A member of German's coal syndicate asserts that as a result of Hugo Stinnes's conferences with representatives of the British coal operators an agreement has been reached whereby Germany will obtain 1,000,000 tons of coal on good credit conditions, thus insuring German industries against stoppage. He says the British action indicates that British industries are siding with Germany in the present crisis.

Notice Received After Incursion.

BERLIN, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Chancellor Cuno was traversing the occupied Ruhr area when the news of the French occupation of Offenburg and Appenweier, in Baden, reached him. No official action with respect to this latest French advance is expected before his return to Berlin tomorrow.

The official note appraising the German Government of the impending occupation was delivered to the Foreign Office in Wilhelmstrasse twelve hours after the French cavalry entered the Badenese cities.

While a section of the press discusses the new French move in a phlegmatic way both of the prevailing resignation with which Germany's helplessness is contemplated, several of the conservative organs have been aroused to fury.

The Kreuz-Zeitung demands the immediate breaking off of relations with France and the expulsion of all French and Belgian members of the allied control commissions, as well as the civilian nationals of both countries now in Germany. It believes that, as official protests from Germany to the Allies are no longer of avail, the presence in Paris of the German Chargé d'Affaires has become superfluous. The breaking of relations, the newspaper argues, would effectively dispose of the rumors that the Cuno Government was about to capitulate to the occupying powers.

Says Germany is Being United.

That the French aggressions are rapidly accomplishing complete national unification in Germany is contended by the Lokal-Anzeiger, which says that neither Bismarck nor von Hindenburg succeeded in achieving what the French now are bringing the Germans to achieve.

The bulk of the editorial comment is given over to assailing what is called the "utter lack of legal justification" for the French invasion of Badenese territory. The Versailles Treaty the Germans contend, prescribes that international through trains must have the same accommodations as those given trains running on the regular German schedules. As the schedules can no longer be maintained, on account of the coal shortage and the Ruhr occupation, the German Government, it is said, has also been obliged to curtail the facilities formerly accorded the international express trains.

The pretext put forward by France in this connection, says Vorwärts, might warrant Poland, with equal sophistry, in occupying Breslau or Czechoslovakia in entering Dresden, as both countries are affected by the withdrawal of the expresses. The newspaper demands to know "what sort of law and peace it is that confronts Germany with such possibilities."

"Germany is today a country without frontiers and without means of safeguarding its sovereignty—a condition which is wholly intolerable to the German people and the rest of the world," the Socialist organ declares.

Prince of Piedmont, who was born Sept. 15, 1904.

Owing to her beauty and her linguistic and artistic gifts her name since the World War has been linked in prospective alliance with nearly every eligible Prince in Europe—Prince Carol of Rumania, King Alexander of Serbia, King Boris of Bulgaria, the Duke of Sparta, now King of Greece, and Prince Leopold, Crown Prince of the Belgians. Persistent gossip, meanwhile, bracketed her name with the Prince of Wales, from the time they first met in Rome in 1916, did war work together and rode over the Campagna, until the Princess's visit to London last June.

Owing to the fact that she was the eldest child, she early became the "little mother" of her brother and sisters, planned their games and heard their lessons. Later she helped her father with his coin collection, for he is one of the greatest numismatists in the world. In the war she rivaled her brother in accompanying the King on his excursions to the front. Once at Mestre, during an air raid, she nearly lost her life. She has constantly hunted and shot with her father and is said to be an excellent judge of horses. In the past three years she has been in constant attendance at the Parioli horse shows at Rome and those of San Siro at Milan. She is described as most modest, democratic, generous and charitable, but with a disposition which seeks with patient persistency to have her own way.

When the Fascisti marched on Rome last October she wished to go down into the streets and welcome them as the saviors of Italy, but was finally induced to compromise, and waved a flag from the balcony. A fortnight ago she was in the royal box at the Costanzi Theatre, when Premier Mussolini entered and was acclaimed by the audience. The "bravas" of the Princess were said to have been quite audible.

PHARAOH'S MANIKIN FOUND IN HIS TOMB

PARTS OF CANOPY REMOVED

HIS NAME ON IT CHANGED

Cartouches Were Made to Conform to Amen Faith, but One Retains Heretical Aten Form.

LUXOR, Egypt, Feb. 5.—There was a very good attendance today at the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, and the bright sunshine with a cool breeze blowing, free from sand, made the ride up the Valley of the Kings most enjoyable and the wait at the parapet of the tomb most pleasant. This should have been a busy day witnessing important removals, but once again official visitors interrupted the work, those admitted being the family of His Excellency Tewfik Tafaat Pasha, Minister of Communications, and including several Egyptian ladies stylishly dressed with beautiful shawls.

Nevertheless some interesting articles were removed. Noticeable among them was a tray containing numerous pieces of gilded wood, which aroused general curiosity. These were parts of the movable canopy provided for the King when on excursions in the desert or elsewhere. It was erected over him as a shelter when he rested. It is of wood gilded and heavily decorated in color and is made to take to pieces. In fact, it was in pieces, excepting one section which clearly showed the design of the frame work.

Manikin of King Found.

Another noteworthy object was a manikin. It is a life-size model of the King's head and bust, without arms, and is a portrait of the King with a crown of the finest chiseled and painted gilt. Naturally the appearance of the features struck every one. It was used for trying on the King's robes and it is in a most perfect condition.

Another chariot wheel similar to the others already removed but having portions of the gold plating still hanging to the rim was removed today, and also a second chariot. This is larger than the previous one, but in a most dilapidated condition, only the frame work being intact. It had to be strongly bandaged before removal. With it were various fragments, which it is hoped to be able to put together eventually.

Various other objects were taken out including some baskets for fruit, one being a large circular-like tray and partitioned like a modern hors d'oeuvres dish. There was also another horsehair flywhisk with a leather headed bronze handle. The lid of an alabaster box was brought out. It bears an inlaid protocol of the King and on either side a large bouquet. It is in excellent condition and of the finest workmanship.

You have already had accounts of the King's throne, or the chair of state, which is recognized as perhaps the most important item among the entire contents of the tomb. Now, as cleaned and treated in the laboratory, its beauties are becoming more apparent, and it is possible to give a more accurate description of many of its details.

Beautiful Workmanship on Throne.

Thus I have described the scene depicted on the back of the throne, where the King is seated with his legs crossed and gives his hand to the Queen, who is standing facing. The exposed fleshy parts of the body are most beautifully modeled, and in the earlier message it was conjectured that these were made of carnelian, but really they seem to be a semi-opaque, darkish red glass. Parts of the King's costume which looked like extraordinarily fine inlaying are now seen to be painting overlaid with crystal. The Queen's dress is made of silver, and by her side is a most curious and charming bouquet, inlaid with semi-precious stones. Standing on a table seat is a pattern of blue gold and white mosaic squares inset in diagonal lines.

The general material of the throne is wood, covered with a plating of thin gold, and there are finely carved lions' heads at the ends. The arms are of thin gold over modeled wood. Below the arms is a uraeus, sacred serpent, which is partly of glass, with a crown of Egyptian silver.

The most curious detail of all, however, is that at the side of the arms is the King's original name, Tut-ankh-Aten, formed by an inlaying of semi-precious stones and glass. The cartouches elsewhere are worked into gold plating, and have evidently been altered to show the later name, Tut-ankh-Amen.

It is interesting to speculate as to why the early heretical name was allowed to remain in one place, but certainly the change from the nature and character of the materials would have been more difficult to make.

A good deal of treatment is still necessary before it will be safe to send the throne, even by water, to Cairo, but it is constantly being brought nearer to its original brilliance, and Lord Carnarvon considers it "one of the most marvelous pieces of furniture that has ever been discovered."

Second Chariot is Removed.

From Our Own Correspondent.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUXOR, Egypt, Feb. 5.—A perfect morning attracted a large crowd of visitors to Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb, including the family of the Egyptian Minister of Agriculture, who had to be shown into the tomb and held up work for nearly an hour.

Today's removals from the tomb included the second of the two royal chariots, but it was in a weak condition and was only held together by swathes of bandages. There is practically only the outlines left, but as it seems to be a replica of the one removed Saturday, which is in comparatively good condition, it is not absolutely essential as archeological evidence. It is not nearly so impressive as the one already removed, as those parts of it which are unbandaged are cracked and broken and the gems have fallen from the woodwork, while the gold is mostly missing.

There was also removed a small box about a foot square and nine inches high. It was empty and the interior was bituminized. The King's cartouche was on the top. It is stated that it was made of wood and it seems to be covered thinly with gesso and gilt.

Other objects removed today were a chariot wheel, such as has been described in former messages; a number of gold-cornered sticks, and what were stated to be incense burners—sticks with receptacles at the end for incense—a basket of fruit, and what seemed to be the top of a fairly large oblong box.

The fruit had been placed in the tomb for the Pharaoh's use after death, according to the teachings of the Amen religion. It was crumbled to black dust, although there appeared to be the remains of a pomegranate. The top of an oblong box is crumbling to dust. Originally it was divided into squares of about four inches each, while at each corner there was a hole, evidently to allow it to be securely fastened. It was declared by one expert to be probably the top of the box in which had been placed Pharaoh's jars of unguent and that it had been wrenched off by the dynastic robbers. It was magnificently embossed with gold, which was as bright today as it it had just left the jeweler's.

Observers Speculate About Bust.

The dismantling of the motion picture camera after the chariot had gone to the tomb of Seti II. and the official statement that nothing more was to be cleared this morning sent most of the people away but for four days in succession that announcement had been made only to be proved wrong by subsequent events, and so it was this morning.

Toward one o'clock the discoverers brought out an armless half-size statue of a human being. It is not known who it is, but unofficial observers outside Lord Carnarvon's party thought it might be a bust of Queen Ankh-mes-Amen.

It is of faded golden color which is the traditional feminine color of the ancient Egyptians and it is ornamented with a crown very similar, if not identical, with that designed by Akhenaton for his Queen and daughters, who were his lawful successors. Moreover, the face is wreathed in a glowing Mona Lisa smile—a smile which captivated the few who remained at the tomb after the announcement that the morning's work was finished. The lips are very full, the eyes large and dark, but the whites of the eyes are very pronounced. Finally, the cheekbones are almost certainly those of a young girl.

The discoverers informed me previously that they thought it was a statue used by Tut-ankh-Amen's hairdresser to arrange the Pharaoh's wigs, but from the other evidence indicated above it seems it is a statue of some woman.

The observers did not know whether the discoverers adopted this suggestion but it is backed up by the theory that it is a statue of Tut-ankh-Amen's queen buried with him to bear his soul company until the Queen died and came to him in the next world.

Another theory is that it is a rough sketch of Ankh-nes-Amen made by some sculptor as a model for a portrait statue in stone of Tut-ankh-Amen's young wife—who was only seventeen years old when her husband died.

Ante-Chamber Is Nearly Cleared.

The ante-chamber is now nearly cleared. There still remain the two life-size statues of the King, one lion-headed couch, one chariot, two fragile reed mats and a collection of pieces which have fallen during the course of ages from objects now removed from the tomb.

The Egyptian Government has arranged for a press view of the tomb tomorrow, but as the tomb is practically denuded of its contents the visit at this moment seems unnecessary. The question now acute is whether the press will be allowed in the tomb to see the inner chamber as soon as it is opened. It is understood that the Egyptian Government is not pressing the discoverers to allow newspaper men in the first day, but has ruled that if one correspondent enters the tomb that day all must be allowed in. It is stated that the discoverers do not approve of the decision, but that the Government refuses to alter it. I understand the date of the opening of the inner chamber has not been fixed, though it is within a very few days now.

Professor Evart of the United States has just returned from the Sudan, where he had been studying the symbols of the ancient Egyptians for indications if they were the precursors of the early Christian symbols. Professor Evart told me he obtained some interesting information on this subject which he is to publish in book form.

He showed me the photograph of one life-size relief which was originally made by the ancient Egyptians, a figure of Pharaoh Amenhotep III. receiving homage from representatives of the different dominions. Later the Christians—about 135 A.D.—thinly covered the relief of Amenhotep and over it drew a figure of Saint Peter, adding in Greek the words "Petrus" on the left side of the drawing and "Apostolis" on the right.

The thin plaster overlay has worn away and now there is a curious scene where the Apostle Peter receives from the ancient Egyptians and the Nubians the homage meant for the representative of Amenhotep III.

There are other instances, notably in the Sudan, where early Christian reliefs had been laid over Pharaonic inscriptions. They had formerly been dismissed as forgeries, but Professor Evart attaches deep significance to them.

FREE STATE SENATOR IS FORCED TO RESIGN

Dr. Sigerson, Aged Scientist and Patriot, Quits to Save Property for His Family.

TWO MORE HOMES BURNED

O'Hegarty Warns That if Struggle Goes On Ireland Will Be Reduced to a Wilderness.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Feb. 5.—Senator George Sigerson has resigned from the Free State Senate, the reason being best given in his own words: "I am sorry to say it has become necessary. I got a communication; I did not mind the threat of shooting, and I attended at the House as was my duty, but now with the threat that if I continue to act my house and property will be burned I feel I have no alternative than to resign. I might not care for myself, but I must have regard to my family and their property."

Dr. Sigerson is the most venerated and learned Irishman living today. He is 80 years old and is the father-in-law of Clement Shorter. His ardent love of Irish freedom was first manifested as a Fenian in his young days, and though he has stanchly supported all subsequent Nationalist movements it may be said that they were not advanced enough for the great scientist. He is professor of biology in the University of Dublin and the author of many learned books.

More Residences are Burned.

The work of incendiaries proceeds with amazing intensity, and at this moment one is safe in saying that hundreds of Ireland's finest residential buildings are listed for destruction. It is asked why the troops cannot protect them, but the answer forthcoming is that the troops guard many hundreds more which may thus escape.

The republican forces certainly show alarming activity as well as alarming numbers and the manner in which they elude military authorities is also alarming.

Because he is High Sheriff of County Louth nine men burned the beautiful house of John J. Russell before the eyes of himself, his wife and his two little girls and servants who were all huddled on the lawn after midnight beholding the sickening scene.

There is no reason mentioned for the destruction in the early dark hours this morning of a fine old building, the residence of Colonel Eustace Maude, a British officer of distinction who served in the great war with an Irish regiment. He is in Ceylon. The incendiaries awakened Mrs. Maude and ordered her to open the door, and she with another woman, an old gentleman and the servants were compelled to witness the destruction of their home.

One further attempt has been made to effect peace. The task this time was taken up by old members of the I. R. A. who took no part in the operations beginning with the Four Courts affair last June. They are led by a big man in Sean Hegarty, which is one hopeful factor, but peace moves in which the Government and the enemy are not participants are not convincing just now.

Warns of Irish Wilderness.

DUBLIN, Feb. 5.—The report of yesterday's convention of republican army members says that Diaramuid O'Hegarty, who was Secretary of the Irish Provisional Government, spoke to the delegates as follows:

"The sorrows which have befallen our country make it the duty of every one to do what is possible to end the national tragedy. For more than seven months Ireland has been enduring an agony more bitter than any in her checkered history. Brother is in arms against brother, and father is the jailer of son. Many of the best and most fearless of our comrades have fallen in the struggle. Brugha, Collins, Boland, Hales and Mellowes are in their graves. Can we allow the conflict to continue until every name which inspired us with hope and our enemies with fear during the struggle with England becomes but an inscription on a tombstone?

"If we continue much longer on the road we have traveled for the last seven months, we shall not have a country but a wilderness."

Eight soldiers and one civilian were drowned yesterday in Dundrum Bay, County Down, when their boat capsized.

SAY AUSTIN-NICHOLS SOUGHT A MONOPOLY

Virginia Concern, Which Included New York Company, Haled Before Trade Commission.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Attorneys for Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc., of Richmond, Va., one of the largest wholesale grocery concerns in the country, appeared before the Federal Trade Commission today to answer a complaint alleging violation of Section 7 of the Clayton act through its acquisition of the capital stock of Austin, Nichols & Co. of New York and the business and assets of certain subsidiaries of Wilson & Co., Inc., of Chicago.

The commission's complaint charges that the consolidations tended to create a monopoly and limited competition in restrait of interstate commerce. It also alleges that the deal was effected in such a way that Wilson & Co., Inc., controlled Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc.

Attorneys for the commission asserted at the hearings that stock in the latter corporation, held by stockholders of Wilson & Co., Inc., was voted through a trust, established by officers and directors of the packing concern, and that it held the balance of power in the respondent's affairs. This was denied by the respondent's attorneys, who said that individual stockholders of the packing corporation held less than 10 per cent. of the grocery concern's stock.

In addition to the New York Austin, Nichols & Co., which was dissolved, the properties taken over by the respondent were listed as the Wilson Fisheries Company, the Fame Canning Company and the Whiteland Canning Plant, operated by Wilson & Co. of Chicago, a wholesale grocery subsidiary of the packing corporation.

Attorneys for the respondent argued at the hearing that since Austin, Nichols & Co. of New York no longer existed and its stock had been cancelled there could be no question of its stock being held to reduce competition. They also contended that the Wilson subsidiaries acquired by Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc., had never been in competition with it as wholesale grocers, and that the whole consolidation involved so small a part of the nation's cannery business that it could not be considered a monopoly

EARL OF MIDLETON HERE.

Former St. John Brodrick Arrives on the Cedric.

Although the slip at Pier 60, North River, was full of ice, Captain George R. Metcalfe, R. N. R., of the White Star liner Cedric from Liverpool and Queenstown, docked his ship yesterday afternoon an hour and eight minutes after leaving quarantine. Instead of keeping outside the ice and trying to crush the ship's way to the pier, Captain Metcalfe edged the sharp stem of the Cedric against the pier head and then used the powerful engines to force the ice out into the slip, thus making room for the big liner to squeeze in alongside her berth. He was complimented by the officials of the company.

Among the passengers were the Earl and Countess of Midleton who have come here to visit friends. The Earl was known for more than a quarter of a century in British politics as St. John Brodrick and served as Secretary of State for War during the South African campaign. He was later Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

LLOYDS ABSORBS COX BANK.

Private Concern Had Been Financial Agent for British Officers.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—"Cox's" private bank, through which the majority of British army officers receive their pay, and which has for generations acted as financial dry nurse to young lieutenants, is to lose its separate existence. It is announced today that with the consent of the Treasury and the Army Council its ordinary business, its special work as army agents, and the banking business of Henry S. King & Co., which it was on the verge of acquiring, will be absorbed by Lloyds Bank.

This latter bank, with a capital of £14,372,000, is one of the biggest banks in England. The capital of Cox & Co. is £65,000, and of King & Co. £100,000. They will be continued as branches of Lloyds.

MESSAGE ON DEBT IS EXPECTED TODAY

Harding, After Conferences, Leans to Amendment of the Funding Law.

WATSON FOR WIDE POWERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—President Harding will probably send recommendations for modification of the Debt Funding law to Congress tomorrow, and the prediction was made freely by leaders in both the Senate and the House today that there would be favorable action before the end of the present session.

The move proposed by some members of the House to insist that a soldier bonus rider be attached to the funding proposal, it was said, had practically been abandoned and if bonus legislation is sought it will be in the form of a separate bill.

Administration leaders took the position that the advantages to be gained by the United States and the world at large as a result of funding the British debt on the tentative terms proposed were so great that Congress scarcely would be willing to accept the responsibility of repudiating the terms, which have been suggested by an American Commission and accepted by the British.

A prominent Treasury official said that settlement of the British debt problem would have the effect of ending discussions about the cancellation or scaling down of the war debts to the United States and would serve to stabilize financial conditions in this country and abroad. The British debt represents about 50 per cent. of the foreign obligations.

Bond Enhancement is Prospect.

One immediate effect upon American Government finances, it was pointed out, would be to enhance the value of Liberty bonds and other Government securities issued since April 6, 1917, to the advantage of all holders of such issues. It was felt that, should conditions favor such action, Great Britain would enter the market for Liberty bonds in order to accumulate exchange and hold such bonds, most of which pay 4 per cent. interest, until they were turned in to make payments on principal and interest.

It might be that Great Britain would accumulate as much as $175,000,000 worth of the issues annually, and as these bonds would not again be thrown into the open market, but would be turned into the Treasury on specified dates and canceled, such buying would result in "pegging" the American bonds at par or thereabout. If exchange rates were favorable the British would be able to purchase 4 per cent. bonds at slightly over par and still profit.

The belief was expressed that the favorable effect of a funding arrangement with Great Britain was already being felt in international financial circles, as a result of the publication of the terms of the tentative agreement and that it would be a step backward if Congress refused to grant the American commission authority to ratify the suggestions made to Great Britain. The United States, it was felt, would be in a better position to approach other foreign nations in regard to a funding of their debts, if the British problem were definitely settled.

Feelers on Other Debts Likely.

There is no intention on the part of the American Government to bring undue pressure to bear on France, Italy or other foreign nations at so critical a time, but feelers probably will be put out, once the British debt is out of the way.

The fact that the British might obtain a slight advantage by purchasing American bonds yielding a higher interest rate than that charged in the funding arrangement, was not considered by the Administration as a sound objection to the funding proposal. The benefits to be derived by American holders of bonds would be great and there would be no loss to the American Government, which must ultimately pay par and accrued interest on the bonds at maturity.

President Harding conferred today with Representative Mondell, floor leader of the House, and Senator Watson of Indiana, in regard to the form which debt legislation should take in order to expedite action by Congress. There was some difference of opinion, but it is probable that Congress will be asked to make the present funding in the form with the terms of the British agreement by changing interest rates to not less than 3 per cent. for the first ten years, and 3½ per cent. for fifty-two years thereafter, and by extending the time of maturity of bonds of foreign Governments to sixty-two years.

Precedence Over Subsidy Bill.

The President will probably send a copy of a proposed amendment to the funding law along with a special message on the subject to Congress. The understanding is that legislation will be proposed at once. It will be referred to the House to the Ways and Means Committee, and in the Senate to the Finance Committee, with the request that it be reported quickly. As plans now are forming, the funding legislation will be considered before another attempt is made to obtain a vote in the Senate on the Ship Subsidy bill.

Senator Watson was in favor of seeking legislation which would give the Funding Commission blanket authority covering negotiations on all debts, but it was thought that this program might find dangerous opposition, as such a request was once refused by the Senate.

It is possible that the President will delay until Wednesday the sending of his message to Congress, but he hopes to have it in completed form for submission tomorrow. He is in thorough accord with the terms of the tentative agreement, and is simply seeking to obtain the views of leaders concerning the program which would facilitate favorable action.

WANTED TO CANCEL DEBTS.

Lloyd-Graeme Says British Would Have Taken a Loss.

STOKE-ON-TRENT, Feb. 5.—In a speech on the trade outlook, which he described as hopeful, the President of the Board of Trade, Sir Philip Lloyd-Graeme, said in regard to the war debts problem:

"Had the British plan been accepted, it was proposed to cancel the whole of the debts that our Allies owed us on terms which would have returned to us less than the total debt we had got to pay America.

"That would have settled the reparations once and for all, and gone far to restore the certainty of confidence in Europe."

Sir Phillip Lloyd-Graeme's reference to the proposed cancellation of the war debts owing to Great Britain by her Allies recalls the British proposals made at the conference of Premiers in Paris early in January. These proposals, which were rejected by the French, provided for the transfer to Great Britain of the first series of German bonds to be received by France in respect of the Belgian war debt, and 1,660,000,000 gold marks of the first series of bonds to be received by Italy in respect of her share of reparations. In return for this the balance of the net debts owing between the Allies, including the French and Italian debts to Great Britain, were to be "entirely written off."

FARM CREDIT BILLS HIT SHIP BILL SNAG

After Talk With Harding, Mondell Says 'Difficulties' May Block Farmer Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A possibility that the Lenroot-Anderson-Capper farm credits program may be blocked in Congress unless there is some assurance of action on the Administration Shipping bill was foreseen in some quarters today, after a series of conferences to discuss the legislative outlook for the remaining four weeks of the Sixty-seventh Congress.

After a talk with President Harding, Representative Mondell, Republican leader of the House, declared there were so many "difficulties" in the way of an agreement that it was entirely possible the farm credits measures could not be written into law before March 4, despite the fact that legislation on the subject had passed both the Senate and House.

Mr. Mondell insisted that the barriers to Senate and House agreement on details were real and important, but some friends of the farm credits program took his statement to mean that the pressure for passage of the Ship Subsidy bill might be greatly augmented during the delay in perfecting legislation for the aid of the farmer.

Much of the opposition in the shipping measure has come from those who are leading in the fight for farmer legislation. It has been apparent for some time that President Harding and his Administration advisers were preparing to exert all their influence for action on the Ship bill at the present session, but it was denied generally by Administration leaders today that any plan had been perfected contemplating undue delay in consideration of the farm credits measures.

Mr. Mondell pointed out after his conference with the President that the credits bills passed by the Senate in many respects "conflict with each other." The matter was so "difficult," he said, that it might not be possible to adjust it in the four weeks of the session remaining.

FRENCH GET TURKS' PLEDGE

The feeling is pretty general here that a mess has been made of the Lausanne negotiations from the time the Allies stopped threatening the Turks and tried persuasion. But those French critics of the conference must blame their Government, for at every step of the negotiations Lord Curzon was ready to show greater firmness than the French would consent to.

Probably the basis of Premier Poincaré's policy at Lausanne in the last few days was simply that France had on the Rhine as much trouble as she cared for at one time, and that, despite the large French interests at stake, she had better keep out of a Turkish war at almost any cost.

"Pertinax," in the Echo de Paris, warns Premier Poincaré against his pro-Turkish advisers, who advocate a separate treaty with Angora.

"The lesson of yesterday's fiasco," he says, "is that France and England should act in close union in the Orient if they wish to save their interests from disaster."

The Temps tonight accuses Lord Curzon of having given the impression that the conference broke up on the capitulation demands of France, whereas the Temps thinks that the real causes were the English demands. It even hints that Lord Curzon staged a break, saying: "If the Turkish delegates hesitated to sign, it may be imagined that Lord Curzon himself was little tempted to attach his name to a treaty embodying so many sacrifices."

The Temps says France cannot be held responsible for the breaking off of the negotiations and hopes that they will be resumed.

The Journal des Débats says France should stand with England in negotiations with Turkey. It recalls the fact that Lord Curzon refused the Turkish offer of a separate peace which would have given England most of what she demanded and refused France nearly everything. The Journal des Débats says a policy of conciliation can never succeed with the Turks. To remain in contact with them and to "buy their signature with further concessions" it thinks would be humiliating. "Far as we have already fallen, let us not fall to the bottom of the ditch. There is a minimum of dignity which we must support. The lesson of yesterday shows us once more that firmness and dignity alone can succeed in the Near East, and that only an accord with England will bring a solution of the Turkish problem."

Turks Fear Greek Attack in Thrace.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LAUSANNE, Feb. 5.—Aroused by alarming advices from Thrace and Greece that the Athens Government is reinforcing its frontier guard and rushing troops toward the Maritza River the Turkish delegates today attempted to reopen negotiations.

Ismet Pasha called an Ambassador Child, hinting that the American delegation might offer to mediate. He then called on Marquis di Garroni, intimating his readiness to sign the allied draft of the treaty, with reservations on all economic and juridical questions.

Mr. Child did not take up Ismet's hint, believing that the time was not ripe for American intervention.

The Marquis di Garroni pointed out that he was not in a position to discuss peace separately, as it was the British and French who raised objections yesterday, and the Italian delegates were not empowered to speak in behalf of London and Paris.

The Turks then suggested the advisability of renewing the Mudania convention, which expressly states that it continues only through the peace negotiations.

While neither the Allies nor the Turks are willing to admit that there is a rupture, and since the conference was merely suspended temporarily, the Turks fear the Greeks may decide the period covered by the Mudania convention has expired, leaving their hands free to renew military operations.

The Turks have fewer than 10,000 men available in Thrace, principally the gendarmeries, because of the provisions of the Mudania convention which prevented Mustapha Kemal Pasha from sending an army from the Asiatic side.

Camping along the Maritza are 70,000 Greeks, well armed and equipped. Owing to the drought, the river could be easily forded, and the Turks believe that within a few hours the Greeks could seize the whole Thracian section of the Berlin-Bagdad Railway, which connects Constantinople with the outside world.

A warning in the shape of a code telegram reached the Turkish delegation today that the Greeks were likely to cross the Maritza at any time before Mustapha Kemal had a chance to send reinforcements across the Bosporus.

It is understood that the British and American delegations both unofficially urged M. Venizelos to persuade the Athens Government not to permit any hostile action. But it is feared that the Greeks may get out of hand or a military leader may attempt a coup.

The Tribune has been informed that, unless a conflict between Greece and Turkey along the Maritza River, dividing Eastern and Western Thrace, precipitates hostilities, there is reason to believe that the substantial draft of the treaty will be signed in Constantinople within a few weeks.

It is asserted that the High Commissioners of Great Britain, France and Italy in Constantinople will sign the treaty for their Governments, and that an Angora representative will put his signature to it for the Nationalist Government.

This arrangement will save every one's face, because Lord Curzon will refuse to return to Lausanne, the Italians will refuse to come to Paris and the Turks are not willing to go further than Constantinople.

Ambassador Child will return to Rome tomorrow night. Admiral Bristol left here for Constantinople this evening.

ISMET'S NEW POLICY PLEASING TO LONDON

Cabinet Approves Curzon's Report, Sitting Before News From Lausanne Is Received.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Lord Curzon, when he arrived here from Lausanne this afternoon, appeared to be in excellent spirits and was much gratified at the reception accorded him. Although this was informal, it was designed to show that his conduct of negotiations at Lausanne had the full approbation of his colleagues. Lord Cromer attended to represent the King, and Premier Bonar Law headed a delegation of Ministers, including the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Derby and Ronald McNeill. The Spanish Ambassador and Sir Percy Cox, the British High Commissioner in Mesopotamia, were also present.

As soon as the first greetings were over Lord Curzon began to chaff the Premier. To mark the importance of the occasion the latter had donned a silk hat, and the British Plenipotentiary complimented him on its gorgeousness. Mr. Bonar Law was, however, able to point to the Spanish Ambassador as a companion in his reversion to prewar formalities.

When the newspaper men asked Lord Curzon for a statement he declined to give it, saying: "After the recent experience of a distinguished colleague of mine, who did give out a statement on his return from an important mission, perhaps I had better not. Besides, I am to report to the Cabinet at half past 6." Before the Cabinet meeting was held Lord Curzon went to Buckingham Palace to discuss the Near Eastern situation and the Lausanne conference with the King.

The Cabinet sat for nearly two hours and gave its general approval of the statement which Lord Curzon laid before it. It then adjourned to meet again tomorrow afternoon, with the intention of deciding whether further action might appear to be necessary.

It had not before it, however, the news of the result of M. Bompard's conversation with Ismet Pasha this morning, and this will, of course, change the situation entirely.

If in the end the Turks actually decide to sign the treaty it will not be a surprise in well informed quarters here. The departure of Lord Curzon and the British delegation, it is reckoned here, must have brought home to them the realities of the situation with painfulness and taught them that there was a limit to the procrastination in which even Oriental diplomats can safely indulge. The patience of the British negotiators has been based mainly on the realization of the Angora Government's complete inexperience of international affairs, and it is hoped that a useful lesson has been taught it.

Ismet's reported statement that he considers the Mudania armistice still in force is particularly welcome here. The British Government is anxious to maintain that status quo in the region of Constantinople. Moreover, if it were upset it would have to consider seriously the safety of its forces at Chanak and Gallipoli. It would continue to keep them there, but would probably have to send warships to afford them additional support.

The Daily Chronicle, commenting on the Turks' change of front, says that Ismet, "having now learned that the British were in earnest, and that they really meant that they had gone to the limit of concessions, has given way. In dealing with the Turks, encouraged as they sometimes are by those who should be our friends, we cannot consider anything finally settled till the treaty is actually signed. Ismet Pasha still has Angora to deal with, but the terms offered to the Turks are so much more favorable than they had any right or reason to expect, and their need of peace after eight years of war is so compelling that we may look forward with some confidence to Ismet's return and the signing of the treaty. It will not be a document that any Western power can be very proud of, but it will mean peace and the removal of one more bone of contention from the hurly-burly of our distracted Europe."

WASHINGTON ANXIOUS OVER LAUSANNE CRISIS

Administration Intends to Do All It Can to Remedy the Situation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The definitive break-up of the Near Eastern conference would be a matter of concern to the United States Government. How seriously the Government views the situation was evident from the disposition of officials today not to conceal the world dangers which such a break-up would produce.

One phase of the problem that has a special interest for this Government is found in the question whether an effort shall now be initiated by the United States to negotiate a separate treaty with the Turkish Nationalist Government. Before undertaking that procedure President Harding and Secretary Hughes would be obliged to consider its effects upon the general world political situation. The outstanding feature is the position in which a separate treaty between the United States and Turkey would place the British Government.

Such a separate treaty would weaken the position of England with reference to Turkey, and by the same token would strengthen the attitude of France, particularly if the French Government should pursue a course independent of Great Britain and negotiate a separate treaty with the new Ottoman Government. There has been much evidence lately of a desire on the part of the British Government to maintain the most cordial relationship with the United States, not only with respect to Anglo-American affairs, but also in the maintenance of world peace.

Great Britain was in accord with the proposal of this Government that the European Allies should create a fact-finding commission of international financial experts with the purpose of ascertaining the amount of reparations Germany would be able to pay to the allied Governments and to submit a plan by which these payments would be assured to the Allies. France, while not rejecting the American proposal, virtually ignored it by invading the Ruhr region, something the American proposal was designed to prevent. The British Government has been in sympathy with the reasons which induced the United States to withdraw its troops from the Rhine. Its attitude in the settlement of the British war debt to the United States is the latest instance of its friendly disposition toward America. Another count is the action of the British Government in ratifying the treaties negotiated at the Washington Conference of Limitation of Armament.

For these reasons the United States Government would be disposed to hesitate in making a separate treaty with Turkey which might weaken the position of Great Britain in the Near East. That course certainly would encourage the Turkish Nationalist regime in its resistence to British contentions for the protection of British interests in Turkish possessions.

While the United States has never recognized the action in 1914 of the Turkish Government in abrogating treaty stipulation of capitulatory rights of foreigners in the Turkish dominions, including those of American citizens, the present situation is such that a separate treaty with Turkey may be regarded as necessary to define the current rights of Americans in the territory controlled by the Nationalist Government of Mustapha Kemal.

So far as the Turkish declarations that all rights under the capitulations have been done away with, the United States Government maintains its contention that it entitled certain capitulatory rights under very definite treaty provisions with Turkey, and that the mere fact that Turkey was at war with other powers could not, of course, give Turkey the right to conceal the obligations which she had assumed under any treaty with the United States.

Yesterday's suspension of negotiations at Lausanne is considered by American officials to be a very serious breach. This Government, it is asserted, intends to do all it can to straighten out the situation, seizing every legitimate opportunity to do so.

Senator Lodge has called a meeting of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations tomorrow for a general discussion of the international situation as it affects the United States. Although it was said after a recent meeting of the committee that no occasion existed for calling Secretary Hughes for examination by the committee, it is probable that at tomorrow's session there will be an agreement to ask him to appear informally at an early date.

The purpose behind the evident desire of both Republicans and Democrats of the Committee on Foreign Relations to have Mr. Hughes as a committee witness is to obtain from him a "survey"—it was so described today—of the world situation with especial reference to the part which this Government is playing in the great international game. There seems to be no disposition, even on the part of Mr. Hughes's critics, to summon him before the committee in any formal way or to have it appear that he is to be examined along the lines of pending resolutions relating to foreign affairs.

Conditions Have Changed

Man-power is vital to the success of machine-power. Maximum productivity cannot be attained unless the human element in industry is given the same analytical thought and constructive consideration as the mechanical elements.

Yet properties of many kinds have never taken adequate steps to develop human co-operation. The result is a heavy loss to employer, employee and the community.

Conditions have changed and the minds of men have changed with them. There is only one sound foundation on which to build a harmonious, productive organization today.

That foundation is right mental attitude and a cordial relationship between employer and employee.

The only way to attain it is by practical education of individual employees to understand the problems of the business and the advantage to themselves of full co-operation.

BORAH FOR LIMITING HIGH COURT'S VETO

OFFERS BILL IN THE SENATE

Frear Proposes to Set Aside Decisions by a Two-Thirds Vote of Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Seven members of the United States Supreme Court would be required to concur before an act of Congress could be declared unconstitutional if a bill introduced in the Senate today by Senator Borah is enacted.

The bill, which Senator Borah presented in order to provoke discussion on the subject, applies only to cases in which the Court has appellate jurisdiction and not to cases in which the jurisdiction of the court is original. Its purpose is to put an end to what Senator Borah described as "five-to-four" decisions.

"These five-to-four decisions in which important acts of Congress are held unconstitutional," said Senator Borah, "have produced a vast amount of dissatisfaction throughout the country among all classes of people. A number of laws have been passed by Congress of the most vital nature which have been held unconstitutional by a five-to-four vote of the court. The wisdom of having a different rule obtain cannot be doubted.

"The question of constitutionality presents a more serious question. I find some of the great lawyers of the country have endorsed the idea contained in the bill I have presented—among others, Daniel Wanezer. My purpose in introducing the bill now is to bring about discussion and consideration and to ascertain whether an undesirable rule cannot be changed."

Law as Proposed by Borah.

The proposed law, which was referred to the Committee on Judiciary, reads:

"That in all suits now pending or which may hereafter be pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, except cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls and those in which a State shall be a party, where is drawn in question an act of Congress on the ground of repugnancy to the Constitution of the United States, at least seven members of the Court shall concur before pronouncing said law unconstitutional."

The section of the Constitution which in the opinion of many legislators makes possible such action as is suggested by Senator Borah is Paragraph 2 of Section 2 of Article III. It reads:

"In all cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls and those in which a State shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make."

The question is whether such a law as is proposed comes within the authority granted to Congress by the Constitution to make regulations which govern in matters of appellate jurisdiction.

Frear for Constitutional Change.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Congress has been likened to a messenger boy standing in the anteroom of the Supreme Court waiting for approval or disapproval of its acts Representative Frear, Republican, of Wisconsin, said today in a statement accompanying a record of closely divided Supreme Court decisions on constitutional questions which he placed in the Congressional Record.

Mr. Frear proposed a constitutional amendment giving Congress the power to determine how many members of the Supreme Court shall join in decisions declaring laws unconstitutional, to provide for the recall of Judges without impeachment or to review and set aside decisions by a two-thirds vote of both houses.

"The decision of the Supreme Court," said Mr. Frear, "declaring the Income Tax law unconstitutional by five Judges to four, followed by the emasculating of the income tax sixteenth constitutional amendment holding stock dividends nontaxable by the same vote, calls for relief and some method of enacting laws that are not in the judgment of the court supposed laws."

He also cited the finding in the Newberry case and the decision holding the Child Labor law invalid as having been handed down by closely divided courts.

Within thirty days, Mr. Frear said, the Department of Labor has called attention to the fact that 300 statutes, bills and ordinances have been set aside by the Courts in the present epidemic of Judge-made law."

"Many laws, State and national," he continued, "have been held unconstitutional by only one vote of the court, and proportionately narrow escapes in determining constitutionality are numerous."

WARSHIP SILVER PRESENTED

Special Exercises Feature Ceremonies at Brooklyn Museum.

Memories of the naval battle of Santiago, Cuba, on July 3, 1898, in which the now dismantled cruiser the U. S. S. Brooklyn took a prominent part, were recalled yesterday afternoon when the $10,000 silver service set, consisting of 496 pieces, was returned in trust to the citizens of Brooklyn with appropriate ceremonies at the Brooklyn Museum, Eastern Parkway and Washington Avenue. The service set was bought by popular subscription by the citizens of Brooklyn twenty-five years ago.

William H. Fox, director of the Museum, presided at the exercises yesterday. The speakers were Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Commander John B. Patten, U. S. N., retired, who was a lieutenant on the cruiser Brooklyn at the battle of Santiago; United States Senator William L. Calder, who with Representative Ardolph L. Kline, sponsored the legislation in Congress which authorized the return of the silver set to Brooklyn; Judge Frederick L. Crane of the Court of Appeals and Charles L. Amey, who was Chairman of the Committee on Ceremony, Spanish War Veterans.

Sergeant-Major John E. Le Sage, U. S. N., retired, who was the navy guard at the presentation of the silver service in 1898, was guard at the return of the gift to Brooklyn yesterday.

Mrs. Josephine Prescott, the widow, receives the household furniture and $1,000 insurance policy and is to have the income from the residue of the estate during her lifetime or until her remarriage, when the principal is to go to a son, Walter S. SAYS HYLAN FINANCED INQUIRY AT MER ROUGE

Letter to Louisiana Press Asserts New York Mayor Gave Funds for Klan Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 5.—As a result of the investigation of the Mer Rouge outrages, Governor John M. Parker has been the target for letters abusing him for his attitude toward the Ku Klux Klan. Numerous charges have been made as to the Governor's purpose in trying to bring the murderers to justice, but thus far he has received no letter of commendation, as far as he is able to judge, from Klansmen who believe that the murderers of T. F. Richards and Watt Daniel should be punished.

The latest letter, which has been sent to the Louisiana press, accuses Mayor Hylan of New York of furnishing the money for the investigation. In part it reads:

"The writer is in a position to know that Governor Parker received $40,000 from Mayor Hylan of New York City, with the promise of $400,000 if he would exterminate the Ku Klux Klan in Louisiana. This accounts for the money he is spending that is claimed to be his private funds. When the time comes the writer of this will prove that this is a fact. Thanking you for the space required for the publication of this letter, I am sincerely yours,

"JAMES J. JOHNSON,
"Oakdale, La."

A letter addressed to James J. Johnson, Oakdale, La., asking him to come forth immediately and reveal proof of his charges was returned by the local Postmaster with a notation that James J. Johnson was unknown there.

ACCUSES STANDARD OIL.

Witness Declares New York Company Gives Rebates to Dealers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Charges that the Standard Oil Company of New York granted rebates to gasoline dealers in parts of New York City where competition is great were made at the Senate oil investigation today by H. K. Heiss, an automobile equipment dealer of New York, who said these rebates ranged from 1 cent to 2½ cents a gallon and were arranged through secret agreements.

H. H. Willock, Secretary-Treasurer of the Waverly Oil Works Company of Pittsburgh, said, without specific mention of names, that something akin to the rebate system was practiced by Standard companies in the Pittsburgh district. He defended efforts of his company, a small independent concern, to get crude oil and added:

"Independent oil refiners for a generation have had hanging over their heads the fear of losing a crude oil supply."

"The big fellows in the oil and steel industries are pretty close," Mr. Willock asserted.

Inquiry by the committee counsel as to the price of crude oil brought from Mr. Willock the declaration that it had been "fixed arbitrarily for generations."

"If this committee can work out any way to put crude oil on an open market of supply and demand it will have solved the gasoline price problem, and it is unsolvable any other way," the witness continued. "The controlling interests in the oil business have three opportunities for making money. They can do it in producing, in transporting oil, and in refining and distributing its products."

Pennsylvania crude oil prices, Mr. Willock asserted, are controlled by the South Penn Oil Company, which belongs to the Standard group. Generally prices for crude oil went up in the Summer of 1921, he said, "for no economic reason." He advocated Government ownership of pipe lines and crude oil storage facilities.

Increased railroad rates from the Mid-continent oil field to the territory east of the Illinois-Indiana State line were blamed by J. E. Lawrence of Kansas City, representing the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association, for the increase in gasoline prices in 1920 and 1921 and for retention of prices at the comparatively higher levels.

The committee also heard Edward R. B. Jones, President of the Panhandle Refining Company of Texas, and tomorrow will hear more representatives of independent oil companies.

E. M. Barnes, head of the Department of Domestic Sales of the Standard Oil Company of New York, denied yesterday that that company engaged in the practice of giving rebates to gasoline dealers. He declined to make a formal statement regarding the question raised in the Senate oil investigation other than to say he knew of no such rebates having been given, and that they were not countenanced by the New York company as charged.

SAVANNAH TO GREET TROOPS FROM RHINE

BIG BARBECUE ON PROGRAM

Special Entertainments Provided for German Wives and Children of the Returning Soldiers.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 5.—With hundreds of visitors here to join in the celebration, Savannah is ready to welcome for the nation the American troops who will arrive Wednesday aboard the transport St. Mihiel from their "watch on the Rhine." A half holiday has been declared by Mayor Seabrook, the city has been decorated with flags, and plans have been completed for entertaining the soldiers.

Although the St. Mihiel is scheduled to arrive here at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, the exact hour is uncertain, according to a radiogram from the transport's commander, which said he thought the ship would not arrive at the Savannah lighthouse before 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

When the transport crosses Tybee Bar she will be met by the coast guard cutter with Mayor Seabrook and several Mihiel to the dock. Aboard the cutter will be Mayor Seabrood and several other officials, while members of the American Legion and representatives of shipping interests at the harbor are planning to meet the transport in tugs.

A reception committee, including Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, Mayor Seabrook and prominent Savannahians and army officers, will welcome the troops officially at the dock.

Reception plans provide for special attention for the German wives of many of the soldiers and for the children. Several of the men aboard the transport are reported on the sick list, while two are in confinement, and it is planned to provide special cars for these.

A barbecue for the enlisted men and their families, arranged by merchants of Savannah, is on the afternoon program, to follow a parade of troops assigned to Fort Screven, near here.

Immediately after the barbecue the soldiers who will be stationed at Fort Screven, numbering about 400, with their families will entrain for the fort.

A banquet in honor of the returning officers is planned as the event of the evening.

The St. Mihiel has aboard 908 enlisted men and officers, 74 German wives and 24 children. The German mother-in-law of one man is reported to be on the transport. Approximately 500 enlisted men and officers are to disembark here, those not assigned to Fort Screven or at other Southern posts to be discharged here.

The transport is expected to dock Thursday at Charleston, S. C., where a group of officers are to be landed, after which the St. Mihiel will proceed to New York.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—By direction of the War Department the commander of the army transport St. Mihiel is trying to reach the lighthouse at Savannah Harbor by 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. A radiogram from the ship, however, said the transport probably would not reach the lighthouse before 1 P. M. Wednesday.

CRAIG STARTS FIGHT TO FINISH ON MAYOR

made, and that you do so without delay."

In his statement the Controller reviewed the history of the litigation regarding the removal of the New York Central tracks and told of the Mayor's connection with it. The statement follows:

"The New York American, on the first page of its Sunday edition, published an article under the caption 'Mr. Craig's Activities Are Not in Keeping With His Pledges,' which is in an attempt not only to malign the Controller but to charge the Controller with a responsibility for Mayor Hylan's delinquencies and mistakes. The publication charged the Controller with a do-nothing policy in regard to the New York Central Riverside Park improvements.

"The facts in regard to this matter are very simple. They are entirely beyond dispute. They are a matter of record. Briefly, they are as follows:

"Under date of Nov. 14, 1918, within one week from the signing of the Armistice ending the World War, Controller Craig presented to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment a carefully worked out plan for the improvement of freight terminal transportation and waterfront conditions on the west side of the Borough of Manhattan. The plan provides for a six-track underground railroad from Fifty-ninth Street southward under Eleventh Avenue, to Twenty-seventh Street, then under Tenth Avenue to Fourteenth Street and thence under Hudson Street to a point in the vicinity of Spring Street.

"Unit terminals are provided at Thirtieth Street, Fourteenth Street and Spring Street. Access to this underground railroad by all the railroads in New Jersey is provided by modern car float transfer bridges near Thirtieth Street and below Christopher Street, as well as near the Fort Lee ferry, where connection is had with a Harlem terminal.

"Throughout the length of Riverside Park the tracks in their present location are to be covered most of the distance with a driveway paralleling the present Riverside Drive and continuing south of Seventy-second Street as a viaduct over the railroad yard, within the lines of Twelfth Avenue to Fifty-seventh Street, where the traffic is diverted and scattered through that broad thoroughfare. Roadways connect with the second stories of piers to be constructed between Fifty-ninth and Seventy-second Streets, included in which is a covered pier for the handling of refuse and street sweepings.

On Calendar After Armistice.

"A promenade or concrete walk is provided along the bulkhead line of Riverside Park along the Hudson River from Seventy-second Street to 129th Street. The landscaping of the park from the roadway down to the bulkhead will complete Riverside Park and operate to extinguish the many objectionable activities that for years have been carried on there, including the coal pockets and the dumps of the Street Cleaning Department. No one will contend that this plan should have been presented prior to the signing of the Armistice.

"My communication to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment describing this plan in detail appeared upon the calendar of that board for Nov. 15, 1918, and after discussion was ordered to appear on the calendar for Nov. 22, 1918, for informal hearing and discussion.

"The matter regularly appeared upon the calendar of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for Nov. 22, 1918, and after discussion was referred to the Committee on Finance and Budget. Without notice whatsoever to me, and doubtless knowing of its fateful effect upon the plan proposed by me, Mayor Hylan directed the Corporation Counsel immediately to bring a lawsuit against the New York Central, challenging its right to operate on the west side of Manhattan. Without notice to me such an action was begun by the Corporation Counsel against the New York Central on Dec. 10, 1918.

"While the matter was under consideration by the Committee on Finance and Budget, I prepared a map showing the changes in the street layout between Seventy-second and Fifty-ninth Streets to lay the foundation for the use of Twelfth Avenue for viaduct purposes. Twelfth Avenue has been owned by the City of New York for more than fifty years, but through the railroad yard only the New York Central derives any benefit from such ownership, the public being excluded.

"The plan which I had prepared was handed by me to the President of the Borough of Manhattan, whose function it is to sign and formally present maps affecting street changes. Accordingly on Nov. 28, 1918, the President of the Borough of Manhattan presented the map which I had previously furnished him, establishing the grade for the viaduct to be constructed along Twelfth Avenue through the railroad yards and across certain intersecting streets. This plan in the principle was similar to that used at the Grand Central Terminal, where the streets are carried on viaducts over the railroad operations conducted below.

"The Board of Estimate and Apportionment thereupon adopted a resolution calling for a public hearing on the matter on Dec. 19, 1919. The public hearing was duly held on Dec. 18, 1919, at which time a resolution was adopted approving the map and the changes. The record shows 7 present and not voting, the Mayor.'

Tells of Mayor's Action.

"Under the provisions of the charter, a change in the city's street map or plan, after being authorized by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, must be further separately approved by the Mayor in order to become effective.

"On Jan. 30, 1920, Mayor Hylan, through his Secretary, transmitted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment a copy of an opinion, rendered to Mayor Hylan at his request, by the Corporation Counsel under date of Jan. 15, 1920. In the course of which the Corporation Counsel stated that 'the elevated streets and avenue recommended by the report of the Controller) under consideration I believe would seriously prejudice the right of the City of New York,' and concluding with the recommendation 'that the plan be disapproved by you, as Mayor.'

"The matter appeared upon the calendar of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for Jan. 30, 1920, at which time it was considered and laid over for further action, on Feb. 13, 1920. On the latter date the matter was referred back to the Corporation Counsel for conference with the Controller.

"In conferences subsequently had between myself and the Corporation Counsel, the latter insisted that the City's rights in the then pending injunction instituted under the Mayor's direction on Dec. 10, 1918, would be seriously prejudiced. I protested to the Corporation Counsel that the manner and form in which the action was brought was calculated to conform to the New York Central Railroad rights that were of doubtful existence, and that no success in that lawsuit could ever be expected.

"The conduct of this litigation was placed in the hands of a special counsel, whose appointment was made under Mayor Hylan's direction, upon the recommendation of the Hearst interests. From time to time during the prosecution of the litigation Mayor Hylan made public utterances predicting successful results. The decisions, however, were the other way. The case was tried before Mr. Justice Donnelly and a jury, and judgment rendered for the railroad company.

Under the instructions of Mayor Hylan an appeal was taken to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The Appellate Division unanimously affirmed the action of the Cour below, wherein upon, in compliance with the Mayor's directions, a further appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals of the State of New York on July 12, 1922. The Court of Appeals, in an extended opinion, unanimously affirmed the judgment in favor of the railroad company, with costs against the City.

"I betray no secret when I say that the New York Central Railroad Company regarded this litigation as one of the greatest benefactions that have ever been conferred upon it. They have not concealed their elation at the strategy manifested by the counsel for the city, which resulted in confirming to the railroad rights that otherwise might never have ripened into existence.

"Following the decision of the Court of Appeals, Mayor Hylan again directed that an appeal be taken, this time to the Supreme Court of the United States. I have been patiently awaiting the outcome of the application to the Supreme Court, because the plan for the improvement of the west side terminals and the completion of Riverside Park ought not longer be delayed. I have been ready for action by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for a long time.

"It can be presented for action within a fortnight after the Supreme Court disposes of the appeal directed to be taken by Mayor Hylan. Manifestly, until this litigation has been terminated, it would be highly improper for the Controller to take any steps which might be claimed to jeopardize the city's case, or which would afford an excuse to blame him for an adverse result in the litigation.

"When The New York American expressed disappointment about the delay in the carrying forward of these plans, I followed up the matter to ascertain when the decision of the Supreme Court might be expected. The records of the clerk in the Supreme Court in Washington show that up to the present time no steps have been taken by the City of New York to prosecute any appeal in that court.

"I think I am entirely safe in saying that it is at least extremely doubtful whether any appeal of any kind could ever be taken in such a case to the Supreme Court of the United States after final judgment rendered by the Court of Appeals of the State of New York.

"The separate approval by the Mayor of the changes in the street plan affecting the Twelfth Avenue viaduct south of Seventy-second Street constitutes the first step to be taken in carrying into effect the plan proposed by me and approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment more than three years ago.

"While under such circumstances the plan could not be progressed, nevertheless at the 1919 session of the Legislature I prepared and procured the passage of a bill to prevent the use of the Riverside Park waterfront for garbage and refuse dumps and other objectionable purposes. This bill did not in any wise affect the pending litigation between the city and the railroad company; nevertheless it was disapproved and killed by Mayor Hylan. Upon the theory that the Mayor's action in vetoing this measure might possibly be the result of inadvertence, I procured its passage by the Legislature at the 1920 session.

"Again, however, the Mayor disapproved and killed the bill, the garbage and refuse dumps and other objectionable things still continue to deface and destroy Riverside Park.

"I would not have felt it necessary to discuss these matters at the present time had it not been for the attempt of The New York American to charge me with the consequences of the Mayor's fatuous course, which was well calculated to delay or defeat my plan and to continue Death Avenue and the garbage dumps."

The Controller plans to commute between Lakewood and the city for several days, while he is at his office each day and will keep close watch of developments. His first fight in the Board of Estimate probably will be on Friday, when the matter of voting $650,000 for ferry boat employes will come up for discussion.

Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, who now has jurisdiction over ferryboats, made the request. The appropriation is to pay the salaries of employes on the Union line of boats plying between Manhattan and Brooklyn. The ferry employes have received no salary since December.

YOUTH GETS 20 YEARS FOR KILLING UNION FOE

Lipschitz showed evidence of being pleased with the sentence. He elected to stand trial on a first degree murder indictment when the case was called early last week, but when Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers had concluded his case on Friday Lipschitz said to his counsel: "Save my life; this jury will send me to the electric chair."

Lipschitz denied that he had been hired to kill Levinsky. Mr. Brothers contended that he had no reason for slaying Levinsky, and intimated that the police had been informed that the killing was the result of trouble between Levinsky and non-union cutters. Judge Nott sought to induce Lipschitz to reveal the names of the men who were believed to have hired him, but he persisted in his statement that he shot Levinsky because the latter had tried to "get" him a short time before.

DRESS UNIONS VOTE FOR STRIKE TOMORROW

At a meeting of 2,000 shop chairmen of six dress and waist makers' unions at Webster Hall last night it was decided to start a general strike of 30,000 dress and waist makers at 10 A. M. tomorrow unless the Association of Dress Manufacturers, Inc., decides to give the dress industry the forty-hour week in place of the present week of forty-four hours.

The manufacturers held a meeting last night at the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building Annex, where the proposition of the forty-hour week was discussed, and the sentiment was overwhelmingly against granting the shorter week. A formal report will be made by the manufacturers' committee to the union today.

Give the unions the forty-hour week now and they will come back for week work in place of piecework next year and then they will get both," declared one of the manufacturers. Herman L. Flam, President, and Louis Rubin, manager, of the employers' association, which represents the producers in the industry, made reports of their conferences with the union committee and told the manufacturers it was up to them to decide on what they would do with the sixteen demands of the union. The demands were read for the first time to the employers, who expressed themselves as amazed at what they termed their sweeping character.

Discussion followed and the sentiment was for a test of strength. It appeared that the proposition of the 40-hour week was suggested by the manufacturers' committee to the union at the suggestion of the jobbers who sublet their work to the manufacturers. The principal demand of the union originally was for a system of week work with minimum pay in place of piece work.

At the union meeting last night an active minority led by Lena Goodman insisted that the union call a strike on the question of week work. They demanded the rejection of the report of the Conference Committee, which stated that the Conference Committee of the employers had promised to place the question of the forty-hour week before the manufacturers. The delegates were led to understand that the manufacturers would grant the forty-hour week in place of week work.

The unions have presented sixteen demands to the manufacturers. If the strike takes place 2,000 establishments will be affected.

A general strike of 10,000 workers in the children's dress industry has been called for 10 o'clock this morning. The purpose of the strike is to secure a renewal of the agreement which expired recently, according to H. Greenberg, business manager of Local 41 of the Children's Dress Union. Announcement was made that forty manufacturers had already settled with the union by signing the new agreement.

C. & E. I. SHOWS SURPLUS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Earnings of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway for 1922 reached a surplus of approximately $500,000 on Dec. 31. This is sufficient to pay nearly 3 per cent. on preferred stock, on which no dividends are payable until 1924.

The surplus was accumulated practically in the last two and a half months of the year. Early in the Fall there was a deficit of about $175,000. Settlement of the rail and coal strikes, with increased business of all kinds, is responsible for the good showing.

ASK FARRAR SUIT BE TRIED SECRETLY

Hearing Is Postponed Pending a Decision on Whether Press Shall Be Barred.

REQUEST FROM BOTH SIDES

"Spanish Type" Woman Involved in Tellegen Divorce Action Not Named at Previous Session.

The hearing in the divorce action of Geraldine Farrar against Lou Tellegen, which was to have taken place yesterday before Thomas H. Mahony, referee, was postponed until this morning, pending the decision of Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan upon a motion to make the hearings secret.

When reporters entered the hearing room at 100 East Forty-fifth Street, yesterday, Alvin Untermyer, counsel for Miss Farrar, said he had assumed the action was to be heard in private.

The referee replied he was unaware that the Court had made any decision in that respect, but would hear a motion to bar newspaper men from subsequent hearings.

"I know that both Mr. and Mrs. Tellegen do not care to air this case in public," said Mr. Untermyer, "for they feel they have already had sufficient publicity. Publicity of this sort is injurious to both sides in their business affairs."

Arthur E. Schwartz, counsel for Tellegen, also advocated secrecy and Mr. Mahony directed the lawyers to obtain an order from Justice Cohalan. Because of a cold the Justice was not in court yesterday, but is expected to be sitting today. Mr. Untermyer said last evening that application for the order would be made some time today and the divorce hearing itself would probably be postponed until tomorrow.

At the examination last week, it was learned yesterday, Marjorie Patrick Schuller of 2 St. Nicholas Place, Miss Farrar's Secretary and advance agent, identified members of the cast of "Blind Youth" in a group picture that was showed her. Tellegen, who is starring in the play, is in the group. Although Miss Farrar's action is said to be based upon Tellegen's alleged acts of misconduct with an actress, Miss Schuller's testimony did not supply the woman's name, it was learned.

It was also disclosed that August Larsen, Deputy Sheriff at Long Beach, and Jack Bogandus, restaurant owner, testified at the earlier hearing, that the woman is alleged to have lived with Tellegen at Long Beach, and who has been mentioned in the case as the "Spanish type" woman, was known to them as the actor's step-sister.

PROMOTES USE OF FISH.

Markets Department Has Women at Dinner in Pennsylvania.

A fish dinner arranged under the direction of the Department of Public Markets in co-operation with the Middle Atlantic Fisheries' Association was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday.

At the invitation of Mrs. Louis Reed Weismiller, Deputy Commissioner of Markets, 150 women representing various women's organizations of the city were among the guests. Mrs. Weismiller, who presided, said that fish is a healthful, wholesome and nourishing food and should be eaten more.

Dr. Royal C. Copeland said fish could be eaten every day in the year without ill-effects.

Dr. Lyman Flake, President of the Life Extension Institute, declared that a liberal diet of fish is the surest road to long life. William Fellowes Morgan Jr., President of the Middle Atlantic Fisheries' Association, urged that fish be eaten at least twice a week. He declared that the idea of Friday only as a fish day was absurd. He advocated buying fish in a frozen state.

Mr. Morgan said that no other industry is so uncertain of its production, either as to quantity, time or location, as the fish business. He said that no other industry does 80 per cent. of its business on one day of the week, and that no men work harder and get less return on their investment than those in the fish business.

Other speakers were Edwin J. O'Malley, Markets Commissioner; David M. Newburger, Miss Ann Pennington of the United States Bureau of Fisheries; Mrs. Ida C. Bailey Allen, Joseph Burger of the United States Restaurant Owners' Association and Nathaniel Phillips.

WOULD BAR ASIATICS, REDUCE ALL QUOTAS

House Committee Adopts Provisions to Halve Annual Total of Immigrants.

MORE RELATIVES CAN ENTER

But All Would-Be Immigrants Must Obtain Consular Certificates Before Sailing.

EXCLUSION CLAUSE BROAD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Radical proposals to limit immigration were approved by the House Committee on Immigration today when clauses were adopted which would exclude Japanese, Chinese and low-caste Hindus and cut almost in two the total admissible from all other countries as compared with the total admissible under the present law.

The reduction in the total would be accomplished by allowing to enter this country hereafter only 2 per cent. of the naturalized nationals under the 1890 census, as against the present 3 per. cent. of the nationals who were listed in the 1910 census.

In normal operation this would cut the number of immigrants to 198,437 a year. Of these 17,000 represent 400 from each of the forty-four nations resident here who are arbitrarily added by the committee to the actual quotas derived from the 1890 census. The total admissible annually at the present time is 358,023.

The other new clause would liberalize the law relative to admission of parents and relatives of naturalized citizens. The wife, father, mother, unmarried minor children, unmarried minor brother or sister of a naturalized citizen, the unmarried minor orphan, niece or nephew of a citizen of the United States, would be admitted, also an immigrant who is the husband, wife or unmarried child of an alien, who has been permanently admitted to the United States, or has resided at least two years prior to the filing of the application or has made declaration of intention to become a citizen.

How Exclusion Is Brought About.

The exclusion of Asiatics is brought about by adoption of this provision:

An immigrant not eligible to citizenship shall not be admitted to the United States unless within the class specified in subdivisions C, E or H of Section 4, or unless the wife or minor child of an immigrant described in such subdivision E.

These exceptions refer to an immigrant returning from a temporary visit abroad, a minister of the gospel, a professor of a college or seminary or a member of any recognized learned profession. Students are also allowed to enter provided they designate the college at which they intend to pursue their studies.

When asked tonight whether he expected a protest from the State Department on this provision, Chairman Johnson said:

"This provision is in accordance with the United States Supreme Court decision and does not interfere with any treaties. In this provision we are only attempting to write into law the terms of the gentleman's agreement between the United States and Japan. That's all we have done. If this agreement has been lived up to faithfully, there can be no objections raised by the Japanese Government or the State Department to the proposal."

Leading members of the committee believe that they are justified in excluding the Japanese, in view of the recent Supreme Court decision which decided that the Japanese could not become citizens.

While the committee has had the bill under consideration many months and it was known that the majority favored an exclusion provision dealing with the Japanese especially, no protest has been heard from the State Department. Members of the committee say that the bill will be reported this week containing this section, whether the State Department offers the usual diplomatic objections or not.

In the committee today no objection was made to the exclusion provision. On the other hand, several unsuccessful attempts were made to enlarge the percentage quotas. Representative Sabath offered an amendment to maintain the present 3 per cent. quota. This was defeated as was a motion by him to base the 2 per cent. limitation on the census of 1900.

The reason for adopting the 1890 census as a basis was to reduce the percentage of immigrants from Southern Europe and increase the relative admissions from Northern and Western Europe.

Present and Proposed Quotas.

The number of immigrants from the principal countries allowed to enter the United States under the present 3 per cent. law and the number that would be admitted normally under the proposed 2 per cent. clause, apart from the 400 allowed to each country, compare as follows:

Chairman Johnson said that the new immigration bill would be offered as an amendment to the measure passed by the Senate today granting admission to Armenian refugees, inasmuch as but twenty-three legislative days remain in this session, the indications are that such an important measure as this will not be enacted into law.

To Limit Rush on Other Side.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Aliens seeking to come to the United States would be required under the new law to obtain certificates of entry from American Consuls. These certificates would be limited in number to the quota for each country, the purpose being to prevent an inrush of immigrants who would have to be turned back from American ports after they had broken up their homes overseas.

Steamship companies transporting immigrants without such certificates would be subject to fines, and, in addition, would be required to refund through collectors of customs the passage money of such immigrants.

In each of the first ten calendar months of any fiscal year there would be issued no more certificates than 10 per cent. of the quota for each nationality, and in the twelfth month there could be issued the remainder, if any, of such quotas.

Illustrating how the new percentage plan would work out, committeemen said today that Italy's quota would be reduced from the present 42,000 to 5,000, while the quota for Germany, for instance, would be increased from 55,000 to 68,000. The quotas for Great Britain, France, Belgium and the Scandinavian countries also would be increased, while those for Poland, Russia and the Balkan States would be decreased.

Committeemen said the problem was that of assimilation and that experience had shown that immigrants from the north and west of Europe were more easily assimilated than were those from the other sections.

DENY JAPAN PROPOSES IMMIGRATION PARLEY

Warren and Hanihara at Honolulu Assert Present Relations With America Are Satisfactory.

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Charles B. Warren, retiring American Ambassador to Tokio, and Masano Hanihara, newly appointed Japanese Ambassador to Washington, both here today on their way to the United States, denied that Japan had any intention at present of reopening negotiations on the immigration question with the United States.

The statements of the two diplomats were made in answer to questions which grew out of recent advices from Tokio that Mr. Hanihara had been instructed to reopen immigration conversations at Washington and subsequent dispatches from Washington that the American Government had had no advices to that effect.

On the subject of American-Japanese relations, Mr. Warren said:

"I regard any potential danger in relations between Japan and the United States as having disappeared. Harmony rules among the nations bordering the Pacific.

"Japan is carrying out the terms of the Washington Disarmament Treaty as well as any other nation. She is not scrapping any battleships, and will not do so as long as France and Italy hold off their ratifications of that agreement. I am certain, however, that Japan intends to live up to the provisions of the pact."

Mr. Hanihara declared that Japan was satisfied with the way the gentlemen's agreement was working in the immigration matter.

YALE JUNIORS HOLD ANNUAL PROMENADE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—Yale's annual social week, paradoxically speaking, was held today. Through a chain of circumstances it has been curtailed from the chain of yearly events which usually began on a Friday and lasted until the following Wednesday morning. This year the final contraction of the series of festivities occurred when the undergraduates decided not to hold the sophomore, junior and senior class Germans, although the faculty encouraged holding them.

Postwar conditions, including heavy expenses and general economy among undergraduates has limited the number in attendance at the junior promenade, only about 500 couples dancing tonight against nearly double that number in the ante-war days.

Tonight's promenade was held in the Yale dining hall. The dance was led by Charles M. O'Hearn of Boston, floor manager of the Junior Promenade Committee, dancing with Miss Mary Campbell of New York City.

This afternoon the historic wooden spoon banquet was held at the Hotel Taft. At this annual event the "nutritional token" is given to the Chairman of the Junior Promenade Committee, who this year is Ted Blair of Dallas, football tackle for two seasons.

Members of the committee assert that the story started about Miss Ula Sharon of the Greenwich Village Follies Company being snubbed in any way appears to be a fabrication. Hale Cullom of the junior class, whose family and that of Miss Sharon, or Miss Ellia Robinson, her real name, are lifelong friends, invited the young woman.

When press agent stories about a scandal attending the event appeared, Cullom asked the committee if it had opposed his bringing his friend here. He was assured it had not, and that the committee had full confidence in Cullom's selection of his partner.

In former years many members of the stage have graced the promenade by their presence, and the Junior Promenade Committee stated tonight that it saw no reason why the custom should be stopped.

This afternoon tea dances were held at the Cloister, Colony, York Hall, Franklin Hall and Vernon Hall, the Sheffield Scientific School fraternity houses and germans will be danced in them tomorrow.

Today the Yale-Dartmouth swimming meet attracted many of the promenade guests, and the University Dramatic Association gave Synge's comedy, "The Playboy of the Western World." Tomorrow the Yale-Dartmouth hockey game and the Yale-Union basketball game will be played.

DETECTIVES OPPOSE POLITICS IN BUREAU

Seek Law to Provide for Public Hearing Before Transfer Is Made.

A committee of detectives representing the Detective Endowment Association called on Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright yesterday in an effort to obtain his approval of a measure the association plans to introduce in the State Legislature within a week. The bill provides that detectives shall be given a public hearing before they are transferred by Police Commissioners out of the Detective Bureau. Commissioner Enright made no statement.

Detectives have had such a measure under consideration for some time and have speeded up their agitation for it since the transfer within the past few days of seven detectives to street patrol duty, it was said at Police Headquarters.

Representatives of the association say that great injustice has been done to detectives under former administrations when they were ordered out of the bureau for no given reason. They assert that in the past politicians have used their influence to reduce detectives for personal reasons.

PERSHING SQUARE BUILDING

42d Street Opposite Grand Central Terminal

No. 1 Pershing Square.

Said the Downtown Lawyer To the Uptown Lawyer

When The FORMER Arrived Late in Court

"I cannot understand how you can reach the court more quickly from your office at 42nd Street than I can from mine which is but five blocks away."

"The longest way round is often the shortest way there," replied the uptown lawyer. "You are too near to ride and too far to walk so that you are apt to misjudge your time. It takes me exactly eight minutes by subway from my office to the court."

Even law firms bound by tradition to the downtown section are finding it necessary and convenient to move with the tide of their clients to the Grand Central Zone.

And every business concern today should consider the advisability of being in the most accessible location in New York and in the largest building in the Grand Central Zone—the Pershing Square Building.

ORDER HIRSHFIELD TO APPEAR IN COURT

Directed to Show Cause Why He Should Proceed With Almirall Grand Jury Investigation.

EX-JUROR STARTS SUIT

Complaint Asserts That Commissioner Is Exceeding His Power in Holding Up Jurors' Fees.

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield was directed yesterday to appear before Supreme Court Justice Guy on Thursday to show why he should proceed with his investigation of the Almirall Grand Jury. Suit to enjoin the Commissioner was started by Charles Friedenberg of 17 State Street, an ex-Grand Juror.

Commissioner Hirshfield based his investigation on alleged doubts that the members of the Almirall Grand Jury, which spent nearly two years in the vain pursuit of "the overshadowing crime," had put in all the time in service to the county that was indicated on their claims for fees. Hirshfield's attempted investigation on this point has been in progress for several months, the payment of fees being held up in the meantime.

In his application for an injunction to stop the investigation, Mr. Friedenberg asserted that Justice Mullan had decided the fees must be paid and that Hirshfield was exceeding his powers. Commissioner Hirshfield yesterday told of many efforts which he had made to examine Mr. Friedenberg. He asserted that the ex-Grand Juror has avoided examination on various pretexts.

LEPER IS SENT TO BELLEVUE

Paroled Prisoner, Serving Four-Year Term, Is Removed to Hospital.

Vasilios Moriatis, who had been serving a sentence of four years in Dannemora Prison for larceny, and was paroled ten days ago, was taken from the prison to Bellevue Hospital yesterday, suffering from leprosy.

When the prison physicians noticed the seriousness of his condition they placed him in a room by himself. Detective D. L. Wright of the prison kept the man in a corner of a smoking car on the trip to Bellevue. It is believed the disease is not contagious in this climate. Moriatis came to this country from Greece eighteen years ago. He was sentenced by Judge Dike in the County Court in Brooklyn and had served two years and eight months of his term. He had previously served a term in Sing Sing for larceny. He lived at 686 Third Avenue before his arrest, and was a florist.

INSURES LIFE FOR MILLION.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Jay Curdy Hills, who is reported as having today taken out in New York a policy of life insurance for $1,000,000, has long been known to the furniture trade in the Middle West.

He began his active career in 1887, following various occupations until in 1893 he became connected with a furniture house. In 1896 Mr. Hills established an independent business, which in 1902 was incorporated as the Peck & Hills Furniture Company, of which he is the President. The company maintains two wholesale establishments in this city.

Mr. Hills is married and has one son, Gerald T. Hills. He resides at Pasadena, Cal., but is a member of several Chicago clubs.

RAIL WAGES STAND FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Labor Board Decisions Assure Present Rates for Train, Yard and Engine Employes.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5 (Associated Press)—Preservation of existing wage rates and working rules for train, yard and engine service employes on all the railways of the country for another year was assured tonight by two decisions of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

In the first decision the Board postponed further action in the cases of seventeen railways and nine subsidiary lines which sought reductions of wages and revision of working rules until "some date subsequent to Oct. 1, 1923."

The second decision postponed for the same period action on cases submitted on a large number of roads by the firemen's organization in which a rule was requested to compel the railways to employ two firemen on the larger engines.

Other cases filed by the employes on a large number of roads asking pay for men while away from home because of the nature of their runs, but not on duty, also were postponed until after next October.

DISINHERITED, ASKS NEW ADMINISTRATOR

Grosvenor Nicholas Says Father's Friend Is Hostile to Him in $3,000,000 Will Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Feb. 5.—Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreu today reserved decision on the application of Grosvenor Nicholas, importer, of 60 Broadway, for the removal of Harry Lee of this place as temporary administrator of the $3,000,000 estate of his father, George S. Nicholas of 44 Park Avenue, Manhattan, who died on Sept. 13, 1922, at West Islip, L. I.

Grosvenor Nicholas, who was disinherited by his father because of his "unfilial attitude," objected to the filing of the will and asked for a trial by jury of the issues involved, contending that his father was incompetent and had been unduly influenced by other members of the family. The Court appointed Harry Lee, temporary administrator.

BREAD 2 CENTS IN CHICAGO.

If Chain Store "War" Continues Housewives May Soon Get It Free.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Bread, a 16-ounce loaf, at that, will cost 2 cents in Chicago tomorrow, and if the "great bread war" which is raging between Chicago's two largest chain bakeries—The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Stores and the Piggly-Wiggly Stores—keeps up much longer, housewives may soon be carrying home their bread free for dealing with the respective systems. Tomorrow morning bread in the former concern drops to 2 cents a loaf.

The fight started last Friday when the Piggly-Wiggly stores came out with an announcement of a drop in the price of bread from 5 to 4 cents a loaf. The Atlantic and Pacific stores at once followed it up with a drop to 3½ cents. And since then the fight has raged.

The Piggly-Wiggly stores this afternoon announced a drop to 2½ cents, and the Atlantic and Pacific followed this up with the drop to 2 cents for tomorrow.

HAVE SLEEPING SICKNESS.

7-Year-Old Boy and Clerk Ill; Little Girl Under Observation.

Two cases of sleeping sickness were reported yesterday. Leonardo Todaro, 7 years old, was removed from St. Barnabas's Home, 304 Mulberry Street, to Bellevue Hospital. His sister Josephine, 4 months old, was also taken to the hospital for observation. It is believed that she also may be suffering from the disease. Philip Salvatoro, 35 years old, a clerk, of 160 West Seventy-ninth Street, was found on the sidewalk at Ralph and Putnam Avenues, Brooklyn, and removed to Bushwick Hospital.

The Todaro children were placed in St. Barnabas's Home about a week ago by their father, Joseph Todaro, a pushcart peddler, of 125 Elizabeth Street, after their mother had become ill and was removed to Bellevue.

MUST NAME HARDING, DECLARES WATSON

the Republican Party was very much on the down grade. We could read that in the faces of the Republican leadership as well as in the returns of all elections recently held. But we did not know that there was to be a confession upon the pat of the Republican leadership in this body that it was impotent, that it was leaderless, and that something had to be done to rehabilitate it. No higher authority could be cited than the selection of the distinguished Senators from New York and Wisconsin to be assistant leaders on that side of the chamber.

"I congratulate my two colleagues on their promotion and at the same time commiserate with some of the older Senators who have not been so honored. I had thought my friend Mr. Curtis, of Kansas, who has been assistant leader, was able to take care of himself and that he had earned the high honor his colleagues had thrust upon him in the last caucus of the majority. I had also been of the opinion that the able Senator from Indiana had made good as one of the assistant leaders on that side of the aisle.

"We read in the papers every few days that he (Mr. Watson) was up at the White House conferring with the President and that on the next day he would express the Executive's views on the floor of the Senate. It seems, however, that these two great past masters in the art of debate (Watson and Curtis) are to be dethroned and that two others (Wadsworth and Lenroot) are to take their places. We are told that Mr. Wadsworth was selected because the Conservative wing must be taken care of and that Mr. Lenroot was selected as the representative of the Progressive wing.

Thinks Two Assistants Not Enough.

"I will say to the distinguished leader of the majority that if he is going to have assistants to take care of every wing, two is not enough. * * * I do not know that the Senator from New York will admit in the next campaign that he is a conservative. Of course, we know that if it had been left to certain Senators to choose a Progressive to represent their element, they would have chosen Mr. Lenroot. I have in mind that group represented by the Iowa Senator, Mr. Brookhart; the Wisconsin Senator, Mr. La Follette; the Nebraska Senator, Mr. Norris, and various others of that group. Had they selected the leader there would have been no question of the selection of the junior Senator from Wisconsin. It would have been unanimous.

"So I presume the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts took it for granted that Mr. Lenroot would be acceptable to that Progressive element. I do not know how the Senator from Kansas feels about this, but I am sure that some of his colleagues will come to his rescue, because no Senator sits in this chamber more patiently all the time responding to his name and telling his colleagues how to vote when they come in and do not know how to vote than does the Kansas Senator. He votes louder than anybody else here, so there may be no mistake how to vote."

After referring to the fact that Senators Wadsworth and Lenroot opposed the high wool rates in the last bill, and could not have been selected because of that record, Senator Harrison said:

"I would also like to know why my friend, Senator Gooding, was left out, as well as my distinguished friend from Utah, Mr. Smoot, or the Senator from New Mexico, Mr. Bursum. They are all wool and a yard wide. * * *

"It is a peculiar thing that in the same paper of yesterday, announcing the appointment of these two assistant leaders, there appeared an article from Indianapolis, carrying big headlines, reading: 'Two Presidential booms in Indiana.' And then in the next line, 'Beveridge and Watson are Mentioned as Successors to Mr. Harding.' And in that same paper there was another article headed: 'President Harding's Friends Reject the Idea that He Can Be Coaxed Out of the Renomination.'

"They are putting something over on you," said Mr. Harrison, addressing Senator Watson. "They are afraid to let you be assistant leader any longer; they are afraid your clarion voice will ring out and you will make such a record in this body that you might gum the cards in the next Republican National Convention."

Lodge Displeased by Reports.

After Senator Watson had replied to Senator Harrison, Senator Lodge took the floor to deny that he had named Wadsworth and Lenroot as assistant floor leaders. In part he said:

"It is enough for me to say that the only power that can create officers in the Republican organization is the Republican conference. I have no power whatever to create assistant leaders or any other offices for the conference, or to appoint such officers, and I have appointed no assistant leaders. I consult with all and I have asked many of the Republicans in the Senate at different times to aid me, and I shall continue to do so.

"From the confused reports in the newspapers almost anything might be drawn. There is no truth in any of these reports that have been filling the newspapers. Their perfect unreliability is shown by a report that I am so enfeebled and so weary that I do not intend to be the leader of the Senate if my colleagues should be good enough to choose me again for that position."

Mr. Lodge went on to praise the services of Senators Curtis and Watson. He said of the latter that there was "no Senator here with whom I have consulted more or whose advice I have more often taken."

It was evident that the published report concerning the selection of Senators Lenroot and Wadsworth as floor assistants to Senator Lodge was not pleasant reading to some Administration leaders, especially Senator Lodge. He declared it was "rubbish." The fact remains, however, that the information came from an authoritative source and was sent to the press gallery in the form of a typewritten statement.

Strawberries

are very much in season just now for it is very smart and French to adorn one's umbrella with a tempting cluster of this luscious fruit, in place of the prosaic cord loop.

L'Espagne

is an overblouse of seemingly mixed nationality. Its origin is essentially Spanish for it is nothing less than a Spanish shawl transformed into a costume blouse; but it bears a striking resemblance to the Chinese Mandarin coat and is, of course, French by adoption.

If You Have Tiers—

upon your skirt or frock—do not shed them now. The mode demands them and le beau monde awards them to all who can wear them with becoming grace. "Tiers, countless tiers," is fashion's decree.

Tiny Tucks and Bright Bits of Color

are two prerequisites of a modish frock. Hence, this one is tucked at the neck, sleeves and waist and permits a brightly colored print to adorn the neck and form a peasant sleeve which peeps out beneath another of elbow length. The frock is of black silk and costs but 59.50

SOVIET STIRRED UP JAPAN AGAINST US

TOKIO PRESS IS SUSPICIOUS

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 4.—"Delayed by censor" cables from Tokio printed here today indicate that the Japanese are upset by the Soviet Government's grant of a Sakhalin concession to the Sinclair oil interests. The cables speak ominously about the use by America of two ports on the eastern side of the island as being "an American imperialist manoeuvre" comparable to the Russian occupation of Port Arthur and Dalny after the Chino-Japanese war of 1894. It is already an open secret that the Japanese were so anxious to make terms with Soviet Russia as to be willing, if forced to it, to give up Northern Sakhalin. But that leading Japanese newspapers should talk about the Sinclair concession as a real danger to Japan proves that the anti-American, anti-Russian, sentiment has a firmer hold than any save the scaremongers seem to have imagined.

I regret to say that I failed entirely to realize the importance of the Sinclair concession when it was published with rather triumphant comment by the Russian press. In the first place, it struck me as unimportant that any private concern should receive the privilege of exploiting territory which did not belong to the second contracting party. In the second place, I did not believe that the said private concern could influence the national policy of the United States any more than Mr. Urquhart could influence the policy of England.

But I failed to take into account what I now realize was the real purpose of this concession from the Russian side—merely its effect upon Japan. To suppose that Secretary Hughes will recognize Russia in order to do a favor to the Sinclair corporation is as absurd as to expect Lord Curzon to invite M. Tchicherin to breakfast for love of Mr. Urquhart.

But the Japanese do not know that, and the Russians apparently knew that they did not. The subtle Oriental minds of the Japanese seem to have constructed an elaborate theory about America's supporting the Russian claim to Sakhalin for the sake of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation in the first instance, and in the second to acquire naval bases in Sakhalin for use against Japan. Probably today there are worthy Japanese statesmen telling one another, "Now we know why Secretary Hoover and his American Relief Administration poured $80,000,000 worth of food into Russia." If any one questioned this dictum he could reply: "But in Northern Sakhalin there is—or is said to be—oil; and oil is the real cause of modern wars."

Granting the fact that certain newspapers have done their best to convince a long-suffering public that this is so, the truth is that today the world's oil production, not including any Russian fields previously exploited or potential, is in excess of the demand. But that did not matter to the Soviet Government, which has undoubtedly succeeded in its purpose in granting the Sinclair concession: to make the Japanese feel that their tenure of Northern Sakhalin was altogether illegal, temporary and hazardous—which, anyway, is good political poker-playing.

Mr. Urquhart has recently been allowed to present his own case in the columns of the Soviet official press, and, what is more remarkable, a reply to him tended to show that he was pretty nearly right in his contention that his own particular contract would be a good thing for Russia, as well as for Mr. Urquhart, which, of course, means that the contract is very likely to be ratified, after all, in the not too distant future, with certain modifications in favor of Russia.

The real points at issue were: First, that the Soviet Government was required to pay a considerable sum, cash down, to Mr. Urquhart for the privilege of returning to him on long lease his former vast mineral holdings; secondly, that he had the right to "hire and acquire" as he pleased. But the Soviet Government has not overmuch ready cash, and, in the second place, the Russian labor federations do not like any one to tread on their toes. But, just as behind the Sinclair business there was an indirect feeler thrust out toward Japanese sentiment, the Urquhart affair is not only the question of England, but also of the United States and Germany—especially the last.

Leslie Urquhart is the Chairman of Russo-Asiatic Consolidated, Ltd., a British mining corporation which before the war had vast holdings in Siberia. In September of last year it was announced that a contract was about to be signed by which the Soviet Government would restore the corporation's 2,500,000 acres, pay it $50,000,000 compensation for seizure and give it a ninety-nine-year lease of the property, the corporation to pay 6 per cent. royalty to the Government. Later Premier Lenin was reported to have rejected the agreement on account of the anti-Russian position taken by the British delegates at the Lausanne Conference.

HAYWOOD GETS NEW JOB.

Bolsheviki Employ Him to Encourage Americans to Take Land in Russia.

MOSCOW, Feb. 5.—New and non-political jobs have been found for William D. Haywood and Ludwig Martens, the latter former Soviet representative in the United States. Since Haywood's resignation from the Kuzbas colony, he has undertaken to encourage Americans to settle on the land and establish an efficient agricultural system.

Martens is now at the head of the patent department and has just presented a plan to permit inventors to profit individually.

REPLACED PRECIOUS STONES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—An extraordinary theft in a fashionable house in Charlottenburg came to light yesterday and the discovery was followed by the arrest of half a dozen persons said to be implicated.

A wealthy manufacturer noticed several days ago that one of his pearl shirt buttons had developed a loose joint and went to a jeweler to have it repaired. A few days later the setting of another shirt button needed looking after. It was then that the jeweler asked the owner if he thought his pearls genuine.

"Certainly," was the reply. "They were wedding presents, and I have used them for fourteen years."

The jeweler said if that was the case there must be a clever thief in the rich man's house, for the pearls certainly were imitations.

His suspicions aroused, the manufacturer had all of his very valuable family heirlooms and jewelry examined, and it was found that in all cases the diamonds, pearls and other precious stones had been replaced by imitations. His servant girls confessed that they had loaned the jewelry to their men friends, who had effected the changes.

History Written While Making

WHEN the World War started, The New York Times began to collect written facts and certified documents relating to the conflict and what led up to it. The search was thorough and exhaustive and the result is a 20-volume history of the great war written in living words.

MEN who took part in the actual fighting, men who were in the diplomatic service, men who occupied points of vantage, trained writers and skilled observers, wrote accounts and descriptions on the very ground and while hostilities were on.

MAN DIES IN BATH AS DOCTORS WORK

HOLD AUTOPSY TODAY

Revolver With Two Empty Shells Near By—Letters Tell Suicidal Intent—May Be Apoplexy.

Daniel Leary, 65 years old, an exporter of tallow candles at 320 West Forty-second Street, was found dying in the bathtub of his apartment at 210 West Ninety-sixth Street last night. He expired while two doctors were trying to discover what was the mater with him. For hours after his death physicians and detectives tried in vain to discover the cause of death. An autopsy will be held today.

The police said it was one of the most mysterious cases they had ever had to deal with. While everything pointed to the conclusion that Leary had intended to commit suicide, there was nothing to show that he had succeeded in taking his own life. In fact, the most plausible theory was that he had fallen in his attempt at self-destruction, or that his nerve had failed him, and that he had died of shock or apoplexy.

He was lying in six inches of hot water when found. Under his body was a .38 calibre revolver, two chambers empty. There were two bullet holes in the wall, and one cartridge shell was found on the floor. The other shell was missing. In the next room were found several letters, dated last Saturday, addressed to his wife, his physician and the Irving National Bank. All disclosed his intention to commit suicide and dealt with the settlement of his affairs.

There was no bullet wound in Leary's body. He had not been drowned, for his head was out of the water, resting against the edge of the tub. He had not been scalded to death. There was no sign of poison.

Leary's body was discovered by his wife, Mrs. Maude Leary of 140 West Seventy-second Street, from whom he had been separated three years; his physician, Dr. Alfred Wallin of 468 West 145th Street, and Dr. Joseph Price of 42 Wadsworth Avenue, a colleague of Dr. Wallin.

Mrs. Leary said her husband had been threatening suicide for three weeks. She went to his apartment at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, failed to get in, and then went to Dr. Wallin, waiting for him until after 8 o'clock, to return to the apartment. They said Leary had been suffering from cancer of the throat for years and had experienced recent business reverses.

SMITH NOT PLANNING ANY MORE REMOVALS

Governor, Here to Attend Funeral and Wedding, 'Not Looking for Any One's Job.'

Governor Alfred E. Smith, who has been in the city since last week, will attend a funeral and a wedding today. The funeral will be that of Mrs. George Van Namee, wife of the Governor's executive secretary, who died on Sunday. Following the funeral services the remains will be taken to Watertown, N. Y., for burial.

The wedding the Governor will attend will be that of the daughter of Honorary Deputy Fire Chief William F. Kenny. The ceremony will be held at St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Governor said it was doubtful if he would be able to attend the funeral of Deputy Fire Chief John Binns, who died on Sunday.

A delegation from the Board of Trade were among those who called upon the Governor yesterday. Asked if he intended to remove any other Commissioner from office, the Governor replied that he had no intention of removing any one so long as he is efficient. He said he was "not looking for any one's job." The Governor added that he removed Commissioner Law of the Tax Department partly because he thought all his Commissioners should be in sympathy with the policies of the State's Chief Executive and should not carry over from a previous administration policies and ideals different from his own.

The Governor was asked for an opinion regarding the decision of the Boxing Commission not to allow the Dempsey-Wills fight to be held in this State. He refused to discuss the matter. There is one vacancy on the commission caused by the expiration of the term of George K. Morris, Republican State Chairman, which has not been filled.

LIPSCHITZ GETS 20 YEARS.

Boy Who Killed Union Foe Escapes Chair by Plea of Guilty.

A sentence of from twenty years to life was imposed yesterday by Judge Nott in General Sessions on William Lipschitz, 19, of 278 Cherry Street, who pleaded guilty last week to shooting and killing Benjamin Levinsky, a union clothing cutter, in the hallway of 715 Broadway on the morning of Dec. 5 last.

"I think the facts leave no doubt that you were sent by others to commit this crime," said Judge Nott, in sentencing the slayer. "While there is no legal proof, there is reason to believe that this was not the first homicide in which you were concerned. Because of your youth, the circumstantial character of the evidence, and that there was no eyewitness to the killing, you were permitted to plead guilty to second degree murder. The sentence of from twenty years to life imprisonment is all the consideration that can be shown you."

evening before she went home. For the first two weeks she signed the notes "Pearl Moore" and "Norma Smith," but as the Indian's missives increased in their ardor he addressed her as "Indian Moon" and she responded with "Indian Prince."

His came to the counter each evening, she said, and in several of his notes to her complained that she did not talk to him as much as he desired. It developed that in his conversations with the young woman White Horse on one occasion spoke of an Indian girl in the West with whom he was in love at one time. Reference to this girl was contained in one of the twenty notes which Mrs. Smith wrote. This one read:

"My dear Indian Prince. Do you love me as much as her? I hope you do, dear. We will send those two cats out to her. YOUR INDIAN MOON."

"P. S.—I love this name better than any I ever had, and will continue to use it."

The note referred to two cats which kept him company in his rounds of the store at night.

On Liner Which Sank Republic.

Other papers found in White Horse's pockets showed that he was a member of the crew of the Lloyd-Italian liner Florida which at dawn on Jan. 23, 1909, rammed and sank the White Star liner Republic about 175 miles east of Ambrose Light. The 1,700 passengers of the Republic and the Florida were rescued by the White Star liner Baltic. The members of the crews of the three vessels received silver medals for their work in the rescue from the saloon passengers of the Baltic.

White Horse left his home in Oklahoma at the beginning of the war in 1914 and joined the Canadian army. He was gassed in France and later was discharged. When America entered the war in 1917 he joined the A. E. F. and was shot in the left leg. Newspaper clippings found among his effects revealed that he was known in the West as "the hard-luck hero." He was a full-blooded Cherokee and a son of Chief White Horse of the Oklahoma tribe. A friend called at the station last evening and said that White Horse was 39 years old and lived with him at 507 West Street. He said that White Horse from his boyhood had shown a fondness for the sea, but had recently announced his intention to marry and settle down in this city.

LAMAR ON BROADWAY, FAILS TO SURRENDER

'Wolf of Wall Street' Calls at Office While Lawyers Are Out, Then Goes Away.

David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," did not surrender yesterday to the Federal authorities for transportation to the Essex County, N. J., penitentiary, where he must serve one year for fomenting strikes in munition plants during the war. He did not communicate with either Thomas B. Felder or Harold P. Spielberg, his counsel, or Assistant United States Attorney John B. Joyce.

At noon, while both Mr. Felder and Mr. Spielberg were absent from their office at 165 Broadway, Lamar, they heard, had called, inquired for them, walked up and down the hall for a few minutes and then departed. He did not announce his coming or leave word when he would be back. In calling at the office of his counsel Lamar kept his promise technically, which he made last week.

Mr. Felder said that Lamar had been ill and for a time was confined to his home at Pittsfield, Mass., but that he had recovered sufficiently last Wednesday to journey to this city. He also said that the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, which furnished the $25,000 bond for Lamar, had not yet made any move in the matter.

OFFICER SICK, LINER HALTED

Public Health officials at Quarantine delayed the Cunarder Caronia for more than half an hour when she arrived yesterday with passengers and mail from Liverpool because J. H. Woods, the second officer, was suffering from a cold in the head. The officer explained that he had contracted the cold on the bridge, and this was confirmed by Dr. J. A. Corbitt, the ship's surgeon.

The Health Officer, however, would not pass Mr. Woods, and sent the Quarantine boat to bring another of his colleagues. After a consultation they allowed the ship to proceed up the harbor.

Captain E. G. Diggle, master, said the liner had passed through a hurricane, with high head seas, early Wednesday morning, and that one big wave which came over the port bow smashed two ventilators, carried away another with a heavy wooden ladder, stove in a door on the A deck and flooded some of the officers' cabins. Chief Officer R. L. Alexander, with Bo'sun's Mate William Enright, Carpenter's Mate John McTaggart and eight seamen, risked their lives to go forward and lash a tarpaulin over the hole left in the deck where the ventilator had been swept away.

The liner brought 24 first, 86 second and 113 third class passengers from Liverpool and Queenstown.

EDWIN HUGHES PLAYS.

Pianist Gives Rarely Heard Works of Liszt in His Program.

Edwin Hughes, the pianist, played to a large audience in Aeolian Hall last night, prefacing his program with rarely heard works of Liszt—the "Canzonetta del Salvator Rosa," an "Eclogue" and "Funerailles," the last a tribute to Hungary's revolutionists of 1848. Timely to these days before Lent was Schumann's "Carnival," of which the coincidence of twenty-one numbers suggests contrasts with the trice-seven of Schoenberg's "Pierrot," heard on the previous night. Schumann's Pierrot, Harlequin and the rest of them, danced in the sunshine of a more musical day.

Besides some final Chopin, Mr. Hughes gave in one vigorous group Brahm's "Cradle Song" intermezzo and "Ballade," Rachmaninoff's "Serenade" and "Grande Prelude," while he had to repeat Dohnanyi's "March Humoresque" with a "basso ostinato," like the tread of time-serving ants in Capek's "World We Live In."

OUTLINES PLAN FOR PARKS.

Major Welsh Tells City Club of Proposed $15,000,000 Bond Issue.

The new plan for State parks was outlined last evening by Major W. A. Welsh, Vice Chairman of the Committee on State Park Plans, at a meeting of the members of the City Club, 55 West Forty-fourth Street. Through a bond issue now before the State Legislature, Major Welsh said, it is planned to raise $15,000,000 for the conservation of State forests and the improvement of the parks. According to the plan, $10,000,000 of this will be raised in the immediate future and the remaining $5,000,000 after a period of five or six years.

"Under this plan," said Major Welsh, "the people will not feel the suggestion of an added financial burden. The sinking fund we propose will take care of the park indebtedness for that length of time."

MRS. CHARLES CAHIER SINGS

Mrs. Charles Cahier, whose appearances here in opera, choral and chamber programs, have been limited to but three visits to her former home country in eighteen years, gave her first recital at the Town Hall yesterday afternoon. There was an audience evidently of the few already familiar with her work, though a contralto voice of so rich and lustrous quality would have deserved wider hearing.

She gave, as she had for the Beethoven Association, airs from Beethoven's "Egmont," with a Schubert group including the "Erlking," superby accompanied by Walter Golde, and modern German pieces by Schreker, Perieberg and Bluemel. Some old Italian and modern French were followed by the Americans, Hadley, Josten and J. H. Rogers, whose songs in Mrs. Cahier's dramatic rendering were much enjoyed.

Library Too Small for Courtroom.

Judge Tailey yesterday indefinitely adjourned Part IX. of General Sessions because of the inadequate facilities of District Attorney Banton's law library, in which the term had been held since the early part of last year, when two additional parts were created by act of the Legislature.

Candy—An Ancient Comfort of the Race

MAN cut his first sweet tooth at least 3,500 years ago, and in practically every generation since the use of confectionery has increased. A legend widely disseminated in the Orient names the sons of Noah as the earliest candy makers. When they left the parental camp, so the story goes, they took as food for their travels sweetmeats composed of wheat starch and grape juice boiled together. The Egyptians, somewhat later, candied dates in honey, leaving a record of that industry in paintings in their tombs.

The Greeks and Romans took their candy seriously. Chrysippus left a carefully prepared recipe, the ingredients being boiled honey, ground almonds, poppy seed and—of all things—"plenty of pepper." In the ancient world honey was the chief element in candy, for cane sugar was unknown until well along in the Christian era.

Candy with a sugar base was made first by the Hindoos. When sugar reached Europe in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, the initial use of it was in medicine and then in confectionery. The Spaniards, finding the Aztecs drinking cocoa, added chocolate to sugar around 1565, but it was another century before true chocolate candy was developed in England and France.

As early as 1816 no less than 20 candy factories were operating in Philadelphia; and in New York Delmonico Brothers, Ridley & Co., R. L. Stuart, James Thompson and several others were busy. In 1845 Sebastian Chaveau, of Philadelphia, imported a revolving steam pan, and with the general use of machinery subsequent to a great international conference of candy makers in London in 1857, the industry quickly expanded to amazing proportions.

CANDY consumption is truly stupendous in the United States. Close to 2,000,000,000 pounds are sold annually for about $1,000,000,000, through more than 200,000 retail establishments. Obviously, large banking resources are made use of in the financing of so large and solid a business.

Candy making is one of many American industries which have reached their greatest development during the eighty-five years since this bank was founded. Always active in furnishing banking service to industry, it will welcome the opportunity to discuss with you your business problems.

Why not let us send our representative to tell you more about our ability to supply your banking needs?

In 1838 this Bank occupied one floor in a very inconspicuous building. Today, in its own building, the business of the Bank necessitates the use of eight entire floors—about 50,000 square feet of space.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia) 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

PUTS EARTHQUAKE NEAR ALEUTIANS

DR. REEDS PLACES IT SOUTH

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 5.—Location of the gigantic earthquake, which threw needles from seismographs in this country and threw mountainous tidal waves against the Hawaiian Islands on Saturday, was fixed today by Father Odenbach of St. Ignatius College at approximately 170 degrees west longitude and 35 degrees north latitude, midway between the Hawaiian and Aleutian Islands in the Pacific Ocean.

His calculation, based on observation of the tidal waves, would place the convulsion about 1,800 miles northwest of Honolulu. As the map shows no islands there, he believes it possible that some were hoisted up by the sub-Pacific earthquake.

Two other American observatories on Saturday and Sunday estimated the scene of the disturbance to be near the Aleutian Islands. Bromich Observatory, in England, arrived at the same estimate, as did also an observatory in the Hawaiian Islands.

As others gave their estimates in favor of the South Pacific, it is pointed out that in addition to two separate series of shocks on Saturday there were also disturbances on Thursday and Friday, whose location had not been determined.

Hawaiian Governor Declines Aid.

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Governor Wallace R. Farrington today received a cablegram from the American Red Cross at Washington offering assistance in view of the damage done by tidal waves in the islands on Saturday.

The Governor replied, thanking the Red Cross for its proffer of aid, but said that the territory needed no assistance. He pointed out that most of the loss will fall on commerce and industry and not on individuals.

KAHULUI, Island of Maui, T. H., Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—Revised estimates of the damage done here on Saturday by a series of tidal waves placed the total loss today in the neighborhood of $500,000.

The beach is littered with lumber for miles, but the damage to roads and sewers thrown up on the beach is not thought to be as heavy as at first estimated.

Dr. Reeds Fears for South Islands.

Dr. C. A. Reeds, seismologist of the American Museum of Natural History, yesterday calculated the position of the earthquake which caused a tidal wave in the Pacific as about 172 degrees west longitude and 19 south latitude.

This position is a few hundred miles southeast of the Low Archipelago, which includes Tahiti and about the same distance south of the Marquesas group. The position is a few hundred miles north of the Gambier Islands.

The location calculation by Dr. Reeds is more than 3,000 miles south of Hawaii, and he believes it is likely, since the tidal wave damage was so severe at Hawaii, that some of the South Sea Islands close to the centre of disturbance may have been overwhelmed whelmed.

Many of the islands near the earthquake centre are without white population and practically out of touch with the rest of the world. The Marquesas are right in a line between Hawaii and the supposed earthquake centre, so that it is probable they received the full force of the tidal wave.

At the Western Union offices yesterday it was said that no information had been received there as to damage to cables by the quake or tidal wave.

JERSEY RECLUSE SLAIN AS HE LAY IN BED

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 5.—William Gifford, 35 years old, who, since he was divorced from his wife several years ago, lived as a recluse at Woodbine, about twenty-three miles north of here, was shot and killed early yesterday morning under circumstances which the authorities declared today were mysterious. The murder was discovered by Israel W. Gifford, the 88-year-old father of the slain man, who lives here.

The faher, learning that his son was suffering from influenza, went to Gifford's home this morning and found him dead in a room on the second floor with a bullet over his heart and another in the head. He summoned Constable Morris Luchow, who, on investigation, expressed the belief that the slayer had forced his way into the house and surprised the victim of the shooting while he was in bed.

Arnold Genthe, the principal speaker, emphasized the modern development of the snapshot in art photography. He hoped that the organization would begin a movement to have kodak photography taught in the public schools.

the cars of the chief officer. The latter accompanied Boyd to the West Thirtieth Street Station on Sunday afternoon and laid the matter before the Desk Lieutenant, who, when the policemen were leaving the station house for the four o'clock hour of duty, asked the youth if he could single out the men in question. This was just a test because the Lieutenant knew the men could not be there. At 4:15 o'clock, however, when the men relieved of duty straggled into the station house the Lieutenant lined them up and Boyd picked out Lawless. The Lieutenant reported the case to Police Commissioner Enright, who, after ordering Lawless's arrest, assigned Inspector Underhill to make an investigation in an effort to locate the other man.

Inspector Underhill sent for all policemen on patrol in the vicinity of Eighth and Ninth Avenues on Sunday morning and one by one they were eliminated with cries from the youth of "That's not he" until Carver entered the Inspector's office. A complaint was lodged against both policemen by Lieutenant Brady of Inspector Underhill's staff and by Boyd.

The Italia sails for Glasgow at 7 o'clock this morning. Upon learning this Magistrate Renaud set the case down for Feb. 27, when the chief complainant against the policeman promised to appear. Lawless and Carver were bailed out in Night Court last night by Jack Greenspan, representing a surety company.

TIGHTENS CHECK-UP ON COAL DELIVERIES

Two new orders, effective today, have been promulgated by the State Fuel Administration—one for the purpose of preventing short-weight deliveries of coal and the other to make it possible to check up on the merit of emergency appeals.

Both of the orders apply to New York City only. They were issued by Arthur S. Leavoyd, Fuel Administrator for the city, with the approval of General George W. Goethals, State Fuel Administrator.

Disregard of the orders may make the person who violates them liable to fine or imprisonment. Both of them are in line with present city ordinances.

Refusal of many householders to exhibit to administration inspectors receipts for coal that they have obtained is responsible, according to Mr. Leavoyd, for the first order. The order, which is Local Order No. 4, provides:

"Delivery Tickets—Deliveries in any quantity or quantities of coal which shall have been sold by weight shall be accompanied by a delivery ticket and a duplicate thereof. On the original shall be in ink or other indelible substance, distinctly expressed in pounds, the quantity or quantities of coal contained in the car, wagon or other vehicle used in such delivery, with the name of the purchaser thereof and the name of the dealer from whom purchased. The duplicate may be a carbon copy of the original. One of such tickets shall be delivered to the purchaser of the coal specified thereon, and the other of such tickets shall be retained by the seller of the coal.

"Exhibiting Delivery Tickets—All persons in possession of delivery tickets or duplicates thereof shall exhibit the same for inspection upon request of any inspector of weights and measures, any police officer and any member of an advisory board, deputy or employe of the State Fuel Administration."

Local Order No. 5 provides:

"All coal sold or offered for sale in lots of two hundred pounds or less in baskets, bags or other receptacles used for the delivery of such coal shall have the net weight of the contents plainly marked either on a tag securely attached to the baskets, bags or other receptacles containing same, or on the outside thereof, in plain and conspicuous figures at least one inch in height."

SAYS FIRM RUINED HIM.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5.—A suit for $350,000 damages was filed in the Federal Court today against John Bene & Son, Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., and John Bene, President; Edward George Bene, Vice President, and John Raymond Bene, Secretary, by Nathan Proper, head of an antiseptic laboratory company here.

Proper alleges in his petition that his firm was doing a $25,000 a year business selling an antiseptic preparation to three, five and ten-cent chain store systems in 1918 when the Brooklyn firm caused a false analysis of his product to be made and sent to the heads of the chain store systems. As a result, he charges, his firm lost the business, was forced into bankruptcy and disposed of its plant in Cincinnati at a fraction of its value.

CALDER FOR ECONOMY.

Tells Maritime Men the Emergency Fleet Corporation Must Go.

The high cost of government, also the scarcity of coal, were attacked last night by Senator William M. Calder, addressing the annual dinner of the Maritime Association of the Port of New York at the Hotel Astor in connection with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the association. Senator Calder said he was convinced that much of the uncertainty that now besets the maritime world was the outcome of conditions surrounding American tonnage.

"The Shipping act of 1916 created the first United States Shipping Board," said Senator Calder. "Two years of war experience had taught a Democratic Congress that an adequate American merchant marine was a vital necessity. Therefore, in that act they appropriated $50,000,000 'for the purchase, equipment, lease, charter, maintenance and operation of merchant vessels in the commerce of the United States.'"

"During the past twenty years there has been a steady and unhindered increase in the cost of government. The day of reckoning has come. One of these extravagances is the Emergency Fleet Corporation."

Senator Calder then discussed the coal situation and again advocated Government regulation of that industry.

The semi-centenary of the Maritime Association also was marked yesterday by commemorative exercises on the floor of the Maritime Exchange, 78-80 Broad Street. The minutes of the first meeting of the association, held on April 5, 1873, were read by Secretary Walter F. Firth. President Charles H. Potter, C. Linn Bundy, manager of the association, and Dr. Nehemiah Boynton of Brooklyn also spoke.

V. E. MACY RETAINS POST.

Effort to Oust Westchester Welfare Commission Fails.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 5.—A motion to remove V. Everit Macy of Briarcliff, Commissioner of Welfare Board of Westchester County, from office and appoint a successor was defeated by members of the Board of Supervisors at their regular meeting here today. The motion was proposed by John Sinnott, minority leader of Mount Pleasant, who urged that Macy be removed on the ground that he had not complied with legal requirements in taking his office.

Commissioner Macy recently took up his duties on the Welfare Board while he was in Luxor, Egypt, where he was visiting the tomb of King Tut-ankh-Amen. He was sworn into office before officials of the United States Embassy there. He is now on his way home.

MOTHER OF 'NOISY' CHILDREN FREED

LATE MUSIC UNWARRANTED

So Another Magistrate Rules in Favor of Another Patrolman Who Couldn't Sleep.

The conviction of Mrs. Margaret Tristram, 33, of 230 East 123d Street, on the complaint of Patrolman Louis Unger of the same address, who alleged that her three small children were so noisy that he could not sleep in his flat below the Tristrams, was sharply criticised yesterday by Magistrate Peter A. Hatting in Harlem court, before whom she appeared for sentence. Magistrate Hatting suspended sentence in the case of the young mother.

She was found guilty on a charge of disorderly conduct by Magistrate Earl A. Smith two weeks ago. Following her conviction an investigation of her case was made by Mrs. Carrie McCauley, a probation officer attached to the court. Mrs. McCauley reported to the court yesterday that Mrs. Tristram had padded her floors to eliminate the noise of which the policeman complained, had made her little ones go barefoot in Summer to muffle their footsteps, and had taken them out of the house as often as her domestic duties would permit.

"I am sorry you were convicted," said Magistrate Hatting to Mrs. Tristram. You were convicted by another Judge. Why, I don't know. But in view of the conviction the least I can do is to give you a suspended sentence."

Magistrate Hatting then said to the complaining policeman:

"Some people have the idea that children ought to be shackled, chained up and gagged or sent into the country where they won't annoy anybody."

Herbert Tristram, a mill worker, and his wife have three children, Margaret, 5, Theodore, 6, and Charles, 4. There is only one other family with children in the ten-family tenement.

Mr. Tristram explained that he and his wife and the children's grandmother, Mrs. Madeline Thomson, had lived there for the last six years. "This is the first complaint about our children that we have had," said Mr. Tristram. "We might have made a counter complaint against Mr. and Mrs. Unger because they have a piano which they play late into the night, keeping us awake."

Music played so late at night as to disturb the rest of a neighbor was held to be unwarranted by Magistrate Oberwager in West Side Court yesterday when he ordered Charles Dunn, 153 West Eighty-ninth Street, to stop his phonograph, complained of by Patrolman Thomas O'Neil of the West 135th Street Station. Dunn denied he ever played after 10:30.

"It must be stopped because a patrolman's nerves must be protected if he is to keep down crime these days," said the Court.

URGES PHILIPPINES FOR RUBBER GROWING

Secretary Weeks Sees Large Opportunities for Development of Industry There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Secretary Weeks stated his belief today that there were great opportunities for growing rubber in the Philippines. His declaration was based on a letter received from an expert in the rubber industry. He said in part:

"In the Islands of Mindanao and Basilan (with an area of over 36,000 square miles) of the Philippine group are large tracts of land owned by the Insular Government highly suitable for plantation rubber.

"The location of these islands, from about five to nine degrees north latitude; the temperature, high humidity, rainfall, nightly dew, the character of the soil and drainage make them ideal for rubber cultivation.

"With but little capital the industry has grown steadily until there are now four plantations in the Philippines with a yearly production of over 202,000 pounds of rubber. Experiences show that the best rubber tree (the hevea) does splendidly in these islands.

ASSAILS DEATH PENALTY.

Sing Sing Warden Says It Is Not a Deterrent of Murder.

Asserting that slayers who legally escaped the death penalty make the best prisoners in Sing Sing, Warden Lewis E. Lawes told the members and guests of the Government Club at a meeting yesterday in the Hotel Astor that he did not believe capital punishment was a deterrent of murder and that he favored its abolition.

"If it is a fact that it is a deterrent," said Warden Lawes, "then why not have these executions in public and make persons who might commit murder wear execution?"

The Warden said that for five years, ending July 1, last, there were 180 prisoners paroled who had served time for murder or manslaughter. Only three, he said, were returned to prison.

"The point I am making is that men who took human life and served time are the best behaved and the best trusted in Sing Sing," he added, "and the very few returned shows that this class of inmates are more readily reformed than other offenders."

BATES IS STILL ISOLATED.

LEWISTON, Me., Feb. 5.—Bates College, placed under quarantine for scarlet fever in the midst of the mid-year examinations, was still isolated tonight. Eight cases of scarlet fever among students have been reported.

Dr. L. J. Dumont, city health officer, who issued the quarantine order last Saturday, examined every student today with the assistance of the college physician. No spread of the disease was indicated.

In addition to scarlet fever, a number of students are reported suffering from a mild form of influenza. Professor Roland F. Doane was taken to a Lewiston hospital today. Physicians said he had pneumonia.

If your dentifrice keeps your teeth clean, it should also keep your brush white and clean.—Watch the condition of your brush after using Revelation.

Dear Sirs: Some time ago a sample of Revelation Tooth Powder left at my office was handed to a patient who called on me about every two months to have extensive deposits of tartar removed. She made the remark, "It's a wonder you dentists can't find something to keep this tartar from forming." I said to her, "Well, here is a tooth powder which the manufacturer claims will do so; try it out and I will see you in two or three months again." This patient returned last week to have her teeth looked over. Imagine my surprise to find that after four months there was scarcely a trace of tartar in this mouth.

Very truly yours,

Free Trade in Ideas

THE mightiest power in America is the united thought of its millions. An idea accepted by enough of us becomes that tremendous thing—Public Opinion. Collier's service to the nation is as a medium for expression of ideas. Through them alone can public opinion be created. It believes in what Justice Holmes called "free trade in ideas."

Lincoln Practiced It

LINCOLN was a free trader in ideas. "From his boyhood," says an editorial in Collier's, "his passion was to make . . . knowledge solid, clear, plain to himself, and then to get it across to his fellow men."

Our knowledge of "the man who knew our human lot in every shift of poverty, hardship, toil, risk, and power" is enriched by new facts contributed to this week's Collier's by Ida Tarbell, and by Cornelius Cole, the aged ex-Senator who worked with Lincoln.

It Will Help Prohibition

JACK O'DONNELL, who writes about prohibition in this week's Collier's, is an avowed wet. But he is also a reporter. A good reporter is above all a free trader in ideas. So it doesn't matter that Mr. O'Donnell finds the facts that he gathered do not at all agree with his prejudices. Prohibition will have to be settled finally by mutual understanding. Mr. O'Donnell's article is cement for the binding of public opinion.

It's Needed in Public Jobs

COLLIER'S said recently that America needs Americans with this watchword: "Nothing for ourselves—everything for America." Byron R. Newton, former Collector of the Port of New York, says that a government employee who lives up to that ideal will leave office a political and financial bankrupt. To talk freely about an intolerable situation as Mr. Newton does in this week's Collier's is to start a free trade in ideas that is certain to stop the evil.

COLLIER'S believes that truth protects against half-baked thinking and snap judgments. It has strong beliefs and positive opinions. It will raise no tariff wall against ideas, no matter how contrary to its own, provided that they are honestly expressed and clearly presented.

IN more than a million homes Collier's is welcomed by intelligent, alert men and women because through its free trade in ideas the problems of their own lives are made easier to solve. The minds of these millions are eager and open to receive your message through Collier's advertising pages.

TRUBEE DAVISON MUSEUM TRUSTEE

C. E. DODGE ALSO CHOSEN

Trubee Davison was elected a Trustee of the American Museum of Natural History at the annual meeting in the home of Percy R. Pyne, 680 Park Avenue, last night, to fill the vacancy left by the death of his father, Henry P. Davison. Cleveland Earl Dodge was elected to fill the place of Charles Lanier, who retired from the board after forty-eight years service as Trustee and Treasurer. Adrian Iselin, Ogden Mills and Madison Grant were re-elected Trustees for five years. President Henry Fairfield Osborn reported the work of the museum during the year and told of its increasing importance.

J. C. Faunthorpe and Arthur S. Vernay, now in India heading the Faunthorpe Indian expedition, were elected to honorary life membership in the museum. Lord Reading, Viceroy of India, will present through the expedition to the new Asiatic Hall, now being constructed by the city, a group of tigers, and the Maharajan of Mysore will present a bull elephant.

The Department of Public Education reported that 4,440,716 persons were reached by the educational extension work of the museum. During the year 824 Nature Study Collection were used by 1,648,008 pupils; 217 lectures were given to 149,620 pupils and 5,386 loans of slides to 226 schools were viewed by 2,582,585 pupils. The attendance at the museum was 1,309,856, an increase of 200,000.

President Osborn reported that in answer to his call for an endowment of $2,000,000 made in 1921, $1,905,000 had been donated. The Trustees contributed $40,000 during the year. The receipts for 1922 were $1,123,292, leaving a balance of $9,840.

Record Budget for 1923.

"The very satisfactory financial report for 1922 is partly due to the extreme care with which the budget was prepared so that in the City Maintenance Account the expenditures closely balance the receipts, leaving a credit balance of $593," it was said.

"The new budget for 1923 unanimously adopted by the Trustees, recommending a total expenditure of $965,142, apart from the special gifts and funds, is the largest budget in the history of the Museum. An especially gratifying feature of the year is the very large contribution from outside sources toward the exploration work of the Museum on four continents, including three expeditions in Asia, one in Australia, one in Polynesia, five in North America and the West Indies, and two in South America.

"In recognition of these gifts and of recent contributions to the general endowment fund, the following elections took place: Harry Payne Whitney, Felix M. Warburg, Edward S. Harkness, John D. Rockefeller Jr., George D. Pratt and the late Amos F. Eno were elected benefactors of the Museum. Childs Frick and Adrian Iselin were elected Associate Founders. Herbert F. Schwarz was elected a patron. Twenty-two distinguished foreign scientists were elected to Corresponding Membership in the Museum in recognition of their contributions to science and their interest in the American Museum.

"This generous support of the Museum by private citizens, as well as by the City Administration through its appropriations for maintenance and for construction of new buildings, adds to the Museum's responsibilities of stewardship, a fact to which the Museum administration is keenly alive. All expenditures are made from carefully prepared budget covering all activities of the Museum—in exploration, in research, in publication, in exhibition and in education; the aim always being to promote a well-balanced development of all branches of the work and thus enhance the value of the Museum to the community and to the country at large."

Plan Roosevelt Memorial Hall.

President Osborn said that the most important work of the next ten years will be the construction of the six remaining sections of the Museum building at a cost of $9,000,000. One of these sections may be known as Roosevelt Memorial Hall.

The following additions to the scientific staff for the year were made: Childs Frick, Research Associate in Paleontology; Horace W. Stunkard, Research Associate in Parasitology; Milo Hellman, Research Associate in Physical Anthropology.

Among those present at the meeting were: Professor Osborn, Frederick F. Brewster, Controller Charles L. Craig, Childs Frick, Park Commissioner Francis G. Gallatin, William Averill Harriman, Arthur Curtiss James, Walter B. James, J. P. Morgan, A. Perry Osborn, George D. Pratt, Percy R. Pyne, Leonard C. Stanford and Felix M. Warburg.

SENTENCE 2 DRUG ADDICTS.

Former Jockey, Who Formed Habit While Riding, Gets Three Years.

John Harrington, a former jockey, was sentenced to the penitentiary for from six months to three years, and his wife Helen was sent to the workhouse for four months on their plea of guilty in Special Sessions yesterday to being drug addicts and having narcotics in their possession. Their home was at 820 Sixth Avenue.

Probation Officer Tierney told Justices Freschi, Murphy and Herbert that Harrington said he became a drug addict nine years ago when he was a jockey, using the drugs to reduce his weight. The woman pleaded to be permitted to go to her twelve-year-old son at the home of her mother in Canada. In 1920 Harrington served four months in the workhouse for having narcotics in his possession.

Komisarjevsky's production of "Peer Gynt" scored a triumph last night, a triumph for expressionism and for the Theatre Guild. However dubiously the theory of this new art of stagecraft may sound, however doleful experiments with it may have proved in the past, this play of Ibsen's came to life beneath its touch as never before, at least in America.

"Peer Gynt" was not written as a drama and it is not a drama. It is a dramatic poem that ranges from youth to old age, from the fjords and mountain slopes of Norway to the desert sands of Africa. It is a hodge-podge of childlike folk lore and profound philosophy, a melange of melodramatic pathos and musical comedy. When it was staged in Ibsen's lifetime, the setting was performed detailed in the realistic manner of the nineteenth century, as other mode being dreamed of. The result was dreariness in the long waits between scenes, followed always by disillusionment in the harsh realities of the scene painters.

Komisarjevsky reduces the material portion of his investiture to a minimum. The mountain scenes are symbolized by two masses of slate rocks on either side of the stage, changes being swiftly executed by shifting a few properties and the backdrop. The desert scenes are similarly framed behind silhouetted palm trees. Where soldier sets are required, as for Ingrid's wedding, the palace of the Troll King and the Cairo madhouse, they also are reduced to the minimum or heavy material. But there is no parsimony practiced in the matter of atmospheric beauty in lighting, of varied richness in costume, and of skill in the acting and stage management. The result is a performance which, though it lasted until hard upon midnight, flowed swiftly, with the true accent of life in the living and of poetic phantasy ranging freely.

No more spirited scene of folk life has ever been staged than Ingrid's wedding, with its warmly beautiful kaleidoscope of peasant finery, its riotous mingling of jollity and dramatic action. The Hall of the King of the Trolls was a masterpiece of grim and filthy grotesque, the very lighting of which was murk. The Cairo madhouse had the grisly, macabre quality of a tale by Poe. Throughout the production was a marvel of shifting variety and contrast, of an infinitude of vitalized detail that fused always into a progressive whole.

The Peer of Joseph Schildkraut touched its pinnacles in the earlier scenes. Where Richard Mansfield could only play at the youth and jollity of this riotous scapegrace, he gave us the very thing itself. It is a creation worthy, and more than worthy, of standing beside his Liliom.

One understood as never before the magic by which, arriving at Ingrid's wedding as a tatterdemalion and laughing stock, he ended by carrying off the bride in triumph to the mountains. No less illumined was the lifelong spell he cast upon the faithful Solveig, the ever womanly heroine of nineteenth century sentiment. The maturer scenes lacked something, perhaps, of Mansfield's sardonic humor, of the irony and indeed the tragedy implicit in Peer's encounters with the Button-Moulder. Yet throughout Schildkraut was finely competent and impressive.

The Solveig of Selena Royle was admirably ingenuous and tender. Bertha Broad as Ingrid, Lilliehl Ibsen (granddaughter-in-law of the poet) as Anitra, and Helen Westley as the Troll Princess, were mainly adequate. Dudley Digges gave a highly impressive performance as the Troll King. The Ase of Louise Closser Hale was spirited in the minor woods of character, but it somehow missed the exaltation and the pathos of the death scene.

The appeal of this performance is, of course, only to be felt by those who care keenly for dramatic literature and artistic producing. It is not to be denied that in the latter portion of the evening there is an occasional stretch of something very like dullness. But by and large this demonstration of the newer phases of Continental stagecraft is as inspiring and as instructive as the achievements of the Moscow players in the stalder realism of the old school.

Julia Arthur as Hamlet.

The so-called Shakespeare revival has reached the twice-a-day. Yesterday afternoon at Keith's Palace Theatre, Julia Arthur began an engagement in the closet scene from "Hamlet," attired in the sable suit of the melancholy Prince.

It is not an environment favorable to high tragedy. Between "seat-slammer" and "chaser," bad begins and worse remains behind. Nor under the best of conditions is it easy to scale the heights of Shakespeare in brief snippets of his plays. Without the narrative interest of the story and the steady crescendo of dramatic development, the highest pinnacle has a way of seeming flat.

It may be said for Miss Arthur that she presented a graceful and not at all obviously feminine figure, and spoke her lines with vigor and authority. But, perhaps because of the handicap of her surroundings, she fell short of the emotional intensity of the main body of the scene, as also of its tragic climax, when the ghost appears. There were times when she seemed to be reading Queen Gertrude an acidulous moral lecture rather than cleaving her heart in twain. Nor did the final reapprochement of mother and son have any great intensity of feeling.

This did not prevent the audience from following the performance with interest and respect. At the curtain there was a spontaneous outburst of applause.

The Palace and Central Bills.

On the program of the Palace yesterday were the Four Readings, Joe Roberts, Harry B. Watson and Reg B. Merrille, in "50 Miles From Broadway;" George Dufranne, a French tenor; Douglas Leavitt and Ruth Mary Lockwood, Vincent Lopez and his Hotel Pennsylvania orchestra, Ivette Rugel, Moran and Mack, and John Gluran and "La Bertha" Marguerite.

"Oh, What a Girl" is the attraction at the Central. It includes the Klein Brothers, Moran and Wiser, Buddy Doyle, Marie Stoddard, Horton and La Triska, the Manhattan Trio, the Wilson Sisters and Irma Bertrand and Allen Glen. There is also a revue, telling the story of Deacon Amos Titmouse and his affair with a cabaret singer in the white-light district—this despite the fact that he is a pillar of his church and married.

"Cosi Fan Tutte" Fills Metropolitan

Mozart on Broadway for the third time filled the Metropolitan at last evening's repetition of the little opera bouffe, "Cosi Fan Tutte," with its intimacy of theme and scene cleverly staged in miniature in the great house, and its entrancing ensembles sung again by Misses Easton, Bori and Peralta, Messrs. Meader, De Luca and Didur, under Mr. Bodansky's baton. Tonight the company does double duty in a benefit "Tosca" with Jeritza here and a Philadelphia "Rigoletto" with Galli-Curci. A line in last night's bill announced Mme. Rethberg's first Mimi in "Boheme" next Monday night at the Metropolitan, when the German Opera Company also opens its season at the Manhattan in "Die Meistersinger."

CHORUS SAVES PLAY.

May Worthy	Betta Dona
Minnie Silver	Harriette Lee
Mrs. Thompson	Claire Granville
Bobby Brown	Douglas Stevenson
Jarry Jackson	Harry Delf
Alice Worthy	Allyn King
Tommy Dugan	Tom Dingle
Mike Rockwell	Tom O'Hare
Joseph Green	Eddie Winthrop
William Blue	Mack Wells
John Black	William Schutt
Ralph White	Jack Kennedy
Pierre	John Boswell
Francois	Frank Anderson
Gaston	George Berlow

Musical comedy as practised in these parts reduced itself almost to an absurdity last night, when "Sun Showers" was produced at the Astor with a chorus infinitely superior to the principals. As youthful and energetic and personable a chorus as Broadway has seen this season rode dainty-shod over the obstacles of plot and situation placed in its way, deftly took over the burden of the piece, and, starting early in the second act, broke into a dancing frenzy that saved the play from the almost certain verdict of just another one of those things.

Harry Delf, remembered from a Cohan revue of a few seasons ago, is credited with the authorship of the book, lyrics and music, and is a prominent member of the cast. When one adds that he talks through his nose, and that his manner is pert, it is almost superfluous to add that he consciously challenges the younger Conan.

In authorship and composition he has done a good piece of work in "Sun Showers." As an actor, unfortunately, his resemblance to little Johnny Jones ends. He is simply not funny—and the harder he tries, and he did try hard, and the more pertness he develops, and he developed it into an almost insufferable self-assurance, the less funny he becomes.

Among the other principals are Allyn King, recently of the glorified of Mr. Ziegfeld, Berta Dorin, sweet and graceful in an obvious part; Douglas Stevenson, who looks well but seemed to be having difficulties in the matter of cooperating with the orchestra, and Harriette Lee, as a typical but amusing boarding house maid.

'MARY THE 3RD' INTERESTS.

Rachel Crothers's New Comedy Attacks Matrimony.

Mary the 1st	Louise Huff
William	Ben Lyon
Mary the 2d	Louise Huff
Robert	Ben Lyon
Richard	William Hanley
Granny	May Galyer
Mother	Beatrice Terry
Mary the 3d	Louise Huff
Father	George Howard
Bobby	Morgan Farley
Lynn	Ben Lyon
Hal	William Hanley
Letitia	Mildred Macleod
Max	John Alexander
Nora	Eleanor Montell

Despite the fact that it is somewhat over-pretentious in proportion to its philosophic content, "Mary the 3d" comes close to being the best play that Rachel Crothers has written. The qualification is slipped in lest one of Miss Crothers's comedies has eluded the memory of this reviewer. "Old Lady 31," perhaps, contained more entertainment to the inch, but "Mary the 3d" is a better piece than either "The Herefords" or "Niece People."

Miss Crothers, with an occasional intermission, has devoted herself to tilting at modern manners, institutions and tendencies. The new play at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre begins by threatening to expose the theories of the new generation, then switches suddenly into a blanket attack on marriage and nearly everything connected with it. In trying to prove her case against marriage Miss Crothers rather lets her play go by the boards for a while—nor is one entirely convinced at the finish that matrimony is as terrible as she paints it. Seemingly Miss Crothers did not convince herself either, for her young lovers are locked in each others' arms as the curtain descends.

The play is at its best in the first act, when, after preliminary scenes that give glimpses of the courtships of the first and second Marys, there is revealed a modern home housing three generations. Here are a number of shrewd and observant lines—a scene in which grandmother, mother, father and daughter are adroitly and amusingly (amusingly because truly) made to reveal their respective viewpoints.

Thereafter the play is always interesting, but dissipates itself somewhat by insisting too strenuously upon its newfound theme. It is here that the daughter, abandoning a radical plan of conduct as a concession to the older generation, returns home just in time to overhear a quarrel between her parents, and to learn that they had not been so right after all. Her attitude thereupon is that nothing will do for her parents but a divorce, and she, along with Miss Crothers, makes herself a decided nuisance in her insistence upon it.

The play as a whole is given a reasonably good performance, with the leading role intrusted to Louise Huff, who has been concerning herself primarily with the films in the past. She gives a fresh and pleasant performance. May Galyer makes the grandmother amusing, despite the fact that she overplays; and Morgan Farley is an appealing figure as the son. There are good performances by Beatrice Terry, Mildred McLeod and Ben Lyon, and at least one that is not so good.

The Net Paid Sunday Circulation of the CHICAGO HERALD AND EXAMINER IS NOW Over a Million

THIS is the culmination of a record of growth unprecedented in the history of newspaperdom. In five months the Sunday Herald and Examiner has gained more than 350,000 new subscribers.

This remarkable achievement was solely the result of a spontaneous response of the public to our effort to give it the best newspaper in America.

M'ALLISTER WINNER OF 60-YARD TITLE

COLUMBIA CAPTURES RELAY

To his many other athletic accomplishments, Bob McAllister, New York's "flying cop," last night added the Metropolitan A. A. U. 60-yard indoor championship title in the annual senior board floor championships conducted before a small crowd in Madison Square Garden. McAllister captured this title in convincing fashion over the foremost eligible sprinters in the district, and in doing so equaled the championship record of 6 2-5 seconds. McAllister's time, as he flashed past the judges at the finish of the straightaway spurt, was 6 4-10 seconds.

Trailing the "flying cop" was Jackson Scholz, New York A. C. sprinter, who formerly held the Western Conference sprint title. Larry Rawlings of the Long Island A. C. was third and Jack Furlinger of the Paulist A. C. finished fourth. In dashing to his victory McAllister left no room for doubt as to his superiority over the field which opposed him. He broke from the starting line with the crack of the gun and sprinted down the straightaway with bulletlike speed which gave him the title by a margin which was clearly definable when the tape was broken.

McAllister's cup of joy, however, held some bitterness, too. The detective-sprinter clashed with Loren Murchison, former St. Louis sprinting star, in a special 60-yard dash, which witnessed a renewal of the rivalry between the two runners. This race resulted in another triumph for Murchison in the series which started with the current indoor season. The blond flier from Missouri with another demonstration of flashing starting ability and sustained speed over the 60-yard straightaway, led McAllister to the finish line in 6 4-10 seconds. Scholz, an added starter in this event, finished third, and Rawlings, who also competed, was fourth.

Only 2,000 See Games.

Only a comparative handful of spectators turned out for the games, which brought into competition the majority of the stars of the district. It was the second athletic meet within a week in the Garden, but in comparison to the Millrose A. A. games held last Wednesday night, the district championship carnival suffered to an astonishing degree. A liberal estimate of the crowd would place a maximum at about 2,000 as the number of spectators, a gathering that was lost in the spaciousness of the Garden. The different events, however, were up to expectations and provided a brand of competition which satisfied the small crowd.

Willie Ritola, sturdy Finnish runner, who holds the national ten-mile and senior cross country championship titles, annexed the local two-mile championship in fine fashion. Ritola encountered opposition from five rivals in this event, but the Finn raced as if he were the only runner on the track and won without any opposition.

Ritola finished his journey with an advantage of more than a full lap on Marvin Rick, former Princeton runner, who sported the Mercury Foot of the New York A. C. Andy Craw of the Glencoe A. C., former champion, was third, about ten yards back of Rick, after a hitting-up model of runner-up model in the closing half lap. Arthur Cassot, young Glencoe A. C. distance runner, finished fourth. Ritola's time was 9:28. He ran the first mile in 4:34.

Ritola led from the start of this race. For a mile he was closely followed by Mike Dwyer, veteran runner of the Mohawk A. C. As the Finn continued his rapid pace without letting up, however, Dwyer gradually fell behind, and Ritola was left to do his own running without any opposition.

The Finn then set sail to lap his rivals, and in the closing half mile succeeded. With increasing strides Ritola dashed over the board floor until with two laps to go he had lapped every other runner in the field. Rick alone diminished his stride, but kept going until the final half lap, when he broke loose in a closing spurt which carried him home twenty yards ahead of Rick, who had been lapped previously. Rick and Craw engaged in a stride-for-stride battle for second place in the final half lap, but the Mercury Footer won with a dash through the straightaway which carried him away from Craw.

Plant Wins Walk Easily.

Willie Plant of the Morningside A. C. was another national champion to demonstrate his superiority. Plant took the walking title in easy manner from Joe Pearman, New York A. C. walker, who formerly held the national seven-mile title. After leading from start to finish, Plant crossed the line twenty yards ahead of Pearman. Win Rolker, another New York A. C. walker, was third, and the veteran Dick Remer of the American Walkers' Association trailed in fourth position. Plant's time was 6:36 4-5.

Miss Marion McCartie, sterling girl sprinter of the Valcour Girls Club, earned the distinction of winning the first women's metropolitan A. A. U. indoor championship title in time that will stand as an indoor record. Miss McCartie spurted to victory in the women's fifty-yard dash after sprinting the distance in 6 5-10 seconds in winning the second trial heat. The best previous time for a women's fifty-yard sprint indoors was 6 7-10 seconds by Miss McCartie at the recent Millrose A. A. games. In the final sprint Miss McCartie again raced under her previous mark, when she broke the tape a winner in 6 4-10 seconds.

The New York A. C. track team carried off the team championship with a total of 23 tallies. The Newark A. C. was second with 14, and Columbia and Rutgers tied for third position, each with 7 points.

The great thrill of the night came as a climax to the program when the Columbia University relay quartet carried off the medley relay title over the New York A. C. team in 7:49 3-5. A fast mile leg by Waldon Higgins, intercollegiate two-mile and cross-country title holder, gave the Blue and White this title. Higgins led Willie Goodwin, Mercury Foot anchor man, to the tape by less than a yard after a struggle through the closing sixty yards which had the crowd on its feet. The Paulist A. C. team finished third and the Millrose A. A. fourth.

Koppisch Gives Columbia Lead.

Columbia's team started this race in the lead when Walter Koppisch, local short-distance champion, ran the opening quarter in 0:53 2-5 and passed on a lead of twenty yards to Vic Graeb. Bernie Wefers, New York A. C. lead-off runner, never got up on the first leg and touched off Jackson Scholz in third position. Scholz made up considerable ground, however, and handed the baton to Jack Sellers in second place to Frank Brennan, who ran the third leg for Columbia.

Sellers overhauled Brennan after a lap and then raced at the collegian's shoulder until the closing circuit of the third relay, when the Mercury Footer shot out in a burst of speed which carried him ahead of Brennan and gave Goodwin a lead of fifteen yards over Higgins, who took the baton from Brennan in second position.

Higgins, with the long stride typical of him, made up in a few strides the distance separating him from his rival, and then for ten laps of the seven-lap journey the Blue and White runner raced along at Goodwin's heels. As the bell sounded the last lap, Higgins tried to pass his rival on the first turn, but Goodwin, anticipating the challenge, spurted and held his position. Down the back stretch the pair raced with Goodwin in front and Higgins close behind, until the last turn was made, when Higgins, going upon the outside, threw all his strength into the short straightaway dash to the tape.

The crowd was on its feet in a wild outburst of encouragement to the struggling runners. Goodwin raced stride for stride with his rival until within about ten yards of the tape, when Higgins managed to get the lead, and, in one of the closest finishes ever seen in a local relay race, nosed out Goodwin by about a yard. Higgins ran his mile in 4:28 2-5.

The other relay title race, a 400-yard test for women, went to the Valcour Girls Club quartet, composed of the Misses Marion McCartie, Alice Kelley, Blanche Dixon and Rose Fisher. The Valcour four led from the start and won in 55 3-5 seconds, leading home the Millrose A. A., Prudential Insurance Company A. A. and Savage School teams in that order.

Jack Sellers of the New York A. C. carried off the 1,000-yard title in handy fashion. The Mercury Foot star, taking the lead soon after passing the half-way mark, finished with a margin of fifteen yards on Jack Barnes, unattached, who was one of the early pacemakers. Bob Moore of Columbia was third and Charles Beegan, St. Anselm's A. C., fourth. Sellers's time was 2:25.

A spectacular closing sprint gained Vince Lally of St. Anselm's A. C. the 600-yard title in 1:15 4-5. Lally's great finish brought him home about five yards ahead of Willie Kelly, who, in turn, was five yards in front of C. Beattie of Rutgers.

S. Harrison Thomson, Princeton's crack all-around athlete, tried for two titles, but failed of his objective and had to be content with runner-up honors in each event. Thomson trailed Herb Meyers, Rutgers College hurdler, in the sixty-yard high hurdles test, and in the sixteen-pound shot-put Thomson, with a heave of 42 feet 2¼ inches, finished second in Orvill Wanzen, policeman athlete of the New York Athletic Club, who won the title with a put of 43 feet 9¼ inches.

GOLF EVENTS ARRANGED.

Municipal Body to Hold Women's Tourney and Men's Handicap.

The Executive Committee of the Municipal Golf Association met last night at the home of Dr. McCoy, President of the Association, and voted to hold a women's tournament and a men's handicap tourney during the coming Summer and Fall. These two events will be in addition to the Greater New York municipal tourney previously decided upon.

It was also announced at last night's meeting that the association had been incorporated in New York State and that the Winchester Arms Company had offered a cup to be competed for at the major tournament. It has not yet been decided whether the trophy will be kept in competition until won three times by the same golfer or whether only two victories will be necessary to win it permanently.

EULALIA CAPTURES TALLY-HO PURSE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 5.—Long shots and "mud larks" had a field day at the Fair Grounds this afternoon, following the rain which began yesterday and continued intermittently throughout the night and today. Despite the cold and rain, however, the attendance did not fall off perceptibly, due probably to the influx of Mardi Gras visitors which has already begun here.

The Tally-Ho Purse, featured race of the card, was not immune from the form upset and the Spanish Prince II. filly Eulalia, with an impost of only ninety-seven pounds, outraced a field of six to score a handy victory at the luscious price of 15 to 1. Eulalia, owned and trained by C. Phillips, showed a fine flight of speed in the heavy going and outstayed the hot favorite, Superbum, in the final eighth of the mile and seventy yards trip to win by a length and a half.

In spite of Eulalia's splendid showing, Superbum might have gotten the verdict had not Jockey Mein seen fit to take her through the deepest part of the track in the early stages of the contest. The Knebelkamp filly finally overcame this handicap, came around the field on the stretch turn and moved into the lead, only to tire and falter at the finish. Briand got the short end of the purse but never threatened the two leaders.

Only One Favorite Scored.

Only one favorite scored during the afternoon. This was Tody in the fifth race, a mile and a sixteenth affair for three-year-olds and upward. Tody was at home in the betting and was up among the leaders from the time the barrier was sprung, but had to withstand a hard drive at the finish to beat the fast-closing Devonite.

Devonite, an outsider, ran a sparkling race and with a good ride would have won. As it was, Jockey Majestic kept the Granite gelding in the heaviest part of the track and brought him around the field at the turn. Hermis Kemble accounted for what was left of the purse after the owners of Tody and Devonite had gotten their share.

Mrs. R. McGarvey's Tulalip showed much improvement over her recent efforts in the sixth event on the program and won at odds of 6 to 1. Rep and Waukeag finished as named behind the McGarvey entrant.

Corcoran Wins With Tulsa.

Tulsa, with Johnny Corcoran in the saddle, scored in the seventh contest and the price on the old fellow at post time was 10 to 1. Attended was a length back of the leader at the finish and Mountain Rose 2d was just a neck behind Ettahe.

E. E. Watson's five-year-old chestnut horse Clarkson sprung another surprise in the second race. This was a claiming event for four-year-olds and upward over a six-furlong route. Clarkson went to the post at 12 to 1, broke with the leaders and drew out in the stretch to win eased up, to the surprise and disappointment of the form players. Dumbfounder took the place from Bee's Wing, after landing there, and Bee's Wing, another outsider, got the short end of the purse.

TAKES FIRM STAND ON PROFESSIONALS

President of U. S. Amateur Hockey Body Says They Will Be Rigidly Dealt With.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 5.—When any club in good standing in the United States Amateur Hockey Association presents its specific charges of professionalism in writing, supported by credible and reliable testimony, "they will be rigidly dealt with," said W. S. Haddock, President of the association, in answer today to a telegram from F. J. Sullivan, former manager of the Westminster hockey team of New Haven, Conn.

Sullivan called upon President Haddock to announce his official attitude if it were shown that league players were being paid money and had received money last year. The Westminster team, while under Sullivan's management, was suspended recently when it failed to appear for a scheduled game with the Boston A. A. The New Haven club, now a member of the association, is complying with the rules and regulations, Mr. Haddock said, and is being supported by the fans.

The President said he had instructed the referees to pay special attention to the use of skates by players to injure an opponent. "It is getting to be too frequent a habit for a player to put the toe of his skate into an opponent," declared Mr. Haddock. Any player caught using his skates for such purpose will be barred from the game, he added.

President Haddock announced tonight that until the end of the present season he will assign referees for all championship games without consulting the clubs involved. Such assignments, he said, would stand unless it was shown that the capability or honesty of the referee was questionable. The action was taken to remove the objections of some clubs to certain referees for "minor reasons."

The staff from which Mr. Haddock will make selections of referees includes John McGrath, Harold Mitchell, Tom Moore, H. H. Jaconi Jr., Percy Brown, G. M. Wiggett and Frank Schweitzer.

DENIES MERRIAM IS TO DISPLACE MACK

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—Flat denial was given tonight to a story that Coach John Mack of the Yale track team would return from Bermuda as assistant to Ned Merriam, the Chicago coach who came here last Fall as Mack's assistant. Jack Blossom, Yale's athletic director, said:

"There is no truth in that statement. When Mack returns he will take entire charge of the coaching of Yale track athletics. We hope that he will return in a month or six weeks, and can direct the team in its coaching for the dual meets with Harvard and Princeton. Yale will have one coach for the team which goes to England in July to meet Oxford and Cambridge representing Yale and Harvard. Mack will be that coach if he recovers his health and is able to make the trip, as we fully expect."

It was pointed out that Billy Queal and Merriam are the coaches directing the track team's work this Winter because of Mack's absence. Queal has the distance runners and Merriam the other athletes. This arrangement will continue until Mack's return.

Mack broke down because of the heavy strain of the football season. He directed the conditioning of the Yale gridiron squad and he and his assistant, Walter Mace, have not yet recovered from that strain. Both recently left the hospital.

Additional details were tonight announced regarding the plans of Yale and Harvard to cross the Atlantic. It was stated that the team will be picked from the first and second place winners in the twelve events at the Yale-Harvard dual games here on June 19. For instance, Harvard may succeed in placing twenty men and Yale only four by the dual meet competition. Each university will pay the expenses of its own squad.

President Johnny Pharr of the Yale Athletic Association is the author of a plan for developing the Yale field squad this Spring. Several former champions will come here for frequent visits to direct this branch of the squad. A. C. Gill, former intercollegiate pole vaulter, will be advisory coach for that squad; Dick Landon, the Olympic high jumper, for the jumping candidates, and Hugh Harbison, weight thrower, for the hammer and shot events. Gill is a New Haven manufacturer, Landon is in business in New York and Harbison in Hartford.

YALE SWIMMERS SWAMP DARTMOUTH

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—In a swimming meet here today Yale defeated Dartmouth, 43 to 10. The crowd of society folk here for the Junior Prom witnessed the events, including a distressing accident in which Blunt, the fancy diver of the Dartmouth aggregation, plunged headlong upon the end of the diving board in trying a "Standing Dutchman" dive. He struck his nose and chest upon the board, but except for a severe scraping was uninjured. He insisted on continuing the competition.

The visitors did not win a first place. The meet was held under last season's program, which included the distance plunge. In this Swazey floated the length of the tank, seventy-five yards, in 44 seconds. Captain Fleming Jelliffe, a former intercollegiate pole vaulter, will be advisory coach for that squad; Dick Landon, the Olympic high jumper, for the jumping candidates, and Hugh Harbison, weight thrower, for the hammer and shot events. Gill is a New Haven manufacturer, Landon is in business in New York and Harbison in Hartford

KASKY IS NATIONAL SKATING CHAMPION

DONOVAN SETS WORLD MARK

Special to The New York Times.

ENDICOTT, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Harry Kasky of the Alverno A. C., Chicago, Ill., tonight won the national amateur ice skating championship, bringing his total points for the two-day meet up to 110, by winning the half-mile and placing third in the 440. He did not compete in the final event, the three-mile, because of an injury to his leg received in the final of the 440, and he had the title clinched without skating the three miles. Immediate medical attention put him back into shape for the half mile, and he showed his determination by leading the field all the way in this race.

Richard Donovan, Endicott-Johnson Legion, who tied with Joe Moore of New York, former international champion, for second place, clipped 4 3-5 seconds off the world's record for the three-mile event.

Donovan Forges to Front.

Donovan skated in fourth osition and early in the race a shoestring broke, forcing him to finish the race with an ankle weakened. With three laps to go, Donovan pushed into the front and led the last 440 at a terrific clip, with Joe Moore and Edward Reed forcing him all the way. Donovan's time was 8:43 2-5. The previous three-mile record was 8:48. Moore finished second and Reed third.

Kasky won the half-mile in 1:21. Gorman was second and Donovan third. Joe Moore captured the 440 in 38 3-5 seconds, with Gorman and Kasky finishing in the order named in a thrilling sprint across the line.

Miss Gladys Robinson of Toronto won the woman's national championship with 105 points. Rose Johnson of Chicago finished second with 65, Elsie Muller of New York was third with 50 and Miss McRae of Toronto fourth with 20.

Miss Robinson Breaks Records.

Two new world's records were set in the women's races, Gladys Robinson winning both. The 440 was covered in 0:45 2-5 and the half-mile in 1:43 2-5. Don Baker, Brooklyn professional, established a new mark for the 150 yards, making it in 0:14 1-5. Robert Hearn, also of Brooklyn, set a new record for backward skating, covering 220 yards in a style in 0:21 3-5.

The men's point counts for the two days of the meet are: Kasky, 110; Donovan, 80; Moore, 80; Gorman, 70; Roy McWhirter, 10, and Edward Reed, 10.

FLOYD JOHNSON IS VICTOR.

Knocks Out Mike Nestor in Fourth Round at Staten Island Club.

Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight boxer, made his first ring appearance last night since his recent victory over Bill Brennan in Madison Square Garden, and knocked out Mike Nestor of California in the fourth round of a bout scheduled for fifteen rounds at the Brighton Boxing Club at Port Richmond, Staten Island. The Iowa boxer completely outclassed his opponent throughout the entire bout. In the first round Johnson allowed Nestor to assume the offensive, but in the second round the Iowan drove a right to the jaw which sent Nestor down for the count of nine.

A moment later Johnson again floored his opponent, this time for a count of seven. Just after the third round opened Johnson shot a hard right to the jaw and again floored Nestor for the count of nine. Nestor struggled to his feet but went down once more a moment later. The referee had reached the count of two when the bell saved Nestor from a possible knockout in this session.

Nestor was groggy at the start of the fourth round and Johnson lost little time in finishing his rival. Johnson came through with the decisive blow and Nestor fell forward on the canvas and was counted out. He then had to be assisted to his corner. Johnson weighed 194 pounds and Nestor tipped the scales at 183.

Jess Willard Reported Likely To Become Cape May Farmer

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 5.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion of the world, it is understood in this city is to become a Cape May County farmer. Willard, it is said, was here on Saturday looking over the famous Cape May Farmstead, which is located about one mile north of this city on the main seashore road. The Farmstead was formerly owned by Nelson Graves, the Philadelphia paint man, but Graves sold the farm to Garfield Dasenhower. The Farmstead is one of the show places of lower Cape May County. It is understood that Willard will raise cattle on the place, as it is well adapted to it. There are over 200 acres of meadow land attached to the farm.

SCHWANEKAMP IS TWO-MILE WINNER

Takes Class A Handicap Skating Race by Three Yards at Ice Palace.

Raymond Schwanekamp of the Morningside A. C. won the feature race of the skating program at the 181st Street Ice Palace last night. This was a two-mile Class A handicap affair in which Schwanekamp beat West Becker of Iceland, the scratch man, by a scant three yards. Schwanekamp had a handicap of ten yards. He jumped into the lead seven laps from the finish and just managed to lead the speedy Becker across the line. Becker led for twelve laps and thus won a special prize offered for the skater who was in the lead for the greatest number of laps. Horace Potter of the 181st Street Ice Palace, and Leroy Jay, a Brooklyn skater, two other competitors in this contest, were the victims of a bad spill, but suffered no injuries worse than a severe shaking up. Henry Niebuhr of the Tremont Skating Club was third. The time was 7:25%.

In the half-mile Class B event Raymond Murray, Middle Atlantic juvenile champion, led the field most of the way only to be boxed in by the big fellows at the finish. The result was a blanket finish in which E. Gossler, R. Kline and M. Schlesman, all unattached, crossed the line only inches apart.

Miss Betty Bridgman won the quarter-mile novice race for girls from a field of twenty-five starters. She led Miss Edith Zicha by half a lap at the finish, while Miss Zicha was, in turn, a half lap ahead of Miss Jane Harra. The time was 1:05 4-5.

KELLEHER NAMED ASSISTANT COACH

Former Niagara Basketball Star Is Appointed to Help Develop Fordham Five.

Eddie Kelleher, former star basketball player at Niagara University, has been appointed assistant coach of the Fordham University quintet, it was learned yesterday. Although Kelleher has been helping to coach the Maroon five for the last ten days or so, no official announcement of his appointment had been previously made. Bernard A. (Bud) Culloton, who has been head coach of the team since the start of the season, is not to be supplanted, it is said.

Kelleher, who coached the St. John's College quintet of Brooklyn last year, was called in to assist Culloton in handling the Fordham team only after the Maroon five had lost six successive games. Since that time the team has increased its losing streak to seven in a row, having lost a hard and well played contest to Mount St. Mary's College last Thursday night.

Culloton, who is now President of the senior class at Fordham, played on the Maroon five during the seasons of 1919-20 and 1920-21 and was also captain of the team during both campaigns, but following his second season he was declared ineligible and last season he coached the freshman team at Fordham. He was appointed coach of the varsity quintet last Fall. He also was a star pitcher on the Fordham nine for several seasons.

Fordham started its season auspiciously enough, defeating Cathedral College and Trinity College in its first two games. Since then, however, the Maroon has lost to Holy Cross, City College, Manhattan College, Cooper Union High School, St. John's College, Lehigh and Mount St. Mary's.

Three more contests are on the Fordham schedule for this week. The team will resume its campaign tomorrow night in a return game with its old rival, Holy Cross, in a contest at Hunts Point Palace. The team will make its annual Southern trip at the end of the week, meeting George Washington University quintet in Washington on Friday and the Naval Academy five at Annapolis on Saturday. Games with New York University, Albany Law School and State Teachers College are on the schedule for next week.

Two games were played last night in the tournament for the club pocket billiard championship of Brooklyn at Lawler Brothers' Academy. These contests were decided in the second section, preliminary play having been concluded in the first and third divisions. In both games played last night Brooklyn Home K. of C. was one of the contesting teams. In the first it defeated Ridgewood Council K. of C. by the score of 75 to 58. J. K. Hickey and T. Mulcahey played for the winners and F. Huggard and H. Smith for the losers. In the second game Brooklyn Home was the loser, Lafayette A. C. winning by the score of 75 to 62. A. Gordon and D. Gordon, father and son, represented the Lafayette A. C. The result of these two contests broke the triple tie for first place in the section, Lafayette taking the lead with four victories and one defeat, with Eldert A. C. second with three games won out of four played, and Brooklyn Home dropping to third position with four games won and two lost.

Play in the senior and junior handicap pocket billiard tournament was also continued at Lawler Brothers' academy last night. The peculiar feature of the three games in the senior division was that two were decided by the same score, 80 to 62. In one of these two contests J. Glover defeated A. H. Fleishman, and in the other E. Fawcett beat J. Rea. The third game was won by W. Ellison, who triumphed over J. Lang by 80 to 65. In the junior contests M. Brand defeated J. Finnegan, N. Richards won from W. O'Neill by 75 to 41 and S. Woode beat N. Wilson by 75 to 43. Finnegan and Wilson, because of their defeats, are eliminated from further competition.

Two games were played last night in the New York three-cushion billiard tournament now under way at the Cranfield Billiard Academies, at 145th and 181st Streets. In the game at the 145th Street Parlors Fred Owls defeated Sam Schoenfeld, 35 to 23 in 59 innings. Owls made a high run of 4 and Schoenfeld a high run of 3. The game at 181st Street resulted in a victory for George La Rue over Morgan Hughes. La Rue scored 83 in 64 innings and made a high run of 4, while Hughes scored 24 in 63 innings with a high run of 4. In the first game of the pocket billiard tournament for the room-keepers' championship Frank Greenfield defeated Frank Frenzel 100 to 58 in 30 innings. Both Greenfield and Frank Frenzel made high runs of 12.

The first game of the amateur 18.2 balkline billiard tournament now being held at the Julian Billiard Academy, Fourteenth Street, resulted in a victory for T. Hague over G. Shea by the score of 150 to 147. Although the loser, Shea had a high run of 14 as compared with a high run of 11 for Hague. In addition to Shea and Hague the following men will participate in the tourney: M. Rupp, W. Wolfe, C. P. Cortland, C. Grossman, L. Baumgarten and W. Cooper.

CLYDE YACHTSMEN ARE DISAPPOINTED

Had Hoped That International Six-Meter Races Would Be Sailed There This Year.

Much disappointment is being expressed by Clyde yachtsmen over the fixing of the international six-meter races again for the Solent. They had hoped that the Clyde would be chosen for this year's races, and it is understood that Fred J. Stephen, at the meeting of the British committee in London, made quite clear the feeling of the Clyde men with regard to the matter.

A large number of the six-meter racers are owned by Clyde yachtsmen, and it was thought that this fact might weigh with the committee in coming to its decision. In addition, it had been stated that certain at least of the American owners had expressed a hope that the forthcoming races would take place on the Clyde. There is a fear that some of the Clyde boats may not be sent south for the racing, and if this happens the probabilities are that the British team may not be so strong as otherwise would be the case.

It is satisfactory, however, from the Clyde point of view, that there will, in any event, be international racing on the Firth next season. The Seawanhaka Cup, at present held by the Royal Northern Yacht Club, which was won in America last September by Fred J. Stephen's Coila III., will be sailed for on the Clyde in the latter part of August.

The races in the Solent will make the third contest for the British-American Cup for six-meter boats. The contest takes the form of a series of six team races, four boats to a side. In the Solent in 1921 the British team won by 117 to 88 points from the Americans. Last year in America the Americans won by 111 points to 104.

TWO IRISH TEAMS ENTERED.

Each Claims to Be Erin's Representative at Paris Harrier Meet.

Ireland's difficulties have now extended to international sport, as has been foreseen for some time past. A fine point has arisen over the position which Ireland will hold in the international cross-country championship at Paris. At a meeting of the Cross-Country Association of Northern Ireland it was decided to send a team to the French capital. But the National Athletic and Cycling Union, the new governing body of athletics, cross-country and cycling for Ireland outside of the six-county area, also has decided to send a team to France. As, apparently, the two teams will run independently of each other, the difficulty has arisen as to the proper designation of each. Presumably, the same condition will recur when representation at the Olympic Games crops up.

Bezdek, Penn State Coach, Is Now a Handball Champion

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 5.—Hugo Bezdek, Penn State's football and baseball coach, has transferred his attention to handball to keep himself in shape between seasons, and has cleaned up all of the members of the physical education department, and there is no one left to dispute his claim to the college championship. He has defeated Graduate Manager Nell Fleming, Track Coach Nats Cartmell, Leo Houck, boxing instructor; Dave Detar of the wrestling squad, Dutch Herman, the basketball coach, and even such youngsters as Glenn Killinger and Rinkie Haines. Bezdek has even gone so far as to tackle two opponents at once in some hard-fought matches.

YANKS GET OPTION ON COAST PITCHER

Will Have First Bid on Services of May, Vernon Southpaw, for One Year.

The Yankees probably won't snare Jakie May, the celebrated Vernon southpaw, this season, but they will have first bid on his services for the next year, Business Manager Ed Barrow declared yesterday. In other words, the Yanks have a one-year option with the Vernon Club, and if May comes into the big leagues before that time the Yanks will have first say or know the reason why.

The above revelations were made in answer to a report that the Giants had landed the left-hander in their net. Rumor had it that John McGraw was hot on May's trail—had made a handsome offer to Owner Maier of the Vernon Club and hoped to annex May merely as a crushing retort to the Yanks, who had been trying all Winter to land him.

Questioned as to the possibility of this untoward happening, Barrow became exceedingly wrothy.

"That's all tommyrot," he declaimed. "The Giants can't possibly get May without our knowing about it. Let me tell you something. Bill Essick, manager of Vernon, and I made an agreement giving the Yanks first crack at the pitcher for a year. This option has been approved by the respective club Presidents, and it binds Vernon to give us the first bid. Nothing has been said to us about an offer from the Giants, and we certainly would know about it, unless Maier completely disregards his agreement with us."

The Yanks, in short, have May tied up until next January. Their option with Vernon was drawn up shortly after the deal for May had fallen through during the first week of last month.

Secretary Jim Tierney of the Giants was noncommittal on the great question. For several days there has been much talk of a twentieth pitcher for the McGraw clan, and yesterday it was casually suggested that the gentleman in question might be Mr. Jakie May of the Pacific Coast. The effect on Secretary Tierney was startling. He became suffused with blushes and was so patently perturbed by this random shot that most of the observers began suspecting that the Giants really might have an iron in the fire.

Of course, there is no official evidence that they are even considering such a move, but there are many reasons why they should. First of all, they could use a left hander of parts, even though they have Nehf and Bentley on the payroll. But, more important than this, just imagine the publicity that would flow in May's direction if he should appear hereabouts in Giant livery.

Fuller Makes Grave Mistake.

Life's sweet young dream was completely shattered yesterday as far as Infielder Frank Fuller of San Antonio is concerned. Up until yesterday Fuller was a promising player who was to receive a tryout with the Giants. He was to graduate into fast company, get his pay raised, hobnob with world's champions and maybe reach the heights of glory and fame.

But Mr. Fuller made one trifling mistake. He attempted to hold the Giants up for more money. He sent his contract back unsigned, and so yesterday the Giants sent Fuller himself back—clear back to San Antonio and the Alamo. "Far be it from us to encourage the insidious practice of holding out among young and impressionable players," the Giants told him, and so Mr. Fuller is still a minor leaguer.

McGraw became interested in him last Spring when he was playing second base for San Antonio. Before that he had been with Detroit, which farmed him out. The Yanks tried him but shipped him to Newark. Fuller's third big league trial was the shortest of all.

A much wiser young man is Guy Morrison, right hander from Bloomington, Ill., of the Three-Eye League. His contract came in yesterday, and it was signed, showing great wisdom and good judgment on the part of Guy Morrison.

Meanwhile, the Yanks go on adding southpaws to their roster to bulwark the efforts of Herb Pennock, the late Boston refugee. Yesterday they signed Patrick H. McKinstrey, who made his name on the baseball team of the Firestone Tire Company at Akron, Ohio. In 1921 he pitched twice against the Yanks in exhibition contests, and it is said that he once defeated Jim Vaughn, formerly of the Cubs, in a twenty-inning affair. He is 5 feet 11 inches in height, 23 years old and weighs 170 pounds. Besides this, he comes from Pittsburgh.

Baseball Record Published.

The 1923 edition of Spalding's Baseball Record is the most complete encyclopedia of the sport that has yet been published. In addition to telling the complete statistical story of the last season, it contains a "Little Red Book" in detachable form—a handy little volume which includes a complete tabulated review of all previous years, from the time of the inception of the first league up to the present.

John B. Foster, the editor of The Record, has recognized Cobb's disputed batting average of .401, but he has made one correction that will meet with universal approval. In the section called "Major League Record Performances, 1876-1922," he credits George Sisler with the highest batting average in the American League—.41979. It will be recalled that when Cobb batted .41962 in 1911, it was called .420. But when Sisler exceeded even this with a mark of .41979, Ban Johnson's statistician oddly termed it only a .419 average. On the face of it, Cobb's average was the higher, but when one goes into the extra decimals it is quickly found that Sisler's figure is the highest ever hung up by an American League batsman.

TO HOLD MUNICIPAL RACES.

New Rochelle Will Stage Skating Carnival on Lincoln's Birthday.

Official sanction from the Middle States Skating Association and the International Skating Union has been obtained for a skating carnival to be held at Beechmont Lake, New Rochelle, on Lincoln's Birthday. Speed contests for amateurs at various distances, novice races, special events for women, figure skating for both men and women, dancing and costume contests, exhibitions by leading professionals in the East and a hockey game, all accompanied by a band concert, promise a great day of outdoor sports.

This ice jubilee, originally sponsored by Ernest C. Wittnebel of New Rochelle, has reached such proportions that the City of New Rochelle has asked Mr. Wittnebel to take over its management and make it a municipal affair. Mr. Wittnebel has donated a silver cup for the hockey game, the contestants for which will be the strong New Rochelle sextet and the best team available.

BENTLEY THREATENS TO QUIT BASEBALL

DUNN REFUSES TO YIELD

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 5.—Jack Bentley, first baseman and left-handed pitcher, former star of the Orioles, who was sold recently to the New York Giants for $65,000, declared today that he was a holdout from the New York club. Bentley did not let the matter rest there, however. He said, "I never intend to wear a uniform in organized baseball again if I do not in some way benefit by my sale by Dunn to the Giants."

Bentley's decision to stand by his guns until a part of his purchase price is forthcoming dates from this morning, when he called on Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore Club, at Oriole Park. His former boss flatly refused to give any part of the purchase price to his former star and told Bentley that he did not consider that he was under any obligations to grant him a part of the money.

When told that Bentley had declared himself a holdout, Dunn said that it was now a matter between the pitcher and the New York club, and that so far as he was concerned he considered the incident closed.

"I have received the check for Bentley's sale, and when I turned his contract over to the Giants, I ceased to assume responsibility in the case," Dunn said.

"I have nothing to lose in the matter. If he does not report that is his own business. He wanted to be sold and furthermore he quit the club upon numerous occasions. He would have been heavily fined with any other club, but I took him back without penalizing him. The incident is closed so far as I am concerned."

Bentley declares that he has no complaint against the Giants, but that his services with the Orioles in their victorious journeys to four pennants should be considered. He would have no emphatic in making it clear that he intended to continue with a local automobile firm by whom he is now employed in case his demands are not met.

"I could manage Baltimore, play some independent ball too," he said, "and if I can't obtain what seems to me a matter of simple justice, I will have to work out my salvation away from the game."

The pitcher declares that he is not dissatisfied with the terms of his 1923 contract with the Giants as far as the salary goes. As a member of the Orioles in 1922 Bentley received a straight salary of $6,000 and his "junior world series" share amounted to nearly $1,000 more. His salary with the Giants is said to be slightly higher than this total.

Just where the latest baseball dispute will end is problematical. Before the matter ends it is entirely probable that Judge Landis may be called to act as arbiter.

Bentley wanted it made clear that when he told the New York Club he would sign he was trusting to Dunn to give him a share of the purchase price. "I trusted in his generosity," he said, "and I found my confidence was misplaced."

Remaining eligible in the $21,000 Futurity of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association are 590 foals of last year. Twenty-nine State and Canada are represented in the list. Of the 198 nominators, 29 have named five or more foals each. AFTER LACROSSE HONORS.

Lehigh to Start Practice First Week of March.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Feb. 5.—Determined to retrieve the championship lacrosse honors of the Southern Division, Manager Hicks has notified all candidates for the Lehigh University team to be ready to start practice the first week of March. If weather conditions prohibit outdoor sessions, practice will be conducted in the big, spacious Coppee Hall, the former barracks of the S. A. T. C.

Coach Bill O'Neill is not expected until the latter part of the month. In the meantime it is expected that the players will be well advanced in the work and when O'Neill takes charge will be ready to participate in the more gruelling fundamentals of the sport. Until the coach arrives, the practice will be supervised by Charlie Lattig, an assistant coach and former star player for Lehigh.

Sports activities, which had been pended temporarily due to the year examinations, were resumed when the Lehigh matmen opposed University of Pennsylvania. Next Saturday Coach Sheridan will pilot his squad to Annapolis, Md., for the annual clash with the navy.

CLOTHES: IN THE NEW YORK MANNER

The reward of being right

IN many of our announcements during the past few years we have pointed out the extravagance of buying clothes based on extreme style whims. We predicted the quick death of all "jazz" innovations—and it has come to pass.

The general trend of ready-to-wear clothing today is definitely toward correct lines. Clothiers now realize the weakness of styles which have no foundation in good form.

Our own clothing has never departed from rigid standards of good taste. And we have reaped the benefit in the increasing custom of thousands of men who recognize the economy of styles which are permanently right.

GERMANY PUZZLED AGAIN.

German inability to read the mind of other nations, so amply demonstrated before and during the war, apparently persists. The editor of Vorwärts expressed his amazement yesterday at the indifference of "the outside world" to what is going on in the Ruhr. Germany, he says, had pinned special hopes on America. He seems to have thought that our troops taken away from the Rhine would have been ordered to march on Paris. In that or some other way the United States, with England, was counted upon to show a sudden and overwhelming love for Germany, and to resent and resist every impairment of her sovereignty by the action of France. But nothing of the kind happened, and the grieving editor of Vorwärts is left wondering how it is that America "can now complacently look on as the young German Republic is being made the victim of the greatest injustice."

These laments recall the time when Germany was equally puzzled because the United States did not fly to her support in the great war, and did not regard the Kaiser as the delight of the human race. But it is wrong to represent Americans as today callous to the plight of Germany. The tone of the American press is not that of special animosity to Germany, but simply of urging that she face the hard facts of her situation as they are, and seek to make known her determination to do everything in her power to meet her obligations to France. The French Government has just repeated its desire to come to terms with Germany. Any reasonable offer from Berlin, M. POINCARE declares that he will not refuse to consider. If the German Republic is, indeed, in peril, here lies the way of safety open before it.

France is ready to make a stable settlement; she is willing to grant a moratorium to Germany of two years or so; but she insists upon a definite and binding agreement with satisfactory guarantees. Instead of puzzling themselves about the astonishing indifference of foreigners, the Germans would be wise to study attentively the French attitude, and the strength of the French position, and to come to an arrangement at the earliest possible date.

SENATOR LODGE'S AIDS.

HENRY CABOT LODGE has been treated a little harshly as floor leader of the majority of the Senate. You can't lead people who won't follow. Probably he has done as well as anybody else would have done in a dreary and thankless task. If Senator LODGE has seemed to be a little stiff, hieratic, Byzantine, that is largely the fault of his place and grudged preeminence. Senators not much younger than he look enviously on his post. The Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee is often severely judged by Senators who feel, without too much reason, that he is in their way. This is a fault or a result of long service. Probably Mr. LODGE is as weary of his place as "leader," with an always doubtful and frequently mutinous following, as his would-be successors can be weary of him.

There is no essential reason why an old scholar should be fighting with Amalek all the time. If Mr. LODGE has not exactly the good fortune of Moses in making Israel or Amalek prevail, according to the holding up or the letting down of his hands, still it is clear enough that Moses's hands are heavy; and so:

> They took a stone and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and AARON and HUR stayed up his hands, the one on the one side and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

Until the going down of the Sixty-seventh Congress, anyway, Mr. WADSWORTH and Mr. LENROOT are the present stayers. Mr. WADSWORTH is still a child. He won't be 46 till next Summer. He has been a farmer and "fancy" live stock raiser. That ought to recommend him to the farm bloc. Though he often submits to the exigencies of politics, he is a man of intelligence and capacity, naturally regarded as a "reactionary" by Representative MOTT, who is three years older, and by Representative FISH, eleven years younger. If Mr. WADSWORTH'S background of experience and courage saddens gentlemen who blithely describe themselves as "progressives," without ever getting further forward, what must be his effect on the gall-ducts of immortal Perfect Ones like Mr. LA FOLLETTE and his associate come-outers?

To these, indeed, Mr. WADSWORTH as a holder-up of Mr. LODGE'S hands isn't a hundredth part as maddening as Senator LENROOT in the same function. Mr. LENROOT tempers his progressivism and radicalism with common sense. Necessarily, he is anathema to Mr. LA FOLLETTE. Mr. LENROOT knows his business and the business of the country. He knows parliamentary law. He is a dangerous debater. Mr. LA FOLLETTE, who brooks no brother near the throne, naturally can't away with him.

Mr. WADSWORTH and Mr. LENROOT owe their promotion to Mr. LODGE and some of his friends. There is nothing against them save their ability. That is more than enough. But why was "JIM" WATSON of Indiana passed over? If he never can get anything right, he is the faithful errand boy between the Senate and the White House, and by his native Indiana qualities dear to Mr. HARDING'S heart. Senator CHARLES CURTIS of Topeka, likewise ARTHUR CAPPER'S site and capital, is also Mr. HARDING'S intimate. He is the "Republican whip" of the Senate. Anybody that can whip the bickering Republican Senators into line must have the tact of TALLEYRAND and all the bonhomie in the world. Those of us who dare think reasonably well of Assistants WADSWORTH and LENROOT do so provisionally. Why were talents, not to say geniuses, like WATSON and CURTIS, scornfully passed by?

INTERNECINE WAR.

The worst fears are realized. Controller CRAIG returns to the city breathing out threatenings and slaughter, talking valiantly about proceeding against his libelers, and speaking irreverently of the "fatuous course" of Mayor HYLAN. This may seem like taking unfair advantage of the Hannibal now resting at the Florentian Capua, but there is no mistaking the belligerent intentions of the Controller. He, when roused, is a first-class fighting man, and he seems now to be thoroughly roused. The happy family at the City Hall, the Administration beloved of all the people, is in danger of a terrible war right in its own "midst."

Can nothing be done to prevent the horrid conflict? Is the League of Nations powerless to intervene? Will nobody call the attention of the Mayor and the Controller to Article X. and bid them desist for the sake of the peace of the world—and also for the sake of bills at Albany and offices in New York? All wars are bad, but civil wars are the most awful of all. If the combat deepens, the people's Mayor will undoubtedly rush back to mingle in the fray. Even at present, with the fight merely against Mayor HYLAN'S political begetter, the onlookers dread a fearful verbal havoc. What will it be when the Mayor tears himself away from the common people and the simple pleasures of Palm Beach to make this city again resound with the thunder of the captains and the shouting?

THE RAILWAY OWNERSHIP DELUSION.

Director General DAVIS'S report on the Government's loss on wartime operation of the railways is timely. For there is an attack on the private ownership of railways. Recently there have been numerous additions to the 134 hostile bills pending before Congress. Their common characteristic is the opinion that the railway problem can be solved by enacting the later notions of those whose views have been proved wrong, with a blank check for "power." Experience has protested their check, and the protest is met by offering another one for larger demands, this time for Government ownership.

The Director General reports a loss of $1,800,000,000 for twenty-six months. That ought to cause the taxpayers to think about the policy of sending to them the deficits incurred in gratuities to shippers and unions. But there are additions to the loss not included in the report. The one most deserving mention is the inferiority of Government operation. Private operation is now breaking Government records of tons and passengers carried, although the railways conform to countless laws which were suspended in favor of the Government operators. Even so, a loss continuing indefinitely at the rate demonstrated of nearly a billion a year would heavily embarrass the Treasury. Shippers are now discovering that their profits are limited by the inability of the railways doing a maximum business to carry the traffic offered. A panic surely not yet forgotten resulted from the inability of business to get currency. It is still possible to abort a panic from the inability of business to get railway facilities. But the way of escape is not toward reproducing the losses and inefficiency of Government operation.

Senator COUZENS surely knows that Governments are organized for spending and have no organs adapted to making a profit. What Governments want they take. But election to office altered Mr. COUZENS'S views. He says that he has an open mind on Government ownership still, but his present opinion is that Government ownership is the "only solution." "Everywhere, from every section of "the country, the Government is being urged to do something in connection with the railroad problem. "It is the duty of Congress to endeavor to solve it, because there is "no other agency to do it." Why not let the railways try? The reason is that votes are lost by economy and efficiency. Imagine the Director General (in Mr. MCADOO'S manner) sending out two million pay checks twice a month, explaining that wages had been reduced by his order, or that wages would be paid in proportion to production. Imagine the Director General saying to shippers that it was as necessary to consider the railways as the shippers, and that rates were raised in mutual interest. If any one can grasp the idea beneath those suppositions contrary to fact, he can see why the Director General's report should be a sufficient check to the idea of Government ownership.

KUROKI.

Baron General KUROKI, who died on Sunday, was 59 when he commanded the First Army under Field Marshal OYAMA in the campaign in Southern Manchuria and defeated the Russians in a series of engagements from the Yalu to Mukden. On July 17, 1904, he gave ground before an assault by Count KELLER at Motienling, but the Russian General did not follow up his advantage. At the time the armies of OYAMA were closing in on Liao-Yang and KUROPATKIN was meditating an offensive to turn the Japanese right, for which he had collected a force of 95,000 men. On the defensive he was always dangerous, but his offensive strategy fell short of his objective. Whether he could not rely upon the tenacity of his lieutenants in action or lacked the ability to carry out his own plan of battle, the fact is that both at Liao-Yang and Mukden he did not fully avail himself of his advantages of position, but retreated with the skill for which he was famous to take up new ground and reorganize his army.

General Sir IAN HAMILTON, who saw the campaign through as a representative of the British Government with the Japanese forces, formed a rather low opinion of Russian generalship. At the same time, he thought that the Japanese missed more than one opportunity to take up the pursuit of the retiring enemy and prevent new concentrations. In the advance toward Mukden the Japanese, counting on Russian ineptitude and disorganization, had no doubt of ultimate success. Nevertheless, they played the game of strategy cautiously. At the battle of the Yalu it was necessary to win a victory for the effect upon the Government at St. Petersburg, and KUROKI felt his responsibility so much that he handled his greatly superior force with meticulous care. Later on at Amping, Liao-Yang and in the fighting before Mukden KUROKI'S stroke was surer and heavier losses were inflicted on the enemy. The impression one gets from reading HAMILTON'S "Staff Officer's Scrap Book" is that, while the conduct of the Japanese troops was admirable, the strategy of the commanders and the tactics employed might not have been successful if the Japanese had not had to deal with a dull-witted and slow-moving enemy whose transport was bad and supply department defective. Of the commander of the First Army General HAMILTON wrote:

> KUROKI is truly a delightful man. Not a beribboned, overbearing, jealous General, but gentle, unassuming, sympathetic and charming. Occasionally little jokes were made at which he and his staff laughed heartily.

The Japanese Army was modeled on the German. KUROKI never hesitated to make a frontal attack en masse when he learned that the enemy's line was thinly held. The Russian infantry shot execrably from want of practice; the artillery little better. KUROKI smoked constantly during a battle. In the pauses he would sometimes lie down and, using his cigar box as a pillow, take a nap. He was always serene. He threw the reins upon the shoulders of his subordinates, but was alert enough when anything seemed to be going wrong. Now and then, but only when the battle was proceeding to his satisfaction, he took the British observer into his confidence. After each victory champagne was drunk by the staff, and passivity gave way to as much elation as the Japanese ever betrayed. KUROKI would drain a big mug of champagne as if it were water. Before the World War the Manchurian campaign, in which no airplanes and gas were used, was sometimes spoken of as sanguinary, but the truth was that the Russian losses, including those of the battle of Mukden, were about 97,000 and the Japanese less than 50,000. KUROKI in a farewell talk with General HAMILTON said: "Now that we have beaten "Russia, I hope my fellow-country-"men will see that there cannot be "anything so radically wrong with us "after all, and that they will advance "more slowly."

THE HELPLESS ULTIMATE CONSUMER.

In his message to the Legislature on Jan. 3 Governor SMITH said:

> I would suggest to the financial committees of your honorable body that you give careful and painstaking attention to all requests for appropriations. The needs of the State must all be met and waste and unnecessary undertakings must be checked. I will co-operate with you in this to the last degree, because I am satisfied that heavy taxation is adding to the high cost of living. The man at the top can pass the tax along, but the ultimate consumer is helpless, and is entitled to the best thought that we can give to this question of the cost of government.

What hope to the ultimate consumer is there in the Governor's description of his predecessor's policy of retrenchment as "starvation, not economy"? Is the ultimate consumer who lives in this town going to be relieved by that blind plunge into expenditure without end, "the people's plan" for rapid transit? Are bills for salary increases for the bureaucracy and new additions to that tribe of taxeaters going to help the helpless ultimate consumer?

The Labor Department, into which Governor MILLER introduced economies and the paring off of superfluous jobs for "the boys," is much sympathized with by Governor SMITH in its "starvation." Suppose he forgets the Labor agitator, the representative of the "Labor vote," forgets that vote and remembers the helpless ultimate consumer. Bills for armories, bridges, roads, river improvements, old-age pensions; bills for new courts and court offices and fatter salaries and new employés are pouring in at Albany. Is the Governor going to stand for the reversal of Governor MILLER'S policy of cutting down expenses and cutting off the heads of superfluous officeholders?

Did Governor SMITH get a "mandate" for extravagance? He got a thundering majority. Did he get it in order that the pockets of the helpless ultimate consumer might be picked again, in the good old way with which Governor MILLER seriously interfered?

NEITHER PEACE NOR WAR.

The Lausanne conference seems to have broken up at last, after many false alarms, but nobody is going to war over it. Credit for that must be given to Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, who gathered his fleets and armies at the Dardanelles and headed off the Turkish rush into Europe last September. The Turks have had time to cool off, the Greeks have had time to reorganize, and apparently the military situation is so nicely balanced that nobody could start a fight with any reasonable prospect of winning a victory. But if the peace of Europe in February is safeguarded by what was done in September, it is also true that the failure of the peace conference was prepared by things that were done last year. For once PERTINAX of the Echo de Paris has spoken the simple truth—that this collapse is the consequence of FRANKLIN BOUILLON'S diplomacy.

Much of the recent excitement in London was obviously pumped up for the sake of its reaction in Paris. Not the French promise of more concessions just before the end of the conference—a promise which was also for strategic effect, it seems, since the French are going home along with the British—but France's policy before the Turkish victories at the end of the Summer gave the Turks their conviction that they could stand out against Europe. The fundamental fault of the Lausanne conference was the attempt of Lord CURZON to impose a victors' peace on a nation which had won the only war in which it was going to be compelled to engage.

It does not follow that negotiations for peace are ended. ISMET PASHA makes the curious observation that the delegates might have signed four-fifths of the peace treaty, on which there was complete agreement, and left the rest to be argued out later. He seems still to hope for a settlement, and there is plausibility in the view held in Paris and London that ISMET and KEMAL would have come to terms with Europe but for their knowledge that the irreconcilables at Angora wouldn't ratify the treaty. Time may educate the Grand National Assembly. The Turks' best card has been the hope of a separate treaty with France. But at the critical moment the French stood by the British. And is it likely that M. POINCARE would take a step which might change Britain's present benevolent neutrality toward the Ruhr experiment into a colder feeling?

The two chief points of disagreement, apparently, have been on the capitulations—the right of foreigners to be tried in their own consular courts—or some equivalent for them, and the validation of certain concessions made by the Sultan's Government after the armistice. Theoretically, at least, this latter point could be settled by an understanding between British and French capital. The dispute over capitulations, however, touches a fundamental question, though on it ISMET Pasha is reported at the last moment to have yielded. And then there is Mosul, referred to the League of Nations while private Anglo-Turkish conversations go on in the hope of a direct agreement. The conference may be resumed, but nobody seems to agree on even the conditions for a lasting peace.

Meanwhile, how about our unofficial observer, Ambassador CHILD, who was to give the conference a new benediction of understanding, or a new burgeoning of appeasement, or something of the sort? Mr. CHILD, it seems, has his separate Turkish-American treaty all written. There is nothing the matter with it except that the Turks won't sign it—or, rather, that the Angora Assembly won't ratify it.

THE ETERNAL HOUSE.

He that unburied lies wants not his hearse,
For unto him a tomb's the Universe.

If this poetic sentiment, found in Sir THOMAS BROWNE'S "Religio Medici," had been the religious philosophy of the Egyptians three thousand years ago and TUT-ANKH-AMEN had not been borne in royal cortège to the "eternal house" in the Valley of the Kings, he might have had the universe for his tomb, but it would have been only until the sands of the desert had become both a winding sheet and grave for his hearseless bones. The tomb of his burial, on the other hand, though it shut him away from the universe, has given him a certain freedom of the universe for all the rest of time. In a sense his entombment has given him immortality.

The sensuous immortality he sought has faded into the light of common day. The papyri he took with him were unread; the food was untasted; the fragrance of flowers was sealed only to be wasted on the desert air centuries later. But in the pomp of his very burial he has not only revealed a civilization which flowered under the sun and stars of the universe three thousand years before America was discovered, but he has illustrated in his going out from this terrestrial life with what dignity and august faith he entered the eternity beyond. There is a natural interest in this sudden revelation of the details of a past which only the science of the intervening centuries can keep from falling into dust and picture to others thousands of miles away. Fashion has caught into present fabrics the age-old designs and colors, and even the man in the street is peering over the shoulder of the archaeologist to see what comes next out of the tomb.

What is, after all, of most significance is not the utensils and implements with which the ancient Egyptians did their day's work, nor in what attire they went about it, nor with what art they adorned their leisure. The most striking, impressive and significant revelation is with what consciousness of the immanence of another existence they lived in their little world, which was hemmed in by the desert, and with what artistic thoroughness they prepared not only for their exit from this world but also for their advent into the one beyond their ken.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Tidal Waves Were Predicted.

What seems to have been the most violent earthquake since the one that wrecked whole mountains in Alaska a few years ago expended most of its strength somewhere in the lonely wastes of the Pacific, and again, from the human standpoint, almost no damage was done. That is a peculiarity of earthquakes—the amount of harm they do depends not on the strength of the vibrations but on the places where they occur. The famous earthquakes are not those that most disarranged the surface of the earth, but those that happened to shake down cities of considerable size, as Messina and Lisbon, and therefore caused many deaths.

In this instance, as usual, the seismographs now rather widely scattered over the world gave the first news by many hours that somewhere the earth had trembled to an unusual and alarming degree, but the interpretation of the markings made by these ingenious instruments is still an uncertain art, telling distance rather than direction, and even distance not too well. This was shown by the fact that some of the observers thought that Saturday's earthquake was near the Aleutian Islands, while others, and the majority, figured out that the shock had occurred thousands of miles to the southward. The majority were right, as it happens, and from that it is evident that skill in the reading of seismograph records is increasing.

That there may be practical advantage from knowing betimes that there has been a big earthquake somewhere is shown by the fact that as soon as the observer in Hawaii saw his pendulum in wide motion he sent out by cable and otherwise warnings to be on guard against tidal waves, which are the frequent consequence of earthquakes, and it was due to the timeliness of this warning that the waves, when they did come, caught comparatively few people unprepared.

If the seismograph does no more than this it will have proved itself something more than merely interesting, which is about all it has been in the past, and will illustrate again the great truth that "pure science" sooner or later always has actual and direct utility.

It Simply Can't Be Done.

Now it is by means of moving pictures that the theory of Dr. EINSTEIN is to be made comprehensible to others than the twelve men whom, alone of all the earth's inhabitants, he, according to report, credited with the ability to understand it. In other words, relativity has been filmed and all who choose can go and see on the white curtain just what the thing is and how it works.

Such, at any rate, is the promise, but already doubters have arisen. Having seen the pictures, they say, just as have many readers of "popular" articles on the subject, "Why, yes, all that is perfectly comprehensible. Anybody can understand it and most people knew it before." Then, if they are persons at all thoughtful, they ask themselves why Dr. EINSTEIN limited so narrowly those competent to judge his discoveries and contentions, and it occurs to them that, as he was not likely to be mistaken, perhaps what they saw in the theatre, like what they read in the magazines, had little or nothing to do with Einsteinian relativity.

And the wiser the doubters are the more they will doubt, and a good many of them, considering the matter carefully, will come to the sound conclusion that there is but one way to arrive at an understanding of what the doctor has in mind. It is a simple way, though not easy.

Starting with a mind having a more than ordinary turn for mathematics, one must study that science for fifteen or twenty years to the almost complete exclusion of anything else. Then, having mastered all its higher and highest forms and extensions, one will be prepared for the further step into the domain where Dr. EINSTEIN has led the way.

The attempt to explain his theory to people who know only the elements of arithmetic, algebra and geometry is quite hopeless. The thing cannot be done, and, however humiliating the confession may be, most of us will be obliged either to take our Einsteinism on trust or just ignore it, as we do so much else in mathematics, as of no concern to us.

A Promise With a Proviso.

The country is safe again! The Steuben Society of America, in resolutions formally adopted, has promised "to support our Government in any policy it may adopt and in any measures it may take." Just think what would be the national anxiety and alarm if the Steuben Society had adopted resolutions to the contrary effect!

But wait! The society's promise is conditional. Added to it is the proviso that the policies adopted and the measures taken are to have for object the expression of "American disapproval of the action taken by France" and the calling of a second peace conference in Washington to revise the Versailles Treaty and make a new sort of peace.

Well, one doesn't have to be a member of the Steuben Society to be more or less discontented with the peace we have. Not for that reason, however, do quite all of us see Germany today as the innocent victim of French rapacity, and a good many of us would be considerably annoyed if our Government were to take in the current controversy the side that would win for it the approval of these Steubeneers.

They forget, apparently, that the old General whose name they very properly revere fought on the same side that the French did, and while he probably did not forget his German origin, he showed no hesitation as to what he should do when Germans confronted him in the field, as they often did.

The Baron gave his support to the American Government, but not on conditions, as do his present day admirers.

An Important Question Is Pondered.

Of the many women who told PENRHYN STANLAWS what they thought of bobbed hair, most of them said little more than that they thought it all right for young girls—especially the pretty ones—but lacking in dignity for adults. But one answerer of Mr. STANLAWS'S questions really said something.

She declared that bobbed hair standardized women, while long hair individualized them. Therefore she is for long hair.

Perhaps "standardize" is not quite the right word, but it is easy to see what this thoughtful critic of styles meant and that she is right in voting for one that individualizes the wearer instead of putting her in a class. Still, not all bobbed hair is bobbed alike, nor is it all arranged in the same way. It, too, permits of some individualization—permits the display of good taste as well as of very bad taste. And that can be said of long hair, too.

Long Island Battle Monument.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The controversy as to the most suitable site for a memorial to be erected in Brooklyn in honor of the heroes of the Battle of Long Island, as between Gowanus and Prospect Park, reveals many advantages in favor of locating the monument in the park west of Prospect Hill, one of the most important points in the battle line, upon land much higher than that in Gowanus. It cannot be conceded that the main fight of the battle occurred at the Old Stone House.

The subject of erecting a monument in Brooklyn, similar to that at Bunker Hill has long been considered. Some twenty years ago the Sons of the American Revolution in Baltimore surveyed the battlefield to secure the most favorable site for a memorial in honor of the heroes from Maryland, and selected a place in Prospect Park, and there erected a beautiful shaft. As a champion of our public parks for park purposes, THE TIMES may well conclude that the erection here of a monument to one of the heroes of the American Revolution is a proper use; and we may also consider whether the use of public funds to purchase land for another park, wherein to erect the memorial should receive greater favor. TO AN OLD CARD TABLE.

I wonder when you came across the sea
And who embarked with you so long ago;
'Tis very much a mystery to me—
You're English made and that is all I know.

You did not come with Puritans, I'm sure,
Who, finding Cromwell's England insecure,
Came here to take adventure up again.

You bear some marks that do not blink the truth.
Some signs that may be read as plain as print;
They tell a tale of your tempestuous youth,
When jack boots stamped and blades came out to glint.

That slash that caught your edge was not for love,
And that's a rather gruesome looking blot,
Where something splashed upon you from above—
'Twas good red wine, perhaps, or it was not.

I sense your past in which you held the pace
With old-time players, brave and debonair;
How must you feel when I, with solemn face,
Sit down before you to my solitaire?

REGULATING THE EXCHANGE.

Mr. Untermyer and the Lockwood Committee's Proposed Blue Sky Law.

By SAMUEL UNTERMYER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial in your issue of the 18th inst. entitled "Stock Exchange Regulation" you criticise the Lockwood committee for having recommended to the Legislature a so-called "blue-sky law", to prevent frauds in the public sale of securities, to regulate their issue and sale and incidentally to require brokers to be licensed by the State and to prohibit them from dealing on any stock exchange that has not likewise secured a license from the Superintendent of Banks which involves supervision of its affairs subject to review by the courts.

If the proposed law is necessary to safeguard the community against the colossal frauds that have recently been brought to light as the result of wholesale bankruptcies of Stock Exchange firms, and if it will add to the stabilizing of securities, I take it that it makes no difference by whom the law is proposed and that it will receive proper consideration on its merits. I am sure, however, it can be demonstrated to your satisfaction that the regulation of the public sale of securities has a very close relation to the subject of housing, unless you are willing to confine the inquiry within the most narrow limits and thereby lose the opportunity for a thorough cleaning up of the situation directly and indirectly affecting that important subject.

Criminal combinations among manufacturers and dealers in building supplies, abuses of labor unions, grossly excessive premiums on workmen's compensation insurance, exorbitant fire insurance charges, diversion into speculative channels of funds that should be made available for loans on improved real estate, and others too numerous to mention, may be cited to show how many are the factors that enter into the solution of the problem. Workmen's compensation insurance is a fair illustration of what I mean. It amounts to over 10 per cent. of the total cost of labor under the present wasteful and exorbitant rates of premium. Only 60 per cent. out of every dollar paid in premiums is used in the payment of losses. Thirty-five cents of the remaining forty cents is wasted. The committee has recommended a bill for the State monopoly of workmen's compensation insurance by which this saving will unquestionably be effected, as has been proven by the experiences of the State of Ohio and other States. If enacted it should save about 4 per cent. of the total cost of construction.

I believe it will be conceded that the most powerful of the trusts and combinations connected with the building industry would have been impossible of organization but for the machinery and facilities afforded by the Stock Exchange. Take, for example, the instance that always occurs first to one because of its superb management and its complete domination of the industry—the United States Steel Corporation. It was proved beyond question in our investigation that the Steel Trust enjoys the advantage of a differential of from $3 to $5 per ton over each and every so-called independent, and that the latter exist by the sufferance of the Steel Trust and because of the tolerance and broad vision in the management of that corporation. And yet if we look into the organization of the steel company we shall find that this colossal undertaking was made possible only by the use of the machinery of the Stock Exchange. It was made up by the combination of the American Tin Plate Company, National Tube Company, Federal Steel Company, American Steel and Wire Company, American Can Company and a number of other companies, each of which was in itself an illegal combination, and to which was added the Carnegie Steel Company. All the securities of these companies were listed and actively dealt in on the Stock Exchange. It was only by manipulating the securities of the companies as against the "when issued" securities of the United States Steel Corporation and by manipulated pool dealings in the latter at prices that made it attractive to the holders of the shares of the constituent companies to exchange their shares for shares of the United States Steel Corporation that the constituent companies' shareholders were induced to make the exchange.

After the deposit of the bulk of the shares of constituent companies had been thus secured for exchange the Stock Exchange promptly struck the securities of the constituent companies from their official list and prohibited further dealings in such shares on the floor of the Exchange. The result of this was that the investors who innocently imagined that they were at liberty to deposit or not deposit their shares and who had elected not to deposit awoke one fine morning to find that they were without a market. They were no longer either salable or available as collateral and in that way they were in the end literally forced to make the exchange. It so happened that in this particular case the event proved that if the investor who had exchanged his shares held his exchanged shares through all the market tribulations of the Steel Trust he made a good bargain. But that is not generally true nor does it disprove the fact that the machinery of the Stock Exchange made possible this combination with its far-reaching power over the steel business. The same thing is true of the Sugar Trust and of many others that might be cited.

I suppose it will be admitted that structural steel is an important item in building construction. The committee's attention was called to this subject of the relation of the sales of securities to the combinations of manufacturers of structural steel by a then impending combination of seven great independent steel manufacturers, which number was finally reduced to three. The proposed consolidated company had not yet been organized; no contracts had been signed; no binding commitments had been secured; it was not known what would be the capital of the company or which concerns would be included in it; its assets and liabilities were undetermined; and yet the unknown stock of the unborn company was being dealt in on the Curb Exchange "when issued."

Demands were made upon the committee to investigate this transaction, as a result of which the Curb Exchange was required as the alternative of criminal prosecution to put an instant stop to the dealings in this blind pool, which it did. I believe the project was, in itself, a sound and legitimate one and one which, if it had materialized, might eventually have furnished the hope of competition with the Steel Trust, but in following the precedent of manipulating these securities before they were issued that was set by the Steel Company, and that since has been followed by every trust whose securities are publicly sold, it was vicious.

Unless the public sales of securities can be controlled by the State, there is no reason why the fifty or more separate criminal combinations (including in all about 1,596 corporations and individuals) that were found by the committee to exist in the various lines of building construction should not follow the lead of these trusts in every line of the industry. I insist that the bill introduced by the committee is a wholesome, preventative measure squarely within the legitimate powers and jurisdiction of the committee. It is easier to stop these trusts before they are organized than to try to disband them after they have been put together. The fact that the bill applies to all classes of securities is no argument against its application to the industries with which the committee is dealing. It could not constitutionally have been limited. The subject had to be regulated by a general law, and rightly so.

If the incentive to the owners of these competing properties that is furnished by the dumping upon the public of vast quantities of watered stocks representing only good-will based upon the ability to squeeze the consumers through the elimination of competition can be prevented, the chief motive for these combinations will have been destroyed. The trusts are more dangerous to the public than are these temporary trade associations. The latter with all their vices are temporary and easily reached by the law; they do not at least as a rule result in the closing of factories although they do involve in many cases the curtailment of output and the division of territory. In times of depression, when the demand dwindles, it is easy for a member to withdraw from a combination of this character and to resume competition, whilst in the case of the trust it is impossible. The former owners are permanently tied together.

The scheme of the bill is to take away the many illegitimate inducements now offered for the public distribution of the securities of these trusts. One of its provisions requiring pool agreements and profits of intermediaries to be made public will prove invaluable for this purpose. Apart from these considerations, have you not also lost sight of the fact that the incidental and indirect regulation of the Stock Exchange is the least prominent and important part of the bill in question, although far from negligible? The bill is directed mainly to the prevention of the wholesale frauds that have been perpetrated upon the public through the public sales of securities and against the continuous robbing of the investor by brokers who have been gambling with their customers' money and who could not have done so but for the facilities furnished them by the Stock Exchange.

Failures by which small investors throughout this country have been robbed of hundreds of millions of dollars within the last few years can be stopped by applying to the brokers and exchanges the supervising powers that have proven so effective with our banks and life insurance companies. Why, for instance, should the New York Stock Exchange be, as it is today, the sole arbiter, all over the United States, from whose judgment there is no appeal of who should or should not be permitted to conduct a stock brokerage business? Why should it have the uncontrolled power to put a man out of business? Yet it has and duly exercises that incredible power by refusing to furnish or by discontinuing the furnishing of stock quotations through its ticker service. It is inconceivable that this and innumerable other autocratic powers that are subject to no review by public authority should have been so long permitted to continue.

Nothing that I have said here or that has been said in the report of the committee, for which I assume my full share of responsibility, is intended to reflect upon the character of the members of the Stock Exchange. Judged by the ethical standards that have long prevailed in the financial world the vast majority of the members of the Stock Exchange are as honorable a body of men as will be found anywhere, but that offers no reason why the exchange should be permitted to exercise powers of super-government unknown to any other class in the community, and that are necessarily subject to abuses which cannot be reached by the processes of the law by those who are injured.

It is due to the members of the Stock Exchange to say that they have shown a commendable spirit in their efforts to abate these abuses, largely due, as I am sure they will be the first to admit, to the continuous agitation to subject them to legislative and legal control. I challenge them to name a single reform that has been inaugurated by the Exchange that has not been pointed out to them in the course of the efforts that have been made for their regulation.

Their recent questionnaire is the best possible proof not only of their despotic power but of the exercise by them of functions similar to those of the Controller of the Currency and Superintendents of Banks over national and State banking institutions. When their fiat goes forth against a dealer in securities in any part of the United States it means business annihilation to the man against whom it is directed. Is not that in itself sufficient to condemn this terrible system of irresponsible super-government? That these are functions of government that should either be entrusted to Government authority, or, at least, subject to its supervision, no sane person can deny. The social, financial and political power of the Exchange alone stands in the way. The question is how long will these obstructions be tolerated.

I accordingly respectfully insist that whilst housing is only one of the many industries that is threatened and injuriously affected by our present unregulated system of public sale of securities, it is at least one, and an important one, of those thus affected, and that there is nothing foreign nor "indirect" in the demand by the Lockwood Committee that there shall be a reform in that system. Justice With Peace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of Mr. Louis V. Granville, "The Spirit of Peace," in THE TIMES of Jan. 29 is a good expression of the sane feeling that Germany would like to awaken in the heart of every American. It is to be regretted that it was written by an ex-soldier. Let me remind Mr. Granville that France has not sent an army of conquest to destroy Germany, but has merely placed a securely armed force to guard over the principal source of Germany's wealth. Through years of bitter experience the French learned that they could not subdue the Germans by throwing ballyhoo at them. Let Germany make reparation of that which she has destroyed and that will do more than anything else to bring about "that true spirit of peace that goes with honor and justice" of which Mr. Granville speaks. MRS. HALE WINS FIGHT IN POLITICAL LOAN CASE

Court Strikes Out Defense in Suit for $4,300 Against Farmer-Labor Party Officials.

Supreme Court Justice Bijur yesterday struck out the defense in a suit by Mrs. Marie Tudor Garland Hale, wife of Swinburne Hale, lawyer, and mother of Charles Garland, who at one time refused a legacy of $1,000,000 from his father, James A. Garland, to collect on a judgment for $4,300 obtained in 1921 against the Farmer Labor Party of New York.

Mrs. Hale lent $4,000 to the Farmer Labor Party in 1920, when Dudley Field Malone ran for Governor, on condition that it would be repaid before election day. The written agreement stated that it was contemplated the campaign contributions to be made before election would more than repay the loan. The agreement said further:

"It is also realized by the persons who sign in behalf of the party that Mrs. Garland is relying for protection not only upon the legal responsibility of the party, but upon the moral responsibility of such persons."

The loan was not repaid and after Mrs. Garland had been married to Mr. Hale she sued William Kohn, as Chairman of the party, and one of the signers, but could collect nothing after she got judgment. She then sued Alcan Hirsch, the Treasurer, and Nathan Fine, Secretary, who also signed, to recover from them personally, in their answer the defendants asserted it was understood by the signers that the loan was to be repaid out of campaign contributions, and that if there were not enough funds from that source the loan would not be repaid.

Mrs. Hale's attorneys argued that the written agreement permitted no such construction, and the court upheld the contention. The attorneys will now ask judgment in the amount sued for.

A. G. PAINE JR. MARRIES.

RECTOR WOULD TRY BISHOP AND GRANT

QUESTIONS HIS BELIEF

Church Has Been in Error All Along and Won't Admit It, Clergyman Declares.

The Rev. Howard Murray Dumbell, rector of St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church, Darien, Conn., and once a classmate of Bishop William T. Manning at the University of the South, gave out, through the offices of The Churchman yesterday, a statement in which he declared that Bishop Manning was guilty of "glaring disloyalty to Christ." He added:

"If Dr. Grant is an heretic as an Arian, Bishop Manning is a worse heretic as an Apollinarian. It is a clear case of the pot calling the kettle black. Assertion of the deity of Jesus by Bishop Manning involves denial of his perfect humanity as a corollary. In asserting the deity of Jesus Bishop Manning denies His perfect manhood."

At the outset Mr. Dumbell charges that Bishop Manning backed down from the position he took in the letter "which he himself sent to the newspapers" demanding that Dr. Grant either recant or resign.

"No man living knew better than Bishop Manning knew from the very beginning of this controversy, the statement continues, 'that it was utterly impossible to bring Dr. Grant to trial for 'denial of the deity of Jesus without involving direct consequences to the Church as its doctrines now stands. And this accounts for the peremptory demand that Dr. Grant either recant or withdraw voluntarily, so as to preclude the necessity for a trial.

"Let Bishop Manning state his belief as to who Jesus was without ambiguity. I defy him to do it. Was He, perfect God or perfect man? Or was He both at the same time as regards the potential possibility to sin?

Says Church is in Error.

"The fact is the Church has been in error all along and won't admit it. The Church is now on trial at the bar of Christ for disloyalty to Him. Dr. Grant is defending the truth of God against the traditionalists. They are enraged and want to crucify him.

"I speak out today for my Master, Christ, whom I love with my whole heart and soul and mind. I am ready to suffer for His sake, 'who shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.' This willingness is partly attested by the fact that as I write this letter I am well past 50 years old, with family, without private means and well aware that the traditionalists are still strongly entrenched in power and even now threatening one who has dared to speak the truth.

"Much popular opinion seems to side with the traditionalist in this case against the truthseeker. It is because they do not rightly understand this matter. The Church must be loyal to Truth, to Christ; but history has proved itself most frightfully fallible, and where it is wrong it must be set right. If scholars do not begin to speak out the Church will stay wrong forever. I think the fact is many people think the Church deserves to die. Certainly like the crowd around the cross of Christ many are rejoicing in the suffering of an innocent man who only desires to see the Church delivered from the thralldom of unbelief it now occupies toward the truth of God.

"Manning and I sat close together in the late Dr. du Bose's classes at the University of the South when Dr. du Bose taught the co-equality of humanity and predicated of Him the possibilitas peccandi, that is to say that it was possible for Jesus to sin. Dr. du Bose was threatened with ecclesiastical trial. I myself was approached by the then Bishop of Tennessee to tell what he taught. Bishops and learned theologians discussed the question with him with the result that he worsted them all. No trial supervened. Dr. du Bose continued to hold his position until extreme old age compelled him to retire, known as perhaps the very greatest theologian in both his own country and England.

Teaching 32 Years Ago.

"This teaching, emphasizing the perfect humanity of Christ, was given to all the theological students preparing for the Episcopal ministry at Sewanee more than thirty years ago.

"Now, why does not Dr. Grant have Bishop Manning brought to trial for denial of the perfect humanity of Jesus, which belief the Church requires? If one ought to, one should. If Dr. Grant is a heretic as an Arian, Bishop Manning is a worse heretic as an Apollinarian. It is a clear case of the pot calling the kettle black. Assertion of the deity of Jesus by Bishop Manning involves denial of His perfect humanity as a corollary. In asserting the deity of Jesus Bishop Manning denies His perfect manhood. Let us have clear and unmistakable language without ambiguity.

"Jesus walking about the earth in the form of a man, eating and drinking and talking and sleeping, was either a man as the Church declares He was, or He was not. Was He perfect and complete God and perfect and complete man at the same time? That declaration involves a flat contradiction, and God has so formed the human mind that it cannot believe a contradiction. Jesus on earth was either God or man as regards the possibility to sin. He was in all points tempted like we are, as the Bible declares, or He was not. If it was impossible for Jesus to sin then He was not 'in all points tempted like as we are,' nor tempted in any point whatever.

"Now let both these points be brought to trial and the question decided once for all which of them is correct. No metaphysical quibble will do. Could Jesus have sinned or could He not? A categorical answer to that question will let us all know where we stand and every minister and member of the Church has a right to know and must know. Now try these two men and tell the whole world the verdict.

Bishop Manning declined yesterday to comment on the sermon preached on Sunday by Dr. Grant in which the rector read letters praising his stand, one of these describing a high ecclesiastic "as a churchman and Dr. Grant as a human." Dr. Grant, too, declined to see newspaper men. There was considerable speculation, however, among persons familiar with the controversy as to whether the Bishop would take official notice of Dr. Grant's latest sermons on religious liberalism which many construed as ridicule of traditional beliefs.

PROTESTANTS PLAN CAMPAIGN OF VISITS

Two Families Drop Church for Each One That Attends, Says W. B. Millar.

For every family attached to a church there are two unattached, although at one time active in their affiliation, said William B. Millar, General Secretary of the New York Federation of Churches at the annual meeting of that organization held yesterday in St. Thomas's Guild Hall in West Fifty-third Street. He told of the necessity for a campaign of visitation to Protestant families who have dropped their connection with any church.

"New York is frequently called a cemetery," said Mr. Millar. "Certain it is that there are literally hundreds of thousands of Protestant folk buried in its teeming throngs—church members who have come to the city from smaller places and have never connected themselves here with any church, and are rapidly drifting away from God and the Church.

MADE HIS LAST WILL ON AISNE BATTLEFIELD

An appraisal of the estate of Charles Merillon, who died Oct. 30, 1918, at his home in Paris, was filed here yesterday showing that he left $388,117 taxable here. He got the property from his mother, Mrs. Cornelia Stewart Merillon, niece of A. T. Stewart, who on her death left a large estate consisting of land on Long Island and stock in the Garden City Co. Her son's share in Long Island realty valued at $839,597 is $174,597. He had preferred and common stock in the Garden City Co. valued at $187,865 and an interest in two mortgages of that company worth $155,391.

The appraisal shows that the only will made by Mrs. Merillon was executed in Paris in July, 1914, and confirmed by another will made on a battlefield in the Aisne sector on Nov. 18, 1914, giving 900,000 francs to Angeline C. Chamberlain, also known as Mme. St. James, living at Neuilly. He also gave her all the art treasures and other contents of a house there. By the French law his father, Joseph Merillon, and two brothers and a sister got all the rest of the estate. They are contesting his gift to Mme. St. James.

PRINCE FUSHIMI DIES FROM STROKE

LORD KEEPER OF PRIVY SEAL

He Took a Prominent Part in the Building of Japan and Won Distinction in War With Russia.

TOKIO, Feb. 4 (Associated Press).—Prince Sadanaru Fushimi, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, uncle of Emperor Yoshihito, died today as the result of a stroke of apoplexy.

Prince Fushimi was a scion of one of the oldest of the princely families of Japan. It was founded in the fourteenth century. He was a "prince of the blood," and as such, the succession being clear, he would have been eligible to the throne. During a long and distinguished career the Prince had served his country as soldier, diplomat and as statesman. Prince Sadanaru was born April 29, 1858, five years after the visit of Commodore Perry to Japan. During his time his country grew to be a first-class world power. In all of the changes through which she passed the Prince took a prominent part.

When he was 18 years old Prince Sadanaru married the Princess Toshiko of the house of Arisugawa, whose rank was equal with his own. They had three children, Prince Hiroyosu, Prince Kunika and the Princess Sadako.

The Prince served as corps commander in the war with China. In the war between Russia and Japan he took an active part, serving as commander of the Imperial Guard. At the battle of Liaotung Peninsula he personally led a bayonet charge that took the strongly fortified Nanshan Hill. He rose to be a General in the army.

Before the coming of peace the Prince was recalled and sent to this country to represent the Emperor as head of the commission to the St. Louis Exposition. As a guest of the Government he visited Washington, New York, Chicago and other cities.

WORLD SILK SHOW OPENS TO PUBLIC

Beautiful Fabrics, Prize Babies, Pretty Girls and a Goddess Interest Visitors.

INDUSTRY HAS LUNCHEON

Dr. Copeland Says Woman in Silk Gown Is Happier Than One Who Wears Calico Clothing.

The International Silk Show was opened to the public yesterday morning in the Grand Central Palace. It was estimated that there is $5,000,000 worth of fabric on the first floor, to say nothing of the valuable materials on the other two floors of the exhibition. The Cheney exhibit alone is valued at $250,000.

Coincident with the opening a luncheon was given by the Silk Association of America at the Hotel Commodore. The speakers included: Julius Henry Cohen, Counsel of the Port Authority of New York; Frederick N. Withey of the National Surety Company, and Edward M. C. Tower, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Exposition, who presided. M. Gaston Liebert, French Consul-General, wired, saying that illness prevented his attending the opening.

Senator Royal S. Copeland gave a brief talk on silk as an aid to health at the booth of the Ribbon Committee. He expressed approval of sheer silk stockings. "There is no doubt that thick stockings cause perspiration and consequent chapping of the skin," said Dr. Copeland, "Provided one has heavy stockings for extreme weather. I can see no objection to thin silk ones and silk is the best material to wear next the body. It is both light and warm.

"Heavy clothing is cumbersome, and the more weight we can throw off and still keep warm, the better. Our clothing, of course, is determined by our occupation, but certainly its quality has a great influence on our self-respect. The man in rags finds it hard to keep a good opinion of himself, and a woman in a silk gown is naturally happier than one in calico. As mental happiness is always reflected in bodily health, I think we may say that the silk manufacturers are doing a good deal for the health of the world.

"Statistics show that fifty years ago, when silk was little worn, the span of life averaged 42 years. The average is now 52 years. If you can prove that silk has lengthened our lives you will create a great boom for the fabric. Anyway, I hope that silks will become cheaper, so that Democrats as well as plutocrats can wear it. My party admires silk, but generally wears cotton."

It was pointed out that Dr. Copeland himself had on a silk shirt.

One of the most interesting exhibits was devised by Wechsler, Barber & Co., whose mechanical Goddess of Silk moved gracefully, showing the draplngs of the beautiful silks that fell from her throne. The spectators were kept at a distance and the illusion was so perfect that at times the Goddess appeared to be quite alive. The Hygrade Silk Manufacturing Company shows a Palm Beach scene, with models attired in fitting costumes.

Mallinson's have a fabric exhibit which is called "The Development of the Loom." The scenes are hand blocked on both thin and heavy materials, showing the old fashioned hand loom; the Jacquard loom, which revolutionized the fabric in 1801, and the early power loom of 1833.

A private showing of artificial daylight was held yesterday afternoon at the showroom of I. P. Frink, and will be continued during the show at the exposition. The system was invented by George Sheringham, an English color artist.

Last night Hope Hampton, the motion picture actress, appeared in a Marie Antoinette gown made of Vorticelli satin fabric in a new shade called "Hampton Peach." Marjorie Peterson of the Greenwich Village Follies and Roshanara, the dancer, appeared at the Mallinson booth. Other actresses will appear throughout the week.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The disturbance over the Eastern Gulf of Mexico has remained almost stationary and pressure was relatively low and falling Monday night from the upper Mississippi Valley southwestward to New Mexico, while it was high over all other regions. There was a decided increase in pressure Monday over North Dakota and Montana and the Canadian provinces to the northward. Rain has continued in the South Atlantic States and along the East Gulf Coast, and there have been local snows in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and the Northwestern States. The temperature continued to fall Monday in the Atlantic States, south of Pennsylvania, while there was a reaction to higher temperature in the upper lake region, the great central valleys and the southern plains States, but colder weather has again appeared in the Far Northwest.

There will be much cloudiness over the States east of the Mississippi River during the next two days and rain is probable in the Southeastern States Tuesday and Wednesday and snow in the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region and in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States by Tuesday night or Wednesday.

The temperature will rise slowly in the lower lake region and the Ohio and lower Mississippi Valleys Tuesday and in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States Wednesday, but colder weather will again overspread the Ohio and middle Mississippi Valleys during Wednesday.

FORECASTS TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Generally fair and continued cold Tuesday. Wednesday unsettled, with slowly rising temperature, probably snow.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware—Cloudy Tuesday, followed by snow Tuesday night or Wednesday; slowly rising temperature Wednesday.

Western Pennsylvania, Western New York and West Virginia—Increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer, followed by snow by Tuesday night or Wednesday.

CITY AROUSED OVER CLEANER TAXI MOVE

CENTRAL CONTROL OF CABS

Speakers at Luncheon Express Confidence That Mayor's New Board Will Relieve Situation.

Licensing of taxicabs in New York City and complete supervision over their operation so as to insure sanitary and safe conditions was advocated by representatives of the District Attorney, City Magistrates' Court, Board of Aldermen, railroads and business and civic associations at a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Imperial given by the Hotel Association of New York City, which urged stricter supervision over taxicabs in a report sent to Mayor Hylan several days ago.

The report of the association demanding that the ordinance covering taxicab operations be so amended as to require that taxicabs be upholstered in leather; that their bodies be made as transparent as possible by the use of glass windows; that shades or curtains be prohibited; that every cab have a permanent inside latch making it impossible to lock a passenger inside, and that blanks on which passengers could make complaints against drivers be part of the equipment, was endorsed almost in its entirety.

The number of criminals driving taxicabs, often cited by advocates of reform measures, has grown to be "appalling," according to Assistant District Attorney John Caldwell Myers, who said that if chauffeurs were licensed on the basis of moral fitness the situation would be greatly improved. A majority of the speakers found the plan to give to the Police Commissioner absolute supervision both as to licensing and control of taxicabs.

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, said that licenses had been suspended in the case of chauffeurs who tampered with their meters; that as a result of his investigations an inspector of the Department of Licenses had been dismissed, and that the Hotel Association had contributed much to the improvement of conditions in the city. He promised to help the movement.

The support of the Fifth Avenue Association in pushing the recommendations of the Hotel Association was pledged and the Merchants' Association indorsed the plan to transfer authority for taxicab licenses to the police, as did the representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The Board of Aldermen will do all in its power to help remedy the situation, according to Jacob M. Friedman. Deputy Commissioner Faurot said that the police are organized sufficiently to take over control of the taxicab situation. He said he was not speaking officially. Confidence was expressed that the Mayor's new Traffic Commission would devise effective measures for dealing with the situation. Among those present were:

Frank A. K. Holand, counsel for the Hotel Association; Dr. Frank Monaghan, Acting Health Commissioner; George H. Newton, Mark A. Cadwell, Assistant Secretary of the Association; Miles Bronson, Terminal Manager of the New York Central Railroad; C. I. WOMAN FIGHTS BURGLAR.

Suspect Trapped by Policeman as He Flees From House.

The police yesterday attributed the capture of Harry Kestal, alleged burglar, to the pluck of Mrs. Frank Knapp of 26 Jay Avenue, Maspeth, Queens. Mrs. Knapp wakened to see a man, said to be Kestal, in her bedroom early yesterday packing up clothing and silverware. Without waiting to call her husband, Mrs. Knapp leaped from the bed and tackled Kestal. She later exhibited bruises which she alleged Kestal inflicted with the butt of his revolver. The man broke her grip as Mr. Knapp came running in and escaped.

Mrs. Knapp, however, shouted from a window and Policeman Charles Gussinger of the Elmhurst Station said he caught Kestal emerging from the Knapp home. Kestal was held in $3,000 bail by Magistrate Kochendorfer in Ridgewood court for examination on Friday.

WANTS CUBA TO CEDE ISLE OF PINES TO US

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The question of the status of the Isle of Pines, off the southern coast of Cuba, which was a live issue in the Senate approximately a decade ago, has again been raised by the action today of Senator Pomerene of Ohio offering a resolution requesting the President to negotiate with Cuba for the cession of the Isle of Pines to the United States.

By the proviso relating to the American evacuation of Cuba, inserted in the act of March 2, 1901, and commonly known as the Platt amendment, it was declared that the "Isle of Pines shall be omitted from the proposed constitutional boundaries of Cuba, the title thereto being left to future adjustment by treaty."

The provisions of the Platt amendment were accepted by the constitutional convention in Cuba, and the treaty of July 2, 1904, better known as the Squiers-de Zaldo treaty, governing American relations with Cuba, contains an article which reads:

No such treaty adjustment has ever been made.

Senator Pomerene thinks the time has come for such adjustment, and that the United States should negotiate for cession of the island to the United States. The Senator stated today that 90 per cent. of the island's property is now owned by Americans, and that this fact should be taken into consideration in the negotiations he wishes to see undertaken. He also said that in the negotiations this Government should also bear in mind the rights of the minority as well as those of the majority property interests of the island as well as the rights of the Cuban Government.

HELD FOR RICHFIELD KILLING

Frederick Gerrish, 22 years old, who said he lived at 323 East Seventy-eighth Street, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Frederick B. House in the Homicide Court in connection with the stabbing and killing of Joseph Richfield, 23 years old, of 1,473 Second Avenue on Sunday night. Gerrish was held without bail for examination.

When taken into custory yesterday by Detective Sergeants Moran and Solomon, Gerrish said that he had been riding in subway and elevated trains to evade arrest. The detectives said Gerrish admitted that he stabbed Richfield through the heart after Richfield, who was known as "Joe, the horse," attacked him in a Third Avenue restaurant. Gerrish is said to have added that on the night before the killing Richfield insulted a young woman with whom the prisoner was dining in the same restaurant.

The Great Mistake

That millions are correcting

They combat that dingy film on teeth

This is to invite a test, whose results will amaze and delight you.

Old methods of teeth cleaning involved some great mistakes. As a result, even well-brushed teeth discolored and decayed. Few escaped tooth troubles, and beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

Those faults are now corrected. Millions of people have entered a new dental era. We urge you to learn what they know.

That clinging film

A viscous film clings to your teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why teeth lose luster. Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus most tooth troubles are due to film which old ways left on teeth.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Now we combat it

Dental science, after long research, has found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved those methods by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two great film destroyers were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ it, largely by dental advice.

New effects

Pepsodent brings other results now known to be essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Old methods brought just opposite effects. Those were other grave mistakes which this new way has corrected.

For beauty's sake

Look about you. Note how many teeth now glisten—teeth which once were dim. Note how people smile to show them.

But those prettier teeth mean cleaner, safer teeth as well. They mean new protection, which everybody needs.

If you knew what this method means to you and yours, you would never wait a day. Find that out. Cut out the coupon now.

LAW URGED TO CURB BIG FOUNDATIONS

Hilliquit and Pinchot See Danger of Huge Trust Funds Influencing Education.

MAY HANDICAP TEACHING

Carnegie Corporation Head's Doubt as to Its Value Causes More Criticisms.

WOULD AMEND CHARTERS

Publication of All Refusals of Gifts Also Favored as a Corrective Measure.

The statement by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, acting President of the Carnegie Corporation, that only the future can determine the value of huge trusts such as the Corporation and that giving may do more harm than good, caused a reiteration yesterday of criticisms that have been directed at such trust funds in the past. Most of them were based on the danger of influencing education. Morris Hilliquit and Amos Pinchot making the point that no university teaching of economics can avoid being affected by gifts having their origin in large private fortunes.

A suggestion that the best way in which to divest such trusts of the power to do harm was by legislative action to amend their charters was made by William H. Allen of the Institute for Public Service. The changes he recommended were:

"Require annual adequate reporting where now no reports are required and none has been made for ten years until yesterday, and that quite incomplete; require especially that it publish the requests it receives and refuses, which would be the best possible index of foundation progressiveness or obsolescence; stop it from paralyzing initiative and breeding mendicancy and other evils admitted by President Pritchett by forbidding it to give money to any other agency and requiring it to earn its prestige by the sweat of its own brow. It's not what foundations do that demoralizes the rest of us, but what we are willing to do or stop doing in order to get foundation largesse.

"These three protective devices are not among those which President Pritchett says donors have tried unsuccessfully. In 1915, before the Federal Industrial Relations Commission, foundation builders like Carnegie and Rockefeller and foundation managers like John D. Rockefeller Jr., and Charles W. Eliot, all denied any consciousness that there were any such dangers as Dr. Pritchett now emphatically asserts. Protection to society should come from action by society without waiting for donors to invent antiseptics for their own large giving.

Training of Teachers.

"Moreover, the evils now publicly proclaimed by the Carnegie Corporation's acting head, who is also head of the Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching, are not all so indirect and indefinite as those he cites. An illustration of wholesale specific evil is furnished by the Carnegie Foundation's so-called model course of instruction for teaching in training schools. All over this country future teachers are being molded into the crucibles fixed by that course. Yet there is no mention in that course of labor civics, current affairs or foreign relations.

"Not even in the course for future high school teachers of history is there any suggestion that teachers of our day should know, or help Young America understand, how to study the current problems upon which they and their parents must vote. Yet ex-Senator Root, himself of the Carnegie Corporation, recently said that we lack teachers capable of training our democracy so that it will stop muddling our foreign relations, and President Harding has said that the chief need of our time is public understanding of current problems.

"It is fair to the Carnegie Foundation to say that no one is compelled to introduce its course. Teacher training schools are free agents, except that they live in an atmosphere of fear to criticise or even question the leviathan giver to which education's leaders look for patronage.

"Another indication of the dangers from ourselves that are inherent in large unregulated foundations' giving is the way colleges will receive yesterday's Carnegie Corporation statement that too many are going to college. If any unendowed authority should say that same thing, 100 college Presidents would quickly prove that, while many are now in college who are not getting their money's worth or their time's worth, altogether too few are in college.

Would Publish Refusals.

"The greatest single forward step would be to require all foundations to publish the causes they have refused to help. Mr. Rockefeller's agents promised to do this if Congress would give a charter to the Rockefeller Foundation. But after Congress refused a charter no such provision was included in the charter given by New York's State Legislature."

Morris Hilliquit said that the effect of such trusts operating in their chosen field would result in making institutions to a large extent dependent upon their benefactions, thus robbing them of their independence.

"Teachers would be influenced by their conception of what would be pleasing to the donors," he said. "Science, of course, cannot be influenced, but modern science can hardly be separated from social problems. It is obvious that when such science is supported or supplemented by big trusts created for that purpose by a group of individuals representing economic interests it would be conducted to please such individuals or groups.

"They are permitted without regulation on the part of the Government to to engage in any pursuits, social, industrial or educational, which, in itself, is dangerous. I can see that there is a possibility of their being turned into devices for escaping taxation. Where a self-perpetuating board is set up by the donor with powers to accumulate and reinvest money, it might easily become a clever device for dodging taxation.

Influence on Teachers.

"Legislation, of course, might provide for regulation and inspection, but as a matter of principle all educational institutions should be taken out of the dependency on private bounties, as public schools are. There is no difference in principle between the higher and lower schools. Although the founder may have had no such intention, there is bound to be a feeling among the teaching staff that their future depends not upon their work but on the bounty of an individual. This unconsciously makes them subservient, which robs them of their freedom."

Gifts from foundations are apt to be a handicap in teaching economics, said Amos Pinchot, who testified in 1915 in the inquiry into the Rockefeller Foundation.

"While the foundation performs a great service in stimulating scientific investigation of many kinds, services which should not be underestimated, he said, "there is involved in their permanent possession of immense funds and in the use of these funds for contributions to colleges a very real and growing danger. We can easily see that the Trustees of a university who had received large donations from a foundation and who cherished the hope of receiving more would hesitate to encourage courses in economics which might cast too revealing a light upon the mechanism of the monopolies from which the fortunes of the donors came.

"I have in mind a professor of economics in excellent standing in one of our great universities who recently wrote me that it was his opinion that no professor who taught his students the actual economics of the time, dealing with the existing relation between transportation and the power of monopoly to fix prices, would find it comfortable to retain his professional chair. Of course, the explanation of this is quite simple and quite innocent.

"The most beautiful building on the campus had been given by an individual whose fortune was built upon special favors and differentials in transportation. Absolutely no attempt had been made by the donor, a very high-minded and public-spirited man, to influence the economic policy of the college. Nevertheless, in an important feature of instruction the college would not be free from embarrassment in permitting a frank study of the economic developments which had resulted in the beautification of its campus."

$5,000,000,000 OUTLAY FOR NEW BUILDINGS

$2,000,000,000 to Be Spent for Dwellings, R. P. Stoddard, Brickmakers' Official, Says.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5.—Steps have been taken for the construction of $2,000,000,000 worth of dwellings in the United States, and a home building drive is on, it was disclosed here today at the fifth annual convention of the Common Brick Manufacturers' Association of America. The plans for the dwellings are already in the hands of architects, as are also plans for other buildings which will cost another $3,000,000,000.

The figures were furnished by Ralph P. Stoddard, Secretary and manager of the association, who will make his report to the convention tomorrow.

Charles H. Bryan of Detroit, President of the association, was the principal speaker at the opening session. He advised the 500 delegates, who are here from forty-three States, not to let their optimism run away with their judgment.

"The passing months have seen the records of brick manufacturers, as well as other business men, in the red ink of loss, and there is no indication that the coming months will see any change," Mr. Bryan said.

The convention is launching a national advertising and educational campaign to cover three years, which will cost the members $600,000.

OLD RADIO LAW STANDS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The act of Congress of Aug. 13, 1912, when radio was in its swaddling clothes, designed to invest the Secretary of Commerce with control of wireless stations in operation, will have to stand until Congress, which is now considering better legislation, enacts such laws as will remedy the defects contained in the old law.

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia announced this decision today in the case involving the Inter-City Radio Company of 110 West Fortieth Street, New York, which sued Secretary Hoover, to compel him to reissue their license, regardless of whether or not it was scientifically, mechanically or physically impossible to fix a wave length at which they might operate without interfering with other Government and private-owned stations.

Secretary Hoover contended that he could not do this, but the lower court held that the law of 1913 compelled him to issue the license if the applicant had complied, in a mechanical sense with the terms of that statute.

The Secretary appealed and the Appellate Court holds that the lower court did not err in issuing a writ of mandamus requiring him to issue the permit. He now is directed to state a wave length at which the station may operate without interfering with calls from ships in distress, or calls from the different Government or commercial wireless plants in that locality.

TAKES OVER AZTEC RUIN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Aztec ruin, near the town of Aztec, N. M., donated to the Government by the American Museum of Natural History, is established as a national monument under a proclamation just issued by President Harding.

The prehistoric ruin, which is thus placed under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service of the Interior Department, is the best preserved of all the ruins in that vicinity, an announcement by the department today said, and its designation as a national monument will assure its preservation to posterity.

The ruin, one of the well-known pueblo type, is a large E-shaped structure of approximately 500 rooms, it is said, with the entire first story standing and many of the second-floor rooms intact. The ceilings are supported by large beams, cut and dressed with stone tools, while the walls are of sandstone with dressed faces, and as examples of prehistoric masonry are said to take high rank. Excavation of the ruins has been carried out during the last five years by the American Museum.

CUTS FINES BY $7,000,000.

Mississippi Court Orders Insurance Companies to Pay $1,000,000.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 5.—Total fines of $8,000,000 assessed against 142 fire insurance companies which formerly operated in Mississippi and which now are being prosecuted for alleged violation of the State anti-trust law were reduced to an aggregate of less than $1,000,000 today through a decision of the State Supreme Court.

American Ace Starts Suit Under Enoch Arden Law

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Papers were filed in the Westchester County Clerk's office today in a suit for a dissolution of his marriage brought by Irving S. Morange, an American flying ace, against his wife, whom he believes to be dead. The action is brought under the new Enoch Arden law.

Mr. Morange, who resides with his parents at Sagamore Park, Bronxville, stated that he was married on Dec. 28, 1918, at Jersey City, N. J., and that she left him six months later. He said that during 1917 his wife received several allotments from the Government for his services and then she suddenly disappeared. An order was granted directing the defendant to be served by publication.

FAIL TO PREVENT INQUIRY OF HYLAN

FOR NEW HOUSING BOARD

Leininger Proposes Creation of Committee to Carry On the Work of the Lockwood Body.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Filibustering by the Democratic minority in the Assembly did not prevent that body from adopting tonight the resolution introduced by Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg of New York, under which Mayor Hylan is required to furnish information to the House to indicate how he expects, within the city's constitutional debt limit, to make good his pledge to take over and operate under municipal control the entire transit system of New York City.

In the debate that preceded adoption of the Steinberg resolution its sponsor bluntly accused Mayor Hylan of deliberately deceiving the people in his promises relating to transit and municipally owned and operated transit system, including city buses, all for a fare of five cents. Mr. Steinberg declared that Mayor Hylan had been talking for political effect solely and had no plans by engineering or financial experts to show that his proposal was feasible and within the financial ability of the city to undertake.

The Democrats in the Assembly were anxious to prevent the Steinberg resolution from coming to a vote, prior to the introduction of Governor Smith's transit bills, which in all likelihood will not be presented to the Legislature until next week, if then. In a test of endurance they rose to debate even the most unimportant measures on the third reading calendar, and spent a long time discussing a resolution introduced by Assemblyman Goodrich, a Westchester Republican, censuring Governor Smith for "prejudicing" the case of former President Walter W. Law of the State Tax Commission, recently removed on charges. The resolution was returned to its introducer.

The debate on the Steinberg resolution was conducted with considerable bitterness on both sides. After Mr. Steinberg had accused Mayor Hylan of practicing deception, Democrats vied in hurling personal abuse at the sponsor of the Hylan resolution.

Calls Hylan a "Fourflusher."

"Mayor Hylan," Mr. Steinberg shouted, "is the biggest fourflusher that ever held office in New York City. He says his policy is to reapture the subways. Where is he going to get the money? We have Controller Craig's word for it that it cannot be done. How long can a man go along deliberately deluding the people without being found out?

"Has Mayor Hylan taken the initiative in the construction of a single subway to relieve the shameful congestion that now exists? No. He has been talking, talking, talking, defaming men who honestly tried to help the city.

"In my resolution I am asking the Mayor to tell us the exact status of the sinking fund of the City of New York. There is a special reason why the Mayor should be taken to task for the manner in which the Sinking Fund Commission, of which he is Chairman, has kept that sinking fund. The total for the last year, as given by the commission, was incorrect. Funds were withdrawn from the sinking fund without the knowledge and consent of the Controller of New York City."

Assemblyman O'Connor, representing Tammany Leader Murphy's district, was the first to take up the cudgels for Mayor Hylan. He accused Mr. Steinberg of winning elections by improper methods.

"In the silk stocking district you hail from there are more floaters voted every election than in all the rest of the city," Mr. O'Connor said. "That is the only way you get elected. Why, in your district every other person comes to the polls carrying a grip."

The Steinberg resolution was carried by a strict party vote of 87 to 49, all the Democrats in attendance voting in the negative.

A resolution which would continue the work of the Legislative Housing Committee which expired on Feb. 1, last, until April 1, 1924, was offered in the Assembly tonight by Peter A. Leininger of Queens, Vice Chairman of the former committee. The resolution went over until tomorrow's session, when it will be referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

The proposed new committee would have all the powers and would be for the identical purpose of the former Housing Committee. It would have $10,000 for its expenses.

"There is as much need now as there ever has been for the Housing Committee, and I believe the members of the Legislature should think carefully before they dispose of my resolution," Mr. Leininger said.

Senator Dunnigan of the Bronx, who was elected Chairman of the Housing Committee to succeed former Senator Lockwood, has announced that he will make a fight in the Senate to have the life of the committee extended, or to have another like committee created.

For two hours after the session opened tonight Republicans and Democrats engaged in a debate, which at times waxed personal, over the designation of Assemblyman Sol Ullman, Republican, of New York, as Chairman of a sub-committee of the Judiciary Committee to investigate contested seats in the Assembly. One of the four seats being contested is that of Mr. Ullman. Because of this, the Democrats charged, Ullman was violating all rules of propriety in acting as Chairman of the sub-committee.

Refuse to Revoke Appointment.

By a vote of 71 to 51 the Assembly voted down a resolution offered by Minority Leader Donohue, which would have revoked the appointment of Ullman as Chairman.

A motion made by Assemblyman Cuvillier to have the Assembly reconsider the adoption of the report of the Judiciary Committee was ruled out of order by Speaker Machold.

Assemblyman Steinberg charged that the "Democrats this year are playing the cheapest kind of politics." He declared they knew that Ullman did not intend to sit as Chairman when the contest over his seat was being heard.

"Why do you get so excited over the repeal of the Mullin-Gage State prohibition law, and show the people of the State that you were not elected on false promises?" exclaimed Mr. Steinberg.

Replying to Mr. Steinberg on the Mullan-Gage law, Assemblyman O'Connor said:

"The Republicans from New York are doing a whole lot of talking about repealing the Mullan-Gage law, but not one of them has the nerve to put his name on a bill to repeal that law. The only time they repeal that law is when they are on a train coming from New York to Albany.

"Assemblyman Steinberg does a lot of talking about this and that, but the thing he is most interested in is widening Fifty-ninth Street, so that the chorus girls can go through there after they have had their fingers printed."

Mr. Ullman said he was sorry the discussion on the resolution had "degenerated into a Punch and Judy show." He said he told the members of the Judiciary Committee at the time he was designated as Chairman of the subcommittee that he would not sit when his seat was under consideration.

"This is nothing but an attempt to rebuke me for the stand I have taken on certain New York City legislation," he added.

Assemblyman Jenks, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said he designated Mr. Ullman as Chairman of the subcommittee because it was a long-established custom to have the Vice Chairman of the Judiciary Committee act as Chairman of the committee to investigate contested seats.

Assemblyman Galgano of New York introduced a concurrent resolution providing for appointment of a conference committee of lawmakers from this State and the neighboring States of New Jersey and Connecticut to devise identical laws to promote tri-State co-operation for prevention of the indiscriminate sale of firearms.

Sacred relics, with a document which declares them to be fragments of the true cross, signed and sealed by Sigismundus, Cardinal of Vienna, in 1750, have been discovered by the Anderson Galleries in a silver cross included in a collection of antiques recently consigned to them from Austria by Gregory Nycander, a Swedish collector. Mr. Nycander has been notified of the discovery and the cross has been withdrawn from the sale.

The silver cross is 9¾ inches high, and in taking it apart it was discovered that the base is hollow. In the space was found a Latin manuscript with the Cardinal's seal and signature. A translation reads:

"We, Sigismundus, Cardinal of Kollnitz, Archbishop of Vienna, Prince of the Holy Roman Empire, confirm and certify by the present letter that we—to the greater glory of the omnipotent God and for the veneration of His saints—have recognized particles of the wood of the most holy cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, taken from the authentic place, and we have reverently deposited these fragments, arranged in the shape of a cross, within a cross of rock crystal with silver work around. We have then closed this cross carefully and tied it up with a cord of red silk and we have sealed it up impressing our own seal in red Spanish wax, for the identification of these relics. We herewith give the authority to hold these sacred relics in a private house, to give them to others or to exhibit them in any church, oratory or chapel to the public worship of the faithful. In confirmation of this we have signed with our own hand the present letter, affixed our seal and have given orders to our secretary to expedite it.

"Given in Vienna in our archiepiscopal residence, this 13th day of May, 1750."

Two pieces of wood can be distinguished through the crystal in the centre of the cross. A Roman Catholic priest who was consulted said that it was considered a desecration to sell sacred relics. The suggestion was made in a letter to Mr. Nycander that he present the silver cross and relics to a church in this city.

JUSTICE SHOCKED BY BOOK IN HOME

WILL ASK PROSECUTION

Supreme Court Jurist to Draft New Censorship Bill and Urge Legislature to Put Teeth in Law.

Angered because a circulating library had placed a copy of D. H. Lawrence's "Women in Love" in the hands of his daughter, Supreme Court Justice John Ford said yesterday that he was going to seek the prosecution of those responsible for the circulation of the book and, if necessary, take a bill to the Legislature to put teeth into the present law against books likely to impair morals.

When he learned that this particular volume had been under fire and that a City Magistrate had exonerated the publishers and gave a good name to the book, he said:

"What can all our Magistrates? This book is a terrible thing. It is loathsome. The fact that a Magistrate may have approved of it doesn't alter the fact. A Grand Jury still can act. There are various ways of dealing with such a thing. This is not in my line, and I will have to study the matter before proceeding, but I'll find some way of acting, or I'll go to the Legislature with a law that will stop this sort of a thing.

"I understand that the book is now in the hands of Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora and that he may start a new prosecution. I intend to communicate with him and will help him in every way.

"A circulating library recommended this thing to my daughter. She turned it over to her mother, who was horrified, and she put it in my hands. It is a disgrace to the community if we cannot protect ourselves against such things. I had no idea that anything of the kind was tolerated.

"When I was in the Legislature Anthony Comstock used to be very active there against literature of this description. I have heard very little of the Society for the Suppression of Vice in some years, but I am informed that it is still in existence and that it even prosecuted the publishers of this book."

Justice Ford was informed that John S. Sumner, Secretary of the society, had started a prosecution and had pronounced the work "a Sunday School book," compared with some of the other volumes upheld in the Magistrate's courts.

"I don't know what we are coming to if that is so," said Justice Ford. "I have never seen anything much worse than this. I may be an old fogy, but I don't think there are many people in this community that would sanction books of this description."

Justice Ford said that he had been informed that the present statute on the subject had been rendered powerless by an interpretation by the Court of Appeals of certain phrases and that he proposed to draft new legislation.

COL. GREENE 'INVITED' BY SENATE COMMITTEE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, Governor Smith's nominee for State Highway Commissioner to succeed Herbert H. Sisson, was "invited" late tonight to appear before the Senate Finance Committee tomorrow to be questioned by Minority Leader Lusk of the Senate. Colonel Greene said he would be "delighted."

Senator Lusk renewed his request for an opportunity to place Colonel Greene on the grill at the session of the Senate tonight. He declared he was most anxious to examine him in relation to "Highways and Highwaymen," author-ship of which he attributes to the Colonel. The Senator has said that some of the "highwaymen" to whom reference was made in the article are sitting in the Senate now.

"Do you wish to examine him under oath?" asked Senator Downing, Chairman of the Finance Committee.

"Yes, under oath," said the Republican leader.

"Well," said Senator Downing, who heretofore had objected to this procedure as involving humiliation to Colonel Greene, "I am sure that I have no objection to having Colonel Greene there. I even have no objection to having Senator Lusk there. I welcome having him ask Colonel Greene questions, and I am certain that I shall greatly enjoy listening to the answers. But I hardly think it is a good precedent to have a nominee for public office summoned before a Senate committee in the same fashion that a pickpocket is hailed before a police magistrate."

Retaliation against Democrat holdovers in Federal jobs for the forcible removal by Governor Smith of Tax Commissioner Law was threatened by Assemblyman Jesse of New York, who declared in the Assembly tonight that Mr. Law was removed solely to give the Democrats control of the jobs in the Tax Department.

"I find no fault with the Governor for removing Commissioner Law," said Mr. Jesse. "I do find fault with him for lacking the courage to say that he did it because the Democrats wanted the jobs that the President of the Tax Commission alone can dispose of.

"But in connection with this I want to call the attention of my Democratic friends to the fact that there are a large number of Democrats holding over in Federal jobs, and that for the next two years, at least, we will be in a position to make reprisals whenever Republican heads are cut off by the Governor. It is distinctly a game at which two can play."

Senator Downing announced that the Finance Committee would meet immediately after the Senate session tomorrow.

CLUB HALTS CHASE FOR BOWERY THIEF

Patrolman Outraces and Fells Pugilist With His Nightstick.

$3,650 IN JEWELRY GONE

A stirring thief chase through the sharply bending streets of its vicinity yesterday evening brought back for a short spell some of the hurly-burly that was once the symbol of the Bowery. The chase, drawing hundreds, ended abruptly when a former pugilist was knocked out by a blow of a husky policeman's nightstick.

A few customers were in the pawnshop-jewelry store of H. Phillips at 157 Bowery, a few steps from Broome Street, just before 5 o'clock yesterday. Gustave Phillips, partner and manager, was standing near the front of the store talking to a clerk, Harry Detchik. Suddenly there came a loud crash, and the jewelers, glancing quickly over the top of the window partition, saw that a jagged hole had been torn in the window by a brick. The bars protecting the window had yielded under the force of the blow.

As both men watched, a hand was thrust quickly in and two jewels snatched up. One was a flexible bracelet in platinum, studded with diamonds and sapphires, and worth $2,700. The second was a single-stone diamond ring, valued at wholesale at $950. A short time before the crash of the glass, Detchik said he had noticed a short, sturdily built woman approach the window and gaze in at the display, valued at $50,000. In the light of later developments the police thought this woman was a confederate to whom was passed the loot.

Nightstick Stops Fugitive.

The sudden withdrawal of the hand clutching the gems stirred the jewelers to action and they made a dash for the doors. They found, however, that wire had been fastened to the knobs outside, and it required their weight and that of the customers to finally push open the door. By the time the jewelers gained the sidewalk the speeding man, going north in the Bowery, had a good start.

Phillips and Detchik, shouting "Stop thief!" at the top of their lungs, gave chase. Both were armed, but hesitated to fire for fear of hitting persons in the home-going throngs. The fugitive took advantage of the crowds, zig-zagging his way through them.

Half a block away from the brick smashed through the window was Policeman Fascigilone of the Clinton Street Station calling in to report from one of the "winking Irishmen." He saw the dash for liberty of the man and the organization of the pursuit. He hung up the receiver in the middle of his reporting formula and went after the fleeing one.

The man ahead, developing more speed as he ran, turned into Delancey Street, raced east to Chrystie Street, and, doubling into Clinton Street, again headed for the Bowery. Fascigilone, also unable to use his revolver, put all he had into his feet., Gaining steadily, he came within reach of the fugitive just as he neared the Bowery. Fascigilone, getting no answer to his calls to halt, swung his nightstick once and the man dropped.

Captain Praises Policeman.

When he came to, the man said he was William P. Driscoll, 24 years old, of 344 East Twenty-second Street, and that under the name of "Paddy" Driscoll he had engaged in bouts in Buffalo and elsewhere. He was locked up at Police Headquarters on the charge of burglary. The police said that Driscoll was known as "John Doyle" and that he had a criminal record.

According to the police, the man denied having a confederate and said that he had thrown the jewels away in his flight. A score of detectives and uniformed men went over the route carefully last night, but failed to find the stolen gems. Captain MacKenzie of the Clinton Street Station, in praising Fasciglone for the capture, called attention to the fact that the policeman wore the same shield number that the Captain wore when he was doing patrol duty.

The two hold-up men who have been using the northern part of Hudson County, N. J., as their territory, and meat markets and grocery stores as their specialty, resumed operations yesterday, only varying their work a trifle. This time they held up Sidney Feinberg of 453 Wayne Avenue, Jersey City, collector for the Chain Grocery Stores, Inc., and escaped with $2,230, the collections from thirteen stores.

Feinberg, in reporting the robbery to the Weehawken and Union Hill police, said that shortly before noon he arrived at the company's store at Park Avenue and Franklin Street, Union Hill, to receive from the manager, Theodore Lalliker of 325 Franklin Street, the day's receipts. Feinberg said that as he entered the store he was followed by two men, who produced revolvers and ordered him and Lalliker into the small storage room at the rear of the store. There the robbers took the thirteen envelopes and also Feinberg's $60 pay envelope.

"Don't take that," Feinberg said he begged the robbers. "My wife is sick and the rent is due."

"Aw, let him have it," remarked the leader of the pair, and the confederate handed it back to Feinberg. The two men then fled in an automobile they had parked around the corner.

About twenty stores have been robbed in the last few weeks in North Hudson towns by two men answering the hold-up men's descriptions. Feinberg was taken to the Hoboken Rogues' Gallery to see if he could pick out the pair, but he failed to recognize any of the portraits.

BOARD SHIP TO GET BIG LIQUOR AGENT

RECALLS $75,000 DEAL

But Memory of White Company Man Is Hazy on 4,235 Case Bill of Lading Found in Baggage.

Special agents of the Treasury Department yesterday went on board the Fort Victoria of the Furness-Bermuda Line and searched the baggage of Morris Stern, a passenger, in which they said they found a bill of lading and bills of sale made in Bermuda covering 4,226 cases of liquor recently cleared from St. John, New Brunswick. As a result of the search Stern was summoned before the legal division of the Customs Service to explain his frequent visits to Montreal and St. John.

Interrogated by Edward C. Barnes, Assistant Solicitor, he said he was agent of the Great Western Wine Company, proprietor of a grocery store at 644 Madison Avenue, a drug store at 428 Madison Avenue and the Vanderbilt Fruit and Grocery Store at 644 Madison Avenue. He admitted he frequently went to Bermuda, where he paid cash for such liquor as he purchased. Asked how much money he handled at any one time for this purpose, he replied:

"Seventy-five thousand dollars was the most, I believe."

"Isn't it a fact you boasted in Bermuda of having made $1,000,000 out of English whisky sold in the United States?" he was asked.

"I never made such a statement," Stern said.

Remembers Three Shipments.

Questioned regarding the extent of his liquor transactions, Stern recalled three large shipments from Bermuda to St. John for the Great Western Wine Company.

When he was asked about the Great Western Wine Company, Stern said it was a Canadian concern with offices in Montreal, Regina, Vancouver, St. Johns and St. Pierre.

"Did you distribute any of these liquors of your company in New York?" he was asked.

"No. It was all out of New York except two barrels which I handled about a year ago when my retail drug store was doing a wholesale business," he said.

"Will you, as a matter of good faith, consent to have the Madison Avenue drug store searched by special agents while we are sitting here?" Mr. Barnes asked.

Is After Hip Toters.

"The prohibition lid will be held down in the cabarets and restaurants just as tightly and if possible more tightly than ever. The withdrawal of the uniformed police from these places will not permit them to open the door of lawlessness one inch wider. When any person is found in a cabaret or restaurant drinking from a bottle of whisky or any other intoxicating liquor he has clearly violated the law against its possession.

"No person has any more right to carry it in his hip pocket or upon his person than in a whisky case upon a truck."

Nine men arrested in a raid early Sunday morning on the Black Parrot Tea Shoppe Hobo-hemia, at 46 Charles Street, were discharged by Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday. Lucy Smith, 22 years old, and Patricia Rogers of Chicago, Ill., said to be proprietors of the shop, charged with violating the Mullan-Gage law, were held for examination on Feb. 9.

Teddy Spargo, 21 years old, of 113 Garfield Place, Brooklyn, and May Reynolds, 21 years old, of 300 Willis Avenue, the Bronx, who were arrested in the raid on a charge of being incorrigible, also were discharged by Magistrate Norman Smith in the Women's Court. There was no evidence to sustain the charge.

Patrolmen Edward M. Downey of the Fifth Avenue Station, Brooklyn, and Daniel M. Healy of the Glendale Station, Queens, were dropped from the police force yesterday by Commissioner Enright. Downey, according to the records, was found intoxicated in uniform while on duty in a café. He also was charged with drawing a revolver on a Sergeant while the latter was taking him to the station. Healy was accused of being intoxicated and absent from his post at a school crossing.

Find Still at Fire.

Following the discovery of a fire early yesterday morning in a rear room at 104 Cook Street, Brooklyn, James Verdoni of 204 Graham Avenue, John Sanangelo, 303 South Fifth Street, and Deago Borocco, 95 Siegel Street, all Brooklyn addresses, were arrested on a charge of violating the prohibition law. According to the police, firemen found a twenty-gallon still and a quantity of alcohol in the rear room. They were held in $500 bail each in the Bridge Plaza Court.

WOULD STOP TREE CUTTING.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—With the support of the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks and other organizations, a bill was introduced tonight by Senator Rabenold of New York City under which the cutting of trees on privately owned forest lands would be prohibited unless consent shall first have been obtained from the Conservation Commission. The prohibition does not apply to dead or fallen timber or the cutting of trees for fuel or other domestic use of the owner.

Senator Rabenold said the legislation was imperatively needed because the forests were disappearing so rapidly that the native timber supply was perilously near its end. According to a report which has reached the Conservation Commission "we are cutting our forests five times as fast as they are produced."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—When evidence squeezed from his clothing was introduced in an Alexandria police court today John Davis of Washington was held for the Grand Jury upon violation of the Virginia liquor laws.

A patrolman saw a liquid trickle from a suitcase Davis was carrying and took him to police headquarters for examination. When the suitcase was opened all that was found was some wet clothing, two broken fruit jars and an illegal odor.

The clothing was put through a wringer and when the resulting fluid was submitted in court it was sufficient to hold Davis under $500 bond for the Grand Jury.

PECORA WILL QUIZ ANDERSON TODAY

Opinions Differed Yesterday Over Dry Leader's Health When He Did Not Appear.

HE SAYS HE CAUGHT COLD

Completing the examination of Miss Mary Hill, assistant treasurer and head bookkeeper of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, yesterday, Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora announced that he expected to finish this week the informal inquiry into the allegations of commission splitting made against William H. Anderson, State Superintendent, by O. Bertsall Phillips, former chief financial field agent of the organization. Mr. Pecora said he would devote his entire time today to the further questioning of Mr. Anderson, who is scheduled to be at his office at 11 o'clock.

Others to be questioned this week about the alleged commission splitting and the blanket publicity bill of $24,706 are the Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, President of the League, and "some of the members of the Board of Directors." The board last week endorsed the acts of Mr. Anderson. Mr. Pecora refused to forecast what action he would take.

Shortly after noon yesterday, when Mr. Anderson was due at the District Attorney's office by appointment, Mr. Pecora announced he had received word Mr. Anderson had contracted a cold on the train from Binghamton and had decided to consult his physician. A representative of Stanchfield & Levy, counsel to Mr. Anderson and the League, who telephoned, assured Mr. Pecora that he would be present today.

Ex-Senator Edgar T. Brackett said that Mr. Anderson was ill at his home in Yonkers, but when a reporter telephoned the Anderson home several hours later a woman who said she was Mrs. Anderson declared her husband was not home and that she had not heard of his being ill. She said that when Mr. Anderson called her on arriving in New York he did not mention illness and said he was going to his office as usual.

Mr. Anderson at his home gave out the following version of what appeared to be a mix-up:

"I did not go to the District Attorney's office because I had an engagement with a physician. I caught a cold while up-State, and I consulted a doctor as a precaution. The District Attorney was notified that I would not be there today. A representative of our office went there. The whole thing is working out by arrangement."

Mr. Anderson went on to say that it was J. Arthur Leve of the law firm of Stanchfield & Levy who notified Mr. Pecora. He said that there was nothing compulsory, "nor has there been," about his appointment with Mr. Baton's chief assistant. He added that he planned to visit the District Attorney's office today if he had sufficiently recovered from his cold.

Mr. Pecora said that he had asked Mr. Leve, since the latter was also representing the League, to make an appointment for Dr. Burrell to call at the District Attorney's office. Mr. Anderson had suggested last week that since Dr. Burrell was ill at his home in Madison, N. J., Mr. Pecora should go there for an interview.

"I called Mr. Leve's attention to the fact that Dr. Burrell had so far recovered from his illness that he officiated at his church on Sunday. I suggested by the same token that he had improved enough to come to my office without jeopardising his health," Mr. Pecora said.

DRY LAW 'WITH TEETH' PROPOSED BY PINCHOT

Enforcement Bill Offered in Pennsylvania Has Drastic Search and Seizure Provisions.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 5.—Defining as intoxicating liquor, "anything found by Congress to be intoxicating," and containing a search and seizure clause "with teeth in it," the State Prohibition Enforcement bill, backed by Governor Pinchot's Administration, was introduced tonight in both houses of the General Assembly.

The measure would eliminate all saloons and prohibit the sale, manufacture, possession, transportation and importing or exporting into or out of Pennsylvania of any liquor for beverage purposes. It would not be unlawful, however, to possess intoxicating liquor "in one's bona fide private dwelling, provided such liquor was lawfully acquired prior to the passage of this act." The burden of proof that such liquor was lawfully acquired would be placed on the possessor.

The manufacture or sale of any contrivance or preparation designed for use in the manufacture of intoxicating liquor also would be prohibited.

Any place violating the law would be made a common nuisance under the bill and guilty of a misdemeanor. Provision is made for the issuance of search warrants on complaint of any individual that there is "probable cause" to believe the law is being violated on any premises, and if liquors or other things described in the complaint are found they may be seized. Arrests in such cases could be made without warrants.

Warrants to search private dwellings could not be issued unless the building or some part of it was used as a place of business, or "is a place of public resort."

Seizure of liquor being transported in any vehicle, including boats and aircraft, would be authorized with or without a warrant. The measure stipulates that County Commissioners shall provide facilities for storage and safekeeping of liquor and property seized.

Penalties for violation would be a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $2,000, or imprisonment of not more than three years, or both.

Marries Girl After Their Arrest.

Peter Zinzores, 24 years old, of 163 Christie Street, gave up the role of abductor yesterday in Essex Market Court and played the part of the happy bridegroom with the consent of Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan and the father of the girl he was accused of abducting. The bride, Thonia Demaris, 16 years old, of 79 Eldridge Street, and Zinzores were arrested last Saturday on complaint of the girl's father. They had obtained a marriage license in Jersey City and had planned to be married here at the Greek Orthodox Church. After her father relented yesterday, the lovers went to the Municipal Building and were married.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4½ per cent. for the best names. Saturday—4½ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Varied Sport Handkerchiefs.

Sport handkerchiefs for men sell in the smart outing goods houses in shades of gray, dark blue or bright red, and upon them are the emblems of the sports. For the hunter there is the pack, for fox hunting the head of the fox, and the golfer in action is shown. They are worn as kerchiefs knotted around the throat or in the pocket, and retail in a good quality of silk for $4.

Jerusalem Embroidered Linens.

Heavy linens embroidered in bright colored wools are credited to the Jaffa nations, but beautiful things come from Jerusalem. A wedding costume, which becomes later a holiday attire for all occasions, consists of the gown in one piece, which slips over the head, and the veil or headdress. This latter is a couple of yards or so long and a yard or more wide, and makes a beautiful table cover. The dress is of the same materials. These things sell as fancy goods, but museums and artists are most often the buyers.

Bead Strings Still Popular.

Beads are as popular as ever, and real ivory ones come direct from the Sudan, made from fine elephants' tusks. The strings are thirty-two inches long, and very good-sized beads, round or oval, wholesale at about $12 a string. Amber, which is almost more popular than the ivory, comes with several large oval beads made up with silver. They are made of old amber of a rich, deep yellow, and the ornaments of silver made up with them are the work of Arabs. The amber and silver necklaces wholesale at from $18 to $60.

Embroidery on Capes.

One of the more conspicuous details of the capes which are selling so well at the present time is the large amount of Schiffli embroidery which is being used on them as decorations. A leading manufacturer of these garments yesterday said that, not for many years had he seen such a big season for this kind of embroidery. All manner of patterns are being worked out in the designs, ranging up to the all-over effects. The embroidery is being principally used on the twill cloths, and where the designing is very close together a unique raised effect is secured. Owing to the nature of the high pile woolens, embroidery of this nature is seldom used on them. On the silk capes there is a large amount of self-colored embroidery used for the more expensive models.

Gray Goods Were Quiet.

The recovery in raw cotton values yesterday came too late to help trading in gray goods, and the market was quiet. The strength which has developed on Saturday in print cloths continued, however, with holders standing firm in the asking prices of 11¼ cents for the 39-inch 68-72 construction and 10⅞ cents for the 38½-inch 64-60s. There were sales reported of a limited quantity of "quick Eastern" 38½-inch 60-48s at 9¾ cents. Sheetings were quiet and without change. For small lots of 72-80 pajama checks 11⅝ cents was paid.

Idealised overalls are quaint little togs which a firm of young women have put on the market for the very small people. They are in the general style of overalls with straps over the shoulders, but there the resemblance stops. The idealized garment is made of either blue, green or black sateen or denim, with an orange trim. The pocket is the thing in these little garments and fascinates the children. Pockets may be in yellow, round oranges with the green leaves set on above, or they are little watering pots, wheelbarrows, boats of different kinds. One pair of overalls in black has red cherries on the pockets, bobbing around on long stems. All the materials are fast colors, wash well, and the little people become pictures in them. They retail at $2.50 each. Some of the mothers use them for party clothes, and nothing could be prettier.

Showing Imported Clothing.

Leading importers of men's clothing are now ready to show their Fall lines. This is much earlier than is usually the case, which has been about the latter part of March. It is explained that, with the growth of business here and the stimulation that will be applied to selling, a longer season has to be allowed the manufacturers abroad, owing to the amount of hand-tailoring and finishing that is required. A leading importer is now showing about 1,000 different patterns for the overcoats. The new velour finish is their outstanding feature. It is described as being as soft as the fleece goods but having more durability. The patterns are quiet, with plaids and overplaids subdued, and many of them plain colors. In the latter a certain blue is well considered. The loose-fitting overcoat is looked upon to lead again, but there is a growing tendency in England to those of more conservative cut and fabric which is reflected in the models brought here.

Good Separate Skirt Business.

Much business is coming the way of the separate skirt manufacturers, and reports of a large increase over this time last year are current in the trade. The demand parallels that for blouses, which are selling very well, as the two are used together. Buyers are said to be neglecting the cut of the garment to the background for the present, more stress being placed on the fabric itself. Novelties are what are most desired. Plaids, stripes and checks are well to the fore for semi-sports wear. Wool crepes are moving well, as are those of silk crepe for later in the season. Printed silk skirts also have their appeal for many buyers. Little interest is being displayed in prunellas. Camel's hair skirts, or those of fabrics looking like it, are still much called for, but as yet have not moved in retail channels in proportion to the wholesale activity. The wrap-around model has been very popular, particularly in white flannels. Lately, however, the pleated type in all fabrics has been growing in vogue.

Improved Ribbon Demand.

Their number augmented by the opening of the silk exposition yesterday, more buyers were in attendance in the local salesrooms of ribbon firms. Orders recently, according to manufacturers, have been of a more liberal nature, and this is said to be borne out by the purchases which buyers made here yesterday. There is a stronger tendency on the part of retailers to consider the wider ribbons, and makers hope that this will continue. The cutting-up trade, some weeks ago, began to use the wider numbers, and they have continued to do so. Paisley ribbons in a number of weaves are in great request. A new number was shown yesterday by one of the leading makers which has a three-inch moire stripe with a two-inch Paisley border of taffeta at each side. Two rows of these are used by manufacturers to decorate the bottom of a dress. Tinsels are moving well, particularly those with colored backs. Velvets seem to continue their run of popularity.

Hotel Guest Badly Burned.

A small fire in the Blackstone Hotel at 54 East Fifty-eighth Street drove guests from their rooms yesterday morning. It started in the bedroom of a suite on the sixth floor occupied by Mrs. Charles Otis Scott, who was asleep and was badly burned. The flames set fire to her nightclothes.

H. H. RAYMOND RETIRES AS SHIP OWNERS' HEAD

'Strong, Comprehensive Measure of Encouragement' Need of Merchant Marine, He Says.

H. H. Raymond, who retired yesterday as President of the American Steamship Owners' Association, in reviewing events of the last year, said that it had been one of continued and severe depression, so far as overseas carrying was concerned. The year had, however, he said, seen improvement in the general coastwise shipping business. Mr. Raymond is President of the Clyde-Mallory Lines. He has been succeeded as head of the Steamship Owners' Association by Alfred Gilbert Smith, President of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, who was elected yesterday at the annual meeting of the association at 11 Broadway.

In his retiring address Mr. Raymond said that the committee of the association of which he had been the head, had told a joint committee of Congress that a complete solution of the problem of the merchant marine and of the disposal of the Government-owned tonnage could not be attained unless a strong, comprehensive measure of national encouragement were enacted. Regarding the Ship Subsidy bill, Mr. Raymond said:

"Amendments made in the House and in the Senate undoubtedly reduce the effectiveness of the original proposal, but the bill in its present form offers some substantial assistance to a great part of the merchant marine, and it is our earnest hope that the vote may be had before the session ends, and that some degree of constructive legislation may be realized.

"Without such legislation there can be no important development of the overseas carrying trade during the present year or for a long time to come. The pending measure has received an extraordinarily united and powerful support from the great representative business interests of the country. Opposition to it proceeds mainly from the narrowness of vision of certain inland States, whose view is sectional and not national."

MEN'S WEAR FOR FALL.

All Fabrics Now Opened by the American Woolen Company.

Fall lines of men's wear fancy and semi-staple worsteds, wool goods, outing fabrics and raincoatings were opened yesterday by the American Woolen Company. There was no percentage of price advance given out by the company over the prices made for last Spring or Fall, the claim being made that there was so much variation in the styling and composition of the fabrics that such a percentage could not be formulated. It was estimated, however, by trade authorities that the advances in fancy worsteds over last Fall range from 15 to 20 per cent. Some fabrics may be lower than this and others may be higher, but, in general, it is said, this percentage of advance holds.

In the case of the semi-staple worsteds these are said by spokesmen for the company to be about on the same level as the prices established for the season's lines about two weeks ago. The advances made in these goods were said at the time to average 12½ per cent. on fifty of the leading staple numbers.

Most interest in yesterday's opening centred in the fancy worsteds. The company began its lines of these with a cloth of the Riverside Mill, selling at $1.45 per yard. Buyers are said to have shown keen interest in this number, as it corresponds in a large degree to the popular and lowest-priced fancy worsted the company brought out for last Spring selling at $1.47½ per yard. The top price for the worsteds in Department 3 is $6.17½. As another straw indicating the amount of the advance in this group was the reported price of $2.25 for a cloth made by the Champlain Mill, which was sold for Spring at $1.95.

The high and low prices covering the range of the mills making fancy worsteds in Department 2 is subjoined:

MILL.	RANGE.
National & Providence Mills	$2.23½ to $4.42½
Chase Mills	2.32½ to 4.37½
Arden Mills	3.10 to 3.80
Champlain Mills	2.20 to 3.42½
Riverside Mills	1.65 to 3.35
Manton Mills	2.32½ to 3.12½
Anchor Mills	1.80 to 2.70
Chase Mills	1.87½ to 3.50
Weybosset Mills	1.77½ to 3.45
Moosup Mills	2.50 to 2.97½

Department 17: Worsted suiting, Beoit Mill, $2.47½ to $4.55; Puritan Mill, $2.80 to $5.17½, and the Globe Mill, $3.12½ to $4.52½. Department 1, Division B: Washington Mills, piece dyes, $1.87½ to $4.10, mixtures, $1.82½ to $3.92½; Wood Worsted Mill, piece dyes, $1.57½ to $4.65, mixtures, $1.32½ to $4.75; Ayer Mill, piece dyes, $1.75 to $3.12½, mixtures, $1.97½ to $4.35, and the Fulton Mill, piece dyes, $2.72½ to $4.00; mixtures, $2.67½ to $3.85.

Department 3 A: Worsted uniform cloths, Washington Mill, $2.25 to $5.17½.

The opening yesterday completes the showing of the company's fabrics for next Fall. At the offices of the United States Worsted Sales Company, it was said that that concern's fall showing would be made early next week.

TO DOUBLE GLASS OUTPUT.

Fisher Body Subsidiary to Enlarge Its Plant in Illinois.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—Fred J. Fisher of Detroit, President of the Fisher Body Corporation, announced here today plans for erection by the National Plate Glass Company, a subsidiary of the corporation, of additions to its plant at Ottawa, Ill., costing in excess of $5,000,000, and bringing the output of the concern to more than 30,000,000 square feet of polished plate glass annually.

The National Plate Glass Company, it was announced, has purchased a 200-acre tract adjoining its Ottawa holdings and work on the additions will be started immediately. The improvement, it was said, will double the output of the concern.

Woman Sentenced for Shoplifting.

Mrs. Sadie Farrell, of 558 West 164th Street, Manhattan, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail by Judge Frank Boettner in Newark yesterday on a charge of shoplifting. Detectives testified that she drove up in a limousine to a large department store and concealed the stolen articles beneath a sealskin coat.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Advance, Exchange Declines and Recovers, French and Belgian Bonds Higher.

Under the largest total business of any day since Jan. 15—a Monday market when Stock Exchange prices were wavering on the news that the French had moved into the Ruhr and that Germany had made no counter-proposals—yesterday's stock market scored a further advance. But a good part of Wall Street's interest again converged on other markets than stocks. The news over Sunday having reported no change in the Ruhr situation and the Monday morning cables having announced the break-down of the conference at Lausanne with Turkey, there was rather general expectation that foreign exchange rates and the French and Belgian bonds would fall into abrupt reaction.

The action of foreign exchange was interesting. At London, where the recent wild speculation in French exchange has admittedly centred, the price of sterling measured in francs went yesterday from 72.80 to 74.80. But the kind of market which has prevailed in London may be judged from the fact that during a seven-day period the rate had gone from 74.75 to 80.50, had fallen to 72.80 and had risen again to 74.80; this tumultuous movement leaving yesterday's rate almost exactly where it was on the preceding Monday. This early depreciation in the franc on yesterday's early London market was reflected at the opening in Wall Street, where the franc fell from Saturday's 6.49 cents to 6.23¾.

Nearly all of the decline, however, was recovered before the close, when active New York buying of French exchange carried the rate back to 6.45¾. The movement was the more noteworthy in that practically all other European exchanges, sterling and Italian lire included, were relatively weak; the Belgian rate alone moving in line with the French. It was not easy to explain these contrasts except on the assumption that "bear selling" had existed on a far greater scale in those two exchange markets than in the others, and that the speculators had overplayed their hand.

Somewhat similar inferences might plausibly enough have been drawn from the day's movement of the French and Belgian "dollar bonds." Although these bonds had risen 5 or 6 per cent. between last week's low prices and Saturday's closing, their reaction yesterday morning was hardly more than momentary. The French Republic 8s and 7½s declined 1⅝ points; then, under much larger transactions, advanced fractionally above last week's closings; the recovery from the low prices of a week ago having been 6¾ per cent.

In the stock market also, there was irregular reaction in prices at the opening, presumably on the theory that the break-down of the Lausanne conference must be regarded as an alarming turn of events. It was certainly not an agreeable incident and it seemed to cause hesitation on the European stock exchanges; but the New York stock market rather quickly resumed the advance of Saturday. The strength of the railway shares was again rather conspicuous, but the day's net advances of 1 and 2 points occurred mostly in the industrial stocks which had been under speculative pressure lately.

The market for Liberty bonds was again watched with interest for its reflection of the proposed use of such bonds by the British Government in payment of its debt. Yesterday the changes in price were not great, except for the issues which had not risen in proportion to the fourth 4¼ per cents on Saturday. Some incredulity undoubtedly exists as to the possible scope of such interposition of the British exchequer in the market; for all of the bonds except the 3½s, the new Treasury 4¼s and the maturing Victory bonds, remained 1 per cent. or more below par.

BUYS WELSH TIN PLATE.

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey Imports 20,000 Tons.

Confirmation was obtained yesterday of a report that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had made recent purchases of Welsh tin plate, and that deliveries were being made, the tin plate being brought back in returning tankers as ballast. Officials of the company said they were in no position to state the amounts of these purchases, but it was unofficially reported that contracts in the past few weeks involved more than $1,750,000, purchases aggregating around 400,000 boxes, or 20,000 tons.

The fact that Sterling is below par has enabled the oil company to make its purchases advantageously. In addition, the company gets a drawback on the duty, the British tin plate being used subsequently for export. These considerations are understood to have made it possible for the New Jersey company to bring the Welsh tin plate to Bayonne at prices ranging from $4.55 to $4.65 a box, depending on Sterling's quotation at the time of purchase, as against $4.75 for domestic tin plate without including the 25½-cent rate to tidewater from Pittsburgh.

LIBERTY BONDS SHOW NEW VIGOR

RISE DUE TO DEBT PLAN

Victory 4¾s and First Convertible 4¼s Slump—No Preconceived Plan for Funding.

Liberty Bonds yesterday showed a continuation of the vigorous behavior they have manifested since the publication of the details of Great Britain's debt-funding plan, as announced last Saturday by the American Debt Funding Commission. The total trading for the day amounted to $5,221,000, a record high for volume, and in addition new high marks were registered by four individual issues.

In the case of the first convertible 4¼s, which, however, showed a decline for the day—the second convertible 4¼s, the third 4¼s and the fourth 4¼s, new high records were made in the course of the day's trading, although the closing prices in all four cases were lower. The gains yesterday amounted to from 6 to 62 cents, while losses of 2 cents were shown in both the Victory 4¾s and the first convertible 4¼s. All of the other issues closed with substantial net advances as compared with the prices of the preceding day.

In banking quarters it was explained that the continued activity in the Government issues was a natural result of the manner in which the financial markets interpreted the stipulation in the debt-funding plan which permits Great Britain to make payments of interest and principal in any United States Government bonds issued since April 6, 1917, at par and accrued interest.

There has been much discussion in banking quarters as to who was the author of this particular arrangement—a proviso which it is believed would be beneficial both to Great Britain and the United States. But inquiry yesterday led to the belief that the plan was simply the outgrowth of the series of negotiations between the two debt-funding commissions, and did not represent any preconceived plan on either side.

GARY SAYS DEMAND FOR STEEL IS BIG

Remarkable and Has Exceeded All Expectations, Board Chairman Asserts.

NO LET-UP IS IN SIGHT

Orders for Domestic Purposes and for Export Equally Good—Prices Firm.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, said yesterday on the eve of his departure for a vacation in the Mediterranean that the demand for steel and steel products had exceeded all expectations. He expressed the belief that the European situation would be settled without serious harm to conditions here.

"I am naturally an optimist," said Judge Gary, "for I know what the total producing capacity of this country is compared with any and all other countries. If is great and growing larger, and there is and always will be a market for all that we can produce. However, I am not the kind of optimist that refuses to see the obvious dangers or difficulties in the way of uninterrupted prosperity.

"The unfavorable situation in France and Germany and in other foreign countries looms large at present but there are reasons to believe that these problems will be settled without serious damage to the financial and economic conditions of the United States. Certainly if the Congress of the United States will permit the Chief Executive to practically apply the policies which he has outlined, our country at least, and probably others, will soon emerge from the clouds and storms which are conspicuous abroad.

"The present demand for steel products in the United States and in many of the foreign nations is remarkable. It exceeds the expectations of the most sanguine a year ago. The ability to fully supply this demand is not sufficient. It is doubtful if it could be fully covered if the supply of labor was sufficient to keep production up to manufacturing capacity. Demand for domestic uses and purposes of export are equally good. Bookings on hand are unusually large, payments are prompt, prices are firm and if nothing unexpected and unnecessary happens there is no reason to suppose there will be a let-up in our business for several months, to say the least.

"We should proceed with caution, but with courage and confidence. As I have said before, the United States is all right. We have only to take advantage of our opportunities. Have we sense enough to do this? That is the question."

Texas Co. in Western Territory.

The Texas Company has organized a Western sales department, headquarters at Denver, with facilities for marketing its products in the newly opened territory. This move completes the program to build up a nation-wide organization. Fred W. Freeman has been named general manager of the new department, and H. W. Dodge sales manager.

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Trading was quiet on the Stock Exchange today. Gilt-edged securities and oil shares opened easier but recovered later. British industrials were dull. Old 2½ per cent. consols, ½ higher at 58%; British 5 per cent. war loan, 100%; 4½ per cent. war loan, 96, both unchanged.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Prices moved irregularly on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 30 centimes higher at 58 francs 10 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan, 25 centimes higher at 74 francs 10 centimes.

Exchange on London 2 francs higher at 74 francs 50 centimes per sovereign. American dollars were quoted at 15 francs 08 centimes, against 15 francs 62 centimes Saturday.

Cities Service Co. Calls Bonds.

In accordance with the authorization of Directors of Cities Service Company for the retirement of $10,000,000 of its debenture bonds the company yesterday called $666,000 additional of its 7 per cent. convertible gold debentures Series B and asked for tenders on $500,000 principal amount of its 8 per cent. convertible gold debentures Series E.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

The foreign exchange market, which to some extent has proved the most accurate barometer of conditions abroad, was more or less unsettled yesterday because of the fresh Near Eastern possibilities and the further tightening by France of her grip on the Ruhr Valley. The London market was particularly sensitive to these developments yesterday morning, before our opening, and there was a measure of pressure against most of the exchanges and they could not maintain the high prices in many cases the highest of the year, which were established on Saturday. Sterling, for instance, at its low point of the day, sold at $4.67 as compared with $4.68⅛, Saturday's last price. However, there was a rally near the close, which brought it back to within a fraction of that figure. Francs sold down yesterday to 6.23¼ cents, lire to 4.81½ cents and Belgian francs to around 5.60 cents, but there were some sharp recoveries near the close from these low points. The mark was under pressure and closed at the day's lowest price, .0024 cent.

Trading was not on a particularly heavy scale yesterday and dealers and international bankers here say that it has every appearance of being on the verge of slipping into a trading area until, at least, the possibilities of the present situation have been exhausted. Commercial bills for wheat and cotton are in the market in heavier volume than at this time last week, adding to the pressure against the market as a whole.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

BUSINESS The Company is one of the largest in the paper and roofing industries in the United States. For more than 50 years The Richardson Company and its predecessors, the Halderman Paper Company and the Richardson Paper Company, have operated paper mills at Lockland, Ohio, and now operate a roofing factory at Melrose Park, Ill., a suburb of Chicago; a slate quarry at Fairmount, Ga.; a felt mill and roofing plant at New Orleans, La. Three of the present executive officers are grandsons of the founder of the business.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The proceeds of the Notes to be issued are to reimburse the Company for recent expenditures made in the development of the Melrose Park, Ill.; New Orleans, La.; and Fairmount, Ga., plants.

SECURITY These Notes are to be direct obligations of the Company, and, upon completion of the financing, will constitute its only funded debt. The Company will have no bank indebtedness and all that it will owe will be the current monthly bills.

The Notes are to be issued under a Trust Agreement which will provide that the Company shall not mortgage or pledge any of its properties unless these Notes be secured by a lien thereon on a parity with that of any obligations secured by such mortgage or pledge; provided, however, that this shall not prevent the acquisition of property subject to existing or the creation of purchase money mortgages not exceeding 75% of the cost of the property so acquired.

The Company will also covenant that, so long as these Notes are outstanding, the total obligations of the Company and subsidiaries, direct or contingent, shall not exceed 30% of their total assets, and that net quick assets will be maintained to at least 125% of the total amount of these Notes outstanding, all as defined in the Trust Agreement.

FINANCIAL During the past 10 years the capacity of the plant has increased more than double, so that the average earnings set forth below are based partly on present capacity and partly on much reduced earning capacity. During the past 10 years the books as audited by Messrs. Gano & Cherrington, certified public accountants, show annual earnings available for interest and sinking fund on these Notes averaged $365,044.89—this is more than 3 times the total annual interest requirements on the entire amount of Notes outstanding, and over 4.8 times the largest amount required for the combined interest and sinking fund in any one year. The average annual earnings for past five years are $456,149.85, or 10 times interest and 6 times interest and sinking fund requirements of the largest amount in any one year.

The balance sheet on January 1, 1923, after giving effect to this financing, shows Net Tangible Assets (before deducting this Note issue), of $5,660,514.69, or more than 7 times the amount of these Notes. Net Current Assets amounted to $1,891,749.18, or over 2½ times the amount of this Note issue.

We are offering these Notes when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to approval of counsel, for subscription, subject to allotment.

Price 99 and accrued interest to yield 6.10%

All legal details will be passed upon for the Bankers by Messrs. Ernst Cassatt & Cottle, of Cincinnati, and for the Company by Mr. Robert Ramsey, of New York, and Mr. Carl Lehmann, of Cincinnati.

It is expected that temporary Notes or interim receipts will be ready for delivery on or about February 15, 1923.

TORONTO BANK SHOWS $98,353,998 DEPOSITS

Total Resources of $130,064,364 Reported in Fifty-Second Annual Statement.

The fifty-second annual statement of the Dominion Bank of Toronto, Canada, announced here yesterday, shows total resources of $130,064,364, including quick assets of $57,044,781; commercial loans of $65,443,488, and Government and municipal securities, $12,704,012. Deposits total $98,353,998, while the bank's capital is $6,000,000, and the reserve fund and undivided profits, $7,999,637.

At the recent annual meeting of stockholders, held in Toronto, Clarence A. Bogert, general manager, urged the revision of the Canadian Bank act on the ground that since its passage four years ago some of the Provincial Governments had become actual competitors of the banks in obtaining deposits from the public. The average rate of taxation of banks by the Provincial Governments, he said, had increased 50 per cent. in the last four years, while municipal tax rates had increased from 50 per cent. to as high as 100 per cent. in some instances. Since 1913, he said, taxes on capital invested had increased from 1.39 per cent. to 6.20 per cent. and the aggregate taxation on net earnings of banks had increased from 5 per cent. to 27 per cent., as of 1922.

U.S. STEEL ADVANCES PRICES

Futher reflection of the firm demand for steel and steel products was seen yesterday in the announcement of price advances on certain classifications of steel products by the United States Steel Corporation. Merchant steel pipe has been marked up $4 a ton and line pipe and oil country goods $6 a ton, effective Feb. 5. This movement is in line with advances announced on Feb. 1 by the independents.

Middle States Oil Dividend Stands.

There will be no change in the dividend rate paid holders of the Middle States Oil Corporation's stock, President Sakiatvala said yesterday. The advance in oil prices brought about by the new method of computing prices on gravity bases has given the company enough revenue to more than cover dividend payments on the additional 579,533 shares of stock outstanding, Mr. Sakiatvala said.

THE WHY AND WHEN OF INCOME TAXES

NOT LIABLE TO LEVY

Employes Under Some Conditions Need Not Regard Room, Board and Clothing as Income.

Under certain conditions, living quarters, food, clothing, &c., provided for employes are not regarded as income for Federal income tax purposes, according to a statement from the Bureau of Internal Revenue, issued as one of a series on "Income Tax Facts."

"Where, for example, because of the location and nature of the work it is necessary that employes engaged in fishing, logging or canning be furnished board and lodging by their employer, such board and lodging are considered as contributed for the convenience of the employer," says the bureau. "Therefore, its value need not be included in computing the net income of the employe. The rule applies to board and lodging furnished seamen.

"The value of board and lodging furnished hospital employes is to be returned as income unless the employe is subject to duty at any time during the twenty-four hours of a day and therefore is required to accept quarters and meals at the hospital in addition to his regular compensation.

"The rental of a dwelling and appurtenances thereof furnished a minister of the gospel was exempted by the revenue act of 1921, and no longer needs to be included in gross income.

"Certain items, as shown on forms for making the returns, are specifically exempt from the income tax, such as proceeds of life insurance policies, amounts received through accident or health insurance, value of property acquired by gift, bequest, descent or devise, interest received on State and certain Federal bonds, amounts received as compensation, family allotments and allowances under the provisions of the War Risk Insurance and Vocational Rehabilitation acts, pensions for military or naval service in time of war, &c."

RAILROAD DEFICITS FRANCE'S PROBLEM

RECOVERING FROM THE WAR

Roads May Yet Become a Real Factor in Development of Intercontinental System.

The French railways—comprising seven systems and covering an area about equal to that of our five industrial States between New York and Chicago—were laid out in the beginning chiefly for military strategy rather than for commercial necessity, according to Edward Hungerford, writer on transportation problems, who has just returned from an extended tour of France. That railways came very slowly in France, it is pointed out, is shown by the fact that fourteen years after Great Britain had successfully developed the steam locomotive, and after our own New England was beginning to be gridironed with railroads, there still were no steel highways in France.

But when the French railways finally arrived, they came with a great sureness, says Mr. Hungerford in his report of transportation conditions in that country contained in the New York Central Lines Magazine. The military strategists of the France of that early day were the engineers who directed where the roads should be built, it is said, "with the result that a good many miles of line were laid down where there was no commercial necessity whatsoever for them, and eternal operating deficits so assured."

"To meet these the Government put its hands into its pockets and made good the deficits," Mr. Hungerford continues. "And it charged them mentally, at least, to military necessity. It did this in the beginning. It still is doing it. It probably will continue to do it indefinitely.

"This governmental program was first established in the days of the Second Empire. It was placed in its present definite form as long ago as 1883; in the shape of a guarantee from the State to the privately owned and operated systems of minimum dividends, as well as a protection against invasion by competition.

Large Sums Paid to Roads.

"In the thirty-five years that elapsed between the signing of the convention between the State and the privately owned railways and the beginning of the World War, hundreds of millions of francs were paid out by the French Treasury, to make the guaranteed interest and dividends of the companies. In all those years there were but four payments to the national exchequer of excess or shared profits; and these all told aggregated only a little more than 18,000,000 francs.

"When the war came several of these agreements were upon the point of expiration; the Government was about to come into its right to exercise its option to purchase the properties at their physical valuation. It did not exercise that right. Aside from the war, it had enough of a problem with one State railway, without having five more placed upon its fearfully overburdened shoulders. Instead, it temporized. It continued the guarantees from year to year until last year, when France, still having no stomach for further Government operation, extended the agreements of 1883 until expiration dates ranging from 1950 to 1960. Moreover, the Government guarantees now to advance needed capital from time to time for future extensions of the national rail structures; a feature which was quite lacking in the original agreements of 1883.

"The deficits still are appalling. For while a very large and a necessary increase in the payrolls of the companies was partly offset by sweeping increases in the rates between 1918 and 1920 (about fifty per cent. in the passenger rates and 115 per cent. in the freight), the great enlargement in actual forces, due to the rigid operation of the French Eight-Hour law, made a further fearful tax upon the national treasury.

Enormous Deficit.

"A working force of some 355,000 men and women was brought up to nearly half a million. And the railroads of France, in 1920, were thrust into an operating deficit of $382,500,000, which the State had to pay, in addition to another $219,000,000 to meet the guarantees of interest charges and of minimum dividends."

From the standpoint of operation Mr. Hungerford found, through his survey, the French railways have come back. Roughly speaking, the analysis showed the railways have increased their passenger services from 60 per cent. to 75 per cent. since Armistice Day, 1918, and the increase in freight services was in proportion. The passenger service now was put at about 70 per cent. of its prewar normals.

Analyzing the country's future transportation plans, the discussion points out:

"Electrification is but a start toward the elaboration of plans for the future of the French railways. Making them a real factor in the development of an intercontinental rail system that shall yet embrace not only Europe but a large part of Asia and of Africa is the large vision that today confronts the men who have their destinies in charge.

"American capital today stands ready and willing to thrust a standard-gauge railroad all the way across Spain from the Pyrenees to Gibraltar as soon as political conditions in that troubled monarchy settle down a bit."

FOREIGN PURCHASES OF GERMAN INDUSTRIALS

Banking Judgment on Such Investments While Mark Declines.

Foreign holders of German marks, according to a report published by Lloyd's Bank of London from its Hamburg banking correspondent, "are displaying an increasing inclination to put their holdings into German industrials as a protection against further depreciation. Many of them have also invested in debenture bonds of the great German industrial undertakings which, therefore, stand far above par—in some cases as high as 800 per cent. As practically all companies have the right to call in these debentures and to repay them at par, foreigners cannot be too strongly warned to avoid purchasing securities of this class at the fancy prices at present ruling.

"The psychology of the foreigners who purchase German is at 1,400 is also difficult to understand. The Imperial 2½ per cent. at 315, 3 per cent. at 620 and 5 per cent. at 90 are equally well secured, while Prussians 3s at 800 and 3½ per cents. at 150 enjoy the guarantees of the imperial loans plus the probably more valuable guarantee of Prussia, which still owns railways, mines and forests. In the event of a mark improvement, the foreign buyer of German currency would fare considerably better by holding notes, treasury bills or bank deposits instead of paper purchased at up to fourteen times its face value and redeemable at par, while in the event of a further mark fall the rise of Government securities is in no way commensurate to the mark depreciation.

"In view of the existing uncertainty as to the immediate political future, and the contradictory rumors circulating in the press both in Germany and abroad, both bankers and merchants are at present limiting their commitments as far as possible. In some staple lines, such as steel and iron, home prices are now above foreign prices, and manufacturers find themselves obliged to quote lower prices for export than for the protected home market. Hamburg exporters say that trade is becoming more difficult, while the importers are asking for and apparently finding more foreign credit."

Denmark Protects Depositors.

The National City Bank announced yesterday that the Danish Parliament had passed an act whereby all deposits and liabilities of the Danske Landmandsbank, the largest commercial bank of Copenhagen, would be guaranteed by the Government until April 1, 1926. The bank has suffered considerable loss through recent transactions, it was explained. The National City Bank is one of the correspondents of the Danske Landmandsbank.

8 BILLIONS INVESTED IN U. S. OIL INDUSTRY

DUE TO PIPE LINE CONTROL

Expansion of Petroleum Industry Keeping Pace With Development of the Automobile.

The petroleum industry of the United States represents a capital investment of approximately $8,000,000,000, thus placing it high in the ranks of American business enterprises. Of this total, about 40 per cent. is invested in the companies composing the Standard Oil group and 60 per cent. is invested in the independent companies. Although the balance is in favor of the independents, figures have been presented at the investigation into the industry now being carried on at Washington, showing that the Standard Oil group continues to hold the dominating position. This, it is stated, is because the Standard companies control the larger part of the pipe line facilities.

It has been pointed out that with only 40 per cent. of the total invested capital, the Standard companies refine 45 per cent. of the crude oil produced, and control 65 per cent. of the domestic marketing facilities and 75 per cent. of the foreign marketing business. It is further stated that while the Standard group controls only 23 per cent. of the oil produced in the United States, this is counterbalanced by owning 60 per cent. of the country's pipe line capacity.

The position of the Standard Oil companies with relation to the many independent companies, as shown at the Senate investigation, is presented in the following tables, the figures being based upon the holdings of crude oil and petroleum products on June 1, 1922:

STANDARD OIL GROUP.

	Total.	P.C.
Crude oil, barrels.....	164,660,561	58.8
Gasoline, gallons.....	648,266,104	75.7
Kerosene, gallons.....	729,531,104	72.0

	Total.	P.C.
Crude oil, barrels.....	115,666,970	41.8
Gasoline, gallons.....	208,240,224	24.3
Kerosene, gallons.....	80,159,767	28.0

Regarding the $8,000,000,000 investment in the oil companies operating in the United States, it is pointed out that part of the investment in the Standard companies represents capital put into them for operations in foreign countries. The Standard Oil of New Jersey, the Standard Oil of New York, and Standard of California, either directly or through subsidiary companies, carry on extensive operations in foreign countries. The relation between the growth in the automobile industry of the United States and the expansion of the oil industry is summed up graphically in the following table which is given in a booklet on the Standard Oil companies just published by O. M. Fernbaker & Co., specialists in Standard Oil securities:

	Registered Automobiles in United States	Refinery Production of Gasoline (Gallons)	Crude Oil Production (Barrels)
1914	1,258,000	*[illegible]	*[illegible]
1915	1,745,000	*[illegible]	*[illegible]
1916	2,332,000	*[illegible]	*[illegible]
1917	3,426,000	*[illegible]	*[illegible]
1918	4,800,000	*[illegible]	*[illegible]
1919	6,146,923	*[illegible]	*[illegible]
1920	8,131,521	*[illegible]	*[illegible]
1921	10,463,375	4,200,000,000	443,351,764

*Not available.

The increase in registered automobiles in the last nine years is shown to be 10,146,125 cars, or approximately 907 per cent. In the same period the production increased 4,057,187,813 gallons, or 966 per cent. while crude oil production increased only 331,351,764 barrels, or 69 per cent.

The booklet points out that the United States is steadily becoming more dependent upon the oil production of foreign countries to meet the demand at home. Figures are given in the following table to show that despite the increase in domestic production there has been a steady increase in imports from other countries:

	Consumption Domestic (Bbls. 42 Gals.)	Production Domestic (Bbls. 42 Gals.)	Imports
1921	472,000,000	472,183,000	109,817,000
1920	442,000,000	443,000,000	108,000,000
1919	378,000,000	378,865,000	100,135,000
1918	355,000,000	355,865,000	84,135,000
1917	335,000,000	335,865,000	84,135,000
1916	318,500,000	300,167,188	20,965,000

*Ten months.

"At the outset of 1923, domestic production of crude oil is temporarily in excess of domestic requirements," it is said, "having reached a daily average in excess of 1,600,000 barrels. This is largely due to the development of prolific fields in California, where output is 125,000 barrels a day in excess of what it was at the outset of 1922. The light oil fields of the mid-continent, which gave a high record yield in 1922, are now showing a slight decline. In the last quarter of 1922, light oil in the mid-continent showed a decline for the first time in eighteen months.

"James E. O'Neill, President of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, and C. Donnell, President of the Ohio Oil Company, declared recently that light oil production in this country has reached its peak and that we will have to draw on foreign fields to supplement domestic production.

"Much comment has been made over the fact that the industry enters 1923 with the largest inventories of raw material and refined products ever recorded. These are facts as regards volume, but these inventories are none too large in relation to expanded consumptive needs. For instance, in May, 1922, when gasoline reserves were at their peak, the reserve gallonage per car was less than at any time in five years, with the exception of 1920. While reserves of crude material has risen to 276,000,000 barrels, the greater proportion of this is heavy oil, which the mounting consumption of liquid fuel soon will take care of. The output of light fluid grade oil actually appears to be falling behind the demand which is reflected in the recent general price advances in the lighter grades of oil produced east of the Rocky Mountains."

GRAIN EXPORTS LARGE.

Decrease in Flour and Corn Offset by Heavy Increase in Wheat.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Grain exports from the United States last week totalled 6,734,000 bushels, as compared with 8,154,000 bushels for the week preceding. Exports of flour and of corn showed a decrease due to a heavy drop in shipments to the United Kingdom and other European countries; Most of the net increase was made up by mounting shipments of wheat to Italy and other European countries and of barley to the United Kingdom.

The totals for the past week, as compared with those for the week previous, as made public by the Commerce Department were

Wheat 3,879,000 bushels, against 2,369,000 bushels; corn 1,623,000 bushels, against 2,260,000 bushels; barley 330,000 bushels, against 80,000 bushels; rye 1,159,000 bushels, against 1,879,000 bushels; oats 24,000 bushels against 28,000 bushels; flour 330,200 barrels, against 381,000 barrels.

Canadian grain in transit amounted to 2,560,000 bushels last week, compared to 4,548,000 bushels the week previous and flour in transit last week totalled 117,400 barrels, compared to 111,700 barrels the week previous.

Shipments of the three principal commodities last week compare as follows with previous weekly reports by the Department this year:

	Wheat.	Flour.	Corn.
Feb. 3	3,879,000	330,200	1,623,000
Jan. 27	2,369,000	381,000	2,260,000
Jan. 20	2,903,000	343,000	2,146,000
Jan. 13	3,532,000	376,800	1,421,000

The compensation amounted to 5 per cent. of employes' earnings for the six months ended Dec. 31, and of the total sum the Schenectady works received approximately $400,000, the compensation having been paid in General Electric Company 7 per cent. employes' investment bonds in $10 units and in cash.

GREAT BRITAIN'S TRADE IN GOLD DURING 1922

Importations from all other countries were considerably less than £100,000.

Exports of gold were made during the year to more than twelve separate countries. Out of the total shipments of £44,501,617, the United States took £20,082,645; British India, £10,040,024; France, £3,400,000; the Straits Settlements, £681,320, and Switzerland, £339,000.

JANUARY BOND ISSUES.

The output of long term bonds in January by States and municipalities reached the sum of $86,146,247, the largest total on record for any January, according to a survey issued yesterday by The Daily Bond Buyer. A single offering of $20,000,000 by the City of Detroit, a $16,500,000 State of North Caroline issue, and $8,000,000 City of Rochester, N. Y., bonds, accounted for a considerable portion of the month's flotations.

The following record compiled by The Daily Bond Buyer shows the amount of State and municipal financing in January for ten years and total sales by years since 1914:

	January Record.	Yearly Record.
1923	$86,146,247

To Build Large Refinery.

Funds which the Producers and Refiners Corporation will derive from the 100,000 shares of stock offered to holders for subscription at $50 a share are to be utilized in meeting the expense of building a large refinery at Greenville, Wyo., and to complete the 155 miles of pipe line to the Salt Creek field. Frank E. Kistler, Chairman of the board, outlined these plans in a letter sent to stockholders yesterday.

COMMODITY PRICES.

The recent strength in the steel and iron market found reflection in a new high price for steel billets at Pittsburgh in yesterday's cash markets, the quotation of $38.50 per ton being an advance of $3 over the level which has remained unchanged since Dec. 26 last. Dairy values retraced some lost ground, butter regaining ¼ cent and eggs 1 cent. Improved prices were also found in oats and lard, with slight recessions in cotton and tin. Other staples ruled firm and unchanged.

Note: The Shawinigan Water & Power Company owns the majority of the capital stock issued

These Bonds will be offered simultaneously in New York, Montreal and Paris; and at about the same time there will be offered in London the £200,000 of 6½% Debenture Stock.

From information supplied us by the Company we summarize as follows:

Business: The St. Maurice Power Company, Limited, incorporated under the Companies Act, Canada, has been formed for the purpose of developing the water power formed by the Gres Falls, Gabelle and Forges Rapids on the St. Maurice River, about six miles below Shawinigan Falls, Province of Quebec.

To this end a plant of 120,000 horse-power installed capacity will be immediately constructed. It will operate under a head of 60 feet and will have an ultimate capacity of over 150,000 horse-power.

Security: These Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on all the properties of the Company, including the new hydro-electric plant, land, water powers, dam and transmission lines. The Gres Falls property is owned under absolute title; the Gabelle and Forges Rapids power is leased from the Province of Quebec for a term of 99 years from 1916. Owing to the favorable natural conditions, this development can be built at an extremely low cost and will be bonded for only about $83 per horse-power on the initial installation of 120,000 horse-power.

Earnings: The Shawinigan Water & Power Company, under contract, agrees that for forty years from the first date of delivery it will purchase power available from the proposed development on terms that will yield the company sufficient net income to pay all operating expenses and taxes, as well as interest and sinking fund requirements on these Bonds outstanding. When the installed capacity of the hydro-electric plant is absorbed as provided in the contract net earnings will, it is estimated, be in excess of twice interest charges on these Bonds.

The Shawinigan Company, which controls one of the most complete and extensive groups of hydro-electric developments in the world, has an impressive earnings record:

Year Ended Dec. 31	Gross Earnings	Net Earnings	Interest Charges	Balance

The Shawinigan Water & Power Co. owns or controls on the St. Maurice River water powers of a capacity of 643,700 horse-power (including this development), of which 373,000 is now in use. It also owns about 900 miles of high tension transmission lines, and serves with electricity a total population of about 1,500,000, including the cities of Montreal and Quebec and a well diversified industrial district. The Company's history has been one of consistent progress, sales of electricity in 1922 being 550% greater than in 1911.

Equity: As the rights and properties acquired by the Company in connection with the proposed development have been paid for to a considerable extent by the issue of the Company's common shares, there is a substantial equity behind these First Mortgage Bonds.

Sinking Fund: There will be a Sinking Fund of $50,000 per annum from February 1st, 1930 to 1934; $75,000 per annum from February 1st, 1935 to 1939, and $100,000 per annum thereafter to maturity.

We offer these Bonds when, as and if issued and received by us. All legal details in connection with this issue will be approved by Messrs. Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, New York, and by Messrs. Lafleur, MacDougall, Macfarlane & Barclay, Montreal.

RAILROAD STOCKS GAINING IN FAVOR

SMALL HOLDERS INCREASE

Less Apprehension in Brokerage and Banking Circles Over the Possibility of Hostile Legislation.

The noticeable drift of speculative and investment buying into the railroad stocks, which began on Jan. 17 and has gained momentum with the current publication of earnings reports of the carriers for December last, and for the full year, has been predicated largely upon a change in public sentiment, according to students of the security markets. They have sent out feelers in different sections of the country with a view to finding how the ground lay in a political way before taking a position on either the long or the short side of railroad stocks.

An incident reported in Wall Street a few days ago illustrates this change in public sentiment. A dispatch from Charleston, S. C., described the efforts of a small town to have its lone railroad build a new station. Civic pride demanded it. The railroad's officials were unable to vote the expenditure and explained the reasons why to the Town Council, which thereafter floated a loan for the community and with the proceeds built its own station without any assistance from the carrier company.

A case of somewhat similar nature has been reported in the rapidly growing city of Twin Falls, Idaho, where the city's Chamber of Commerce recently offered a prize of $100,000 to go to the first railroad company which would build a short line connecting that part of Idaho with the Pacific Coast, preferably San Francisco. The present route of shipments to the coast from Twin Falls is via a circuitous route.

Not many years ago, railroad officials pointed out, such incidents would have been impossible. At that time the popular cry was to tax the railroads out of existence—a practice which still has many adherents in Congress, but which is beginning to wane, one important reason being the greatly increased number of holders of railroad securities.

Many Small Holders.

Before the war a majority of the various companies' stocks and bonds were locked up in vaults of trust companies, banks and the like, but today these and new securities have found their way into the homes of many thousands of persons of comparatively limited means.

There is less apprehension in brokerage and banking circles over the possibility of hostile legislation in the next session of Congress than there was following the November elections, when a number of Senators and Congressmen were elected on platforms which were generally classed as "radical."

The railroads also appear by now to have composed their labor difficulties satisfactorily. Full cost of the 1922 strike of shopmen, combined as it was with the strike of coal miners, has not been appraised, but it is conservatively estimated that the difficulty caused a falling off for the year of more than $250,000,000 in net earnings. As it was the roads were able to report for 1922, according to estimates based on preliminary reports, net revenues totaling $725,000,000 to $750,000,000, and hope has been expressed that this figure will be $1,000,000,000 or more for 1923.

The current year has started auspiciously. Statements for the full month of January have not yet been compiled, but traffic is running at or around record levels for this season of the year, the total of revenue car loadings for the first three weeks of January having been 3,503,122 cars, against 3,044,733 for the corresponding period of 1921 and against 3,118,154 in 1920. Loadings of forest products, coal and coke and merchandise and miscellaneous freight ran considerably above the 1921 and 1920 figures. A relatively large volume of business is also going over the railroads in the form of ore shipments, particularly from the intermountain mining section of Montana, Arizona and Utah, where the copper mining industry has revived.

Orders for Equipment.

The best evidence of what the railroads expect to do during 1923 is supplied in orders for equipment for delivery during 1923. Virtually all the larger lines have contracted with locomotive and car building companies for sizable deliveries. To meet this and other expenses, the railroads during 1922 raised $523,807,780 through the sale of preferred stocks and bonds. Of the total, 90 per cent., or $466,839,680 was the amount added to funded debt, while 4 per cent., or $26,968,100 was raised by the sale of preferred stock. Another factor which contributes to the current buying movement is the comparison of gains made by industrials and railroads from their low levels of last November. The railroad securities held practically at the same figure, bulges having been confined to fractions, while the industrials ran up as a class from 4 to 10 points. Thus, it appeared that the rails were at or around their low levels, at which point they were held because of the poor October and November earnings reports, and had not figured in the general market advance. Since Jan. 17, when the upward movement of railroad security prices began, they moved up more than three points as a group based on the average price of twenty-five representative stocks. Thereafter, there was a mild reaction, with, however, recoveries displaying far greater sharpness than reactions.

This advance has been shared by both the standard dividend payers and the lower-priced stocks of an especially strong speculative appeal. Movements in the seasoned stocks have been slower than in the lower-priced securities, the latter having had an additional stimulus in the form of speculation over possible new groupings of systems under the plans of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The upward movement in the market averages, however, has been accomplished through the more general and gradual appreciation in the values of the twenty-five representative carrier securities.

GASOLINE UP CENT A GALLON

Increase in Tank Wagon Price Announced by Large Oil Companies.

The tank wagon price of gasoline has been generally increased one cent a gallon throughout the country by the large oil companies. The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has advanced its tank wagon price of gasoline one cent a gallon throughout its domestic territory, and at the same time has reduced kerosene one-half cent a gallon. In the Chicago territory, the Standard Oil of Indiana has advanced the tank wagon price of gasoline one cent a gallon throughout its territory, except in North Dakota, where the price is 19 cents a gallon, and the filling station price is 21 cents. Other products are unaffected.

The Texas Company and the Sinclair Company will meet the Standard Oil of Indiana's new prices on gasoline.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company has increased crude oil prices 10 cents a barrel in the Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas fields as of Feb. 3. This follows the advance of Prairie Oil and Gas Company, the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company and the Texas Company.

COTTON DIPS LOWER BUT THEN RECOVERS

Stronger Markets Here Offset Depression Originating Abroad —Orders Concentrate on May.

Cotton reflected unsettling European events with a 40-point reaction during the morning, but recovered virtually all this loss before the close. At one time selling assumed substantial proportions, but seemed to come mainly from a few sources. The moment these orders had been executed a sharp improvement followed, during which May became the market leader. Most important feature of the day was the evident scarcity of contracts disclosed in afternoon trading, with attention centred on the May position. Instead of orders being quite evenly distributed, operations seemed almost wholly in May contracts, forcing that month a full three cents above October. Final prices showed a loss of 4 to 14 points.

Foreign news had a disturbing influence on sentiment both abroad and here, reversing operations in progress at the close of last week. Instead of advancing about half a cent as was due, Liverpool gained only moderately, and shortly after the local opening stood less than 10 American points above Friday's figures. This brought about commission house realizing, a great deal of cotton replaced during the recent cent advance coming back on the market. Execution of over-Sunday selling orders started May below 28 cents, when room operators took advantage of this 30-point setback to obtain contracts. Prices were rushed up quarter of a cent immediately following the opening, only to encounter cotton from both local and Western sources. Up to midday one broker was estimated to have distributed over 25,000 bales, which ran May below 27.85, half a cent from high prices of Saturday's. Low temperatures in Western portions of the cotton belt produced most favorable Winter conditions of the season. The thermometer at Oklahoma City registered 20 degrees and at Abilene 18 degrees. This represented coldest weather so far, holding out hope of damage to insect life. At the same time heavy rains were reported in Alabama and Georgia.

A stronger stock market and lessening liquidation started a sharp recovery during afternoon trading. May became the centre of an active buying movement, more by professional than outside interests. For the first time this season, conditions surrounding trading in that position indicated growing congestion. July lagged, gaining only after May had been advanced sharply. The same applied to March. May stood out from the rest of the list, with an evident lack of selling pressure. As the season advances, contracts become fewer as each week finds a diminished supply of actual cotton and attendant withdrawal of hedges from the market. Whenever a general buying movement occurs, contracts are taken from the ring, so that the main source of supply has to be derived from reselling of cotoin previously purchased. As May worked above 28 cents, following the morning's slump, highest prices of the session were reached the last hour. Orders appeared to be concentrated in the May position, focusing interest upon developments there, to the exclusion of other months on the list. May advanced 55 points over July and 300 points over October. Closing buying orders, both foreign and domestic, held the list in closing dealings, May selling only 4 points from Saturday's figures.

Sales at Southern markets aggregated only 5,000 bales yesterday. Total sales at principal points last week amounted to less than 50,000 bales, compared with 112,000 bales two weeks previously.

ALL DELIVERIES GAIN IN THE WHEAT 'PIT'

Sharp Rises Carry the May to $1.20 and the Futures Near to Highest on the Crops.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Bullish sentiment predominated in wheat and, with prospects of trouble in the Near East, further bills in Congress to help farmers and no material pressure, values moved up rapidly and the close was at the top with net gains of 1¼@1⅝ cents, May leading. While there was buying here against sales at Winnipeg, the difference between the two markets failed to widen.

A majority of the local traders were on the buying side today and there was much less pressure than expected. May at the close was up to $1.20 or 4⅝ cents over the low of a week ago and was at the best price since Jan. 19. Deferred deliveries acted tight, with persistent commission house buying and the September at the last was within ⅛ of the highest figure on the crop and July within 2⅜ cents.

Liverpool gained 1¼@1⅝ cents, shorts covering freely there in the face of world shipments of 15,962,000 bushels or 2,800,000 bushels larger than anticipated and an increase of 3,552,000 bushels in supplies on ocean passage.

The visible supply statement was not posted on account of wire trouble with New Orleans. With the latter poin and Chicago to come, wheat showed an increase of 1,623,000 bushels and corn of 1,330,000 bushels.

Chicago Public Elevator stocks decreased 469,000 bushels of corn and 63,000 of wheat, but the private elevator holdings were not available.

No improvement was shown in the export demand, with basis from Europe 3@4 cents out of line, and it was claimed that Germany and Greece had both bought wheat in Argentine.

A private estimate suggests a world's carryover of 250,000,000 bushels at the end of the season—26,000,000 bushels in excess of Broomhall's latest figures.

All deliveries of corn sold at new highs for the season and closed at the top. The strength in wheat and the generally bullish domestic situation were the main influences, and profit taking and hedging sales were readily absorbed. It is estimated that sales of corn to arrive today aggregating 500,000 bushels. The bulge permitted 60 cents or better to be paid at loading stations in parts of Iowa.

Further mention is being made regarding small farm reserves to be shown by the Government March 1 report. Net gains for the day were 1@1⅛ cents.

Oats were up ⅝@1⅛ cents with September in new ground and July selling at equal to the cutsid figure of the season. The May-July oats spread narrowed to 1⅝ cents at the last against 2 cents on Saturday.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,309,000 bushels; week ago, 1,938,000; last year, 1,388,000. Shipments were 410,000 bushels; week ago, 5,557,000; last year, 455,000.

Corn receipts were 1,101,000 bushels; week ago, 1,873,000; last year, 2,131,000, and shipments, 501,000 bushels; week ago, 861,000; last year, 1,527,000.

APARTMENT HOTEL TO COST $1,700,000

TO BE 15 STORIES HIGH

Fifteen-Story Apartment Project on West Side Financed by $600,000 Loan.

Another apartment hotel project in the Grand Central zone will be undertaken as a result of negotiations just completed, in which builders purchased the southeast corner of Forty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue. The property, which was the site of the old Gilford mansion, will be improved with a fifteen-story apartment hotel building at an estimated cost of about $1,700,000, including the building and cost of land.

The site fronts 100 feet on Lexington Avenue by 150 feet on Forty-sixth Street, and was sold by the Mandel-Khrich Corporation to Maier Holding Corporation, title having passed to the new owners yesterday. The sellers bought the property a year ago from Alexander M. Bing.

Apartments in the new structure will contain one and two room suites with bath and serving pantry for each apartment, according to Joseph Wilner Company, the brokers in the sale of the property, who will plan and build the structure.

Finance West Side Project.

Financing arrangements were completed yesterday for the immediate erection of a fifteen-story apartment building at 345 West Eighty-sixth Street, 150 feet east of Riverside Drive, by the 345 West Eighty-sixth Street, Inc., of which Abraham Bricken is President, Leo Schloss, Secretary and Isador Friedman is Treasurer.

S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten an issue of $600,000 first mortgage serial 6 per cent. coupon bonds secured by the land and building. Work on the structure will be started at once. Gronenberg & Leuchtag are the architects.

The building will be known as 345 West Eighty-sixth Street Apartment Building and will occupy a plot facing 70 feet on the north side of Eighty-sixth Street, with a depth of 100 feet 8½ inches. The facade will be face brick trimmed with limestone. There will be forty-five housekeeping apartments of five and six rooms. Immediately opposite are the Clarendon and Netherland Apartments.

BLENHEIM COURT RESOLD.

Blenheim Court, a six-story elevator apartment house on the northwest corner of 177th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, has been sold by Henry D. Greenwald to Frederick Brown, operator.

The property has a frontage of 94 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the street. The brokers in the transaction were James Barry and Joseph Fleming.

Three years ago Mr. Brown bought this house, and after holding it a few days sold it at what was regarded a big profit in 1920, to Henry D. Greenwald. The price paid by Mr. Brown not only repays the profit he obtained from Mr. Greenwald, but a lot of money in addition. The operator would not reveal the price.

Tenement House Deals.

James H. Cruikshank resold to a client of Harry Sugarman 124 West Eighty-fourth Street, a five-story single flat on plot 25 by 100, held at $36,000.

The estate of Frederick Knack sold the northwest corner of 159th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, a six-story apartment with stores, on a lot 49.11 by 80, to the Shutter Homes Company, owner of the adjoining building at 2,006-2,008 Amsterdam Avenue. Shutter Homes Company now controls a plot 99.11 by 80. J. A. Morris was the broker.

Dr. Joe Elias purchased through E. A. Polak Brokerage Co. and Koppel Bros., Inc., the two five-story tenement houses, 110 and 112 West 115th Street, on a plot 25 by 100 feet each.

Cleary & O'Connell have resold for David D. Glanz the five-story tenement with two stores at premises 1,845 First Avenue, to John B. Ricco. This is the third sale within one week. The property was held at $17,500.

Mulvihill & Co. have sold for Ruth P. Northup the five-story double flat house with stores, 303 East 125th Street, size 25 by 100, to a client.

Joseph Milmer Company, Inc., has sold for the Dormond Realty Company, Inc., to an investing client the five-story tenement known as 450 East Eighty-ninth Street, corner Avenue A.

Jourinare Silberman bought from Joseph Jacobs, 1,972 Lexington Avenue, a five-story tenement with stores, on lot 25 by 100. The property rents for $6,500 a year and was held at $35,000. L. P. Tolbert was the broker.

Christopher & Gilliam sold for Nat Tekulsky, builder, the house, 61 West Eighty-second Street, altered into apartments, on lot 19 by 102.2, to an investing client. The property was held at $50,000.

$350,000 Fifth Avenue Lease.

Herbert McLean Purdy & Co. have leased for the Union Carbide & Carbon Company and the Rogers Peet Company the entire seventh floor, containing over 17,000 square feet in the Rogers Peet Building, located at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-first Street, with an extension running through the block to 16 East Forty-second Street, to Finsilver, Still & Moss, who have been in their present location, 225 Fifth Avenue, for the past fourteen years. The lease is for a period of twelve years at an aggregate rental of $350,000. Horace S. Ely & Co. represented the Rogers Peet Company in the transaction.

Cross & Brown Company have leased to the Western Electric Company the entire ninth and tenth floors, comprising 36,000 square feet, in the new Ludwig Baumann Building at Eighth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. The space will be used by the Personnel Division for office and training school purposes. This division is at present located at 149 to 151 Fifth Avenue.

Purchased for Investment.

Henri Bendel, who last week purchased the twelve-story Astor Court Apartments, occupying the east block front of Broadway from Eighty-ninth to Ninetieth Street, will hold the property for investment. Nassoit & Lanning negotiated the sale. This is the second sale of the property since the first of the year.

BRIDGE CARS TIED UP.

Broken Wire Halts Traffic on Williamsburg Structure.

Surface car traffic in both directions was tied up for more than three and a half hours last night on the Williamsburg Bridge when an overhead wire near the Brooklyn end broke. Brooklyn lines affected by the tieup which occurred at 7:30 were the Vanderbilt Avenue, Tompkins Avenue, Graham Avenue, Lorimer Street, Ralph Avenue, Franklin Avenue, Broadway and Reid Avenue.

The majority of the cars were not crowded and the passengers for the most part remained in the unlighted cars until repairs were made. The B. R. T. pressed into service extra "L" trains to handle the traffic and transfers to surface cars in Brooklyn were issued. There was a heavy congestion of cars at the Delancey Street loop in Manhattan and Captain James J. MacKenzie of the Clinton Street station sent the reserves to handle the crowds.

BIG BROOKLYN PROJECTS.

Chanin Construction Company, Inc., purchased from the Grossman estate the entire plot consisting of twenty-five building lots, fronting 300 feet on Bay Parkway, 200 feet on Bath Avenue and 210 feet on Bay Twenty-ninth Street. This plot will be improved with an apartment house similar to the Theodore Roosevelt apartments, and will contain 180 families, being four stories in height, and will be known as the Abraham Lincoln apartments. Some of the features will be a modern restaurant, laundry, children's playground, &c. The estimated cost of the project will be about $1,000,000. The land was held at $125,000. Samuel Sperling was the broker in this transaction.

The same company also purchased from Seelig & Finkelstein and the Stanley Construction Company twelve lots, 240 by 100, on Fortieth Street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Avenues, thereby completing the ownership of the entire block. Six additional four-family houses will be built on these lots, making a total of thirty-one two and four family houses on the entire block, which when completed will accommodate ninety-eight families and will cost approximately $620,000. The lots were held at $226,000.

Chanin Construction Company purchased from the Morard Realty Company, on the north side of Eastern Parkway, 187 feet west of Franklin Avenue, a plot 60 feet by 192 feet running through from Eastern Parkway to Lincoln Place, which will immediately be improved with a modern forty-family apartment house to cost about $300,000. The plot was held at $45,000.

For the erection of a twelve-story apartment house, Morris Halperin has purchased from Max Blumberg the vacant plot 175 by 116 on the north side of Eastern Parkway, 25 feet east of Underhill Avenue. This apartment house will accommodate 175 families and will cost about $1,250,000.

BANK ENLARGES HOLDINGS.

The Citizens' Savings Institution Protects Its Light and Air.

To protect light and air the Citizens' Savings Bank, which is erecting a new $500,000 banking structure at the southwest corner of Bowery and Canal Street, has increased its holdings at that point by the purchase from Florence Fish and others of the old three-story building adjoining at 152-154 Canal Street, for a stated consideration of $70,000.

The property purchased consists of a plot 40.8 by 50 feet and gives the bank control of a site fronting 75 feet on the Bowery and 125.10 feet on Canal Street.

The new home of the bank is opposite the Manhattan Bridge plaza and is from plans by C. W. Fraser, architect. It is in Florentine Renaissance style of architecture.

The Bronx Market.

Meister Builders, Inc., purchased from Bessie Dere Corporation the southeast corner of Sherman Avenue and Academy Street, a one-story new taxpayer, on a plot 100 by 110, with eleven stores. This parcel has a rental of over $16,000, and was held at $125,000. I. L. Levin was the broker.

Meister Builders, Inc., have purchased from Ephrian Siff, 368 Claremont Parkway, between Washington and Park Avenues, a four and a half story brick building with stores on a plot 25 by 84. This building was purchased subject to a twenty-eight-year first mortgage. M. Rosenthal was the broker.

Isaac Lowenfeld and William Prager have purchased from Emil S. Levi, 1,230 and 1,234 Boston Road, near McKinley Square, two five-story new-law apartments, size 50 by 200, built 120 feet each, housing forty families, with a rental of $22,000 and which was held at $140,000. The brokers were Tropauer & Spero.

Negotiations are about to be closed for the sale to an operator, through Derschuch & Co., brokers, of the southeast corner of Jerome Avenue and Mount Hope Place, two three-story apartments with stores, 36 by 90, owned by Henry Boschen, and held at $40,000. The property is located one block north of the 176th Street station and is fully tenanted.

Suburban Buyers.

Thomas J. Good sold to the Countess Josephine de Casaa of Lucerne, Switzerland, the dwelling at 304 Nyac Avenue, Pelham Heights. The property was held at $25,000.

The Lewis H. May Company resold for Philip D. Scott a plot on the west side of Roanoke Avenue, running through to the east side of Nostrand Avenue, Far Rockaway, L. I., to the Gold Theatre Corporation, for improvement with a modern apartment building.

George C. Johnston sold for Becker & Muller a new one-family dwelling, 20 by 124, on the south side of Justice Street, near Chicago Avenue, Elmhurst, L. I., to Josephe Hilliard.

H. Frankfort sold for the Navahoe Realty Company (L'Ecluse Washburn Company) to the Schnurmacher Construction Company the two plots of ground known as Nos. 62 and 63 on the south side of Oak Street, between Central and Railroad Avenues, Woodmere, L. I.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING IS FATAL TO WOMAN

Boarder Cleared by Victim and Husband, Is Held in $3,000 on Manslaughter Charge.

Mrs. A. H. Reycraft, 27, died in the Monmouth Memorial Hospital at Long Branch, N. J., yesterday, from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted on Sunday by Michael Jansen, a boarder in her home at Atlantic Highlands. Jansen protested that the shooting was accidental, and his statement was supported by the woman and her husband, A. H. Reycraft, who was present at the shooting. The boarder was charged with manslaughter and released on $3,000 bail.

Jansen, who had given up his room at the Reycraft house on Saturday, returned on Sunday to get his luggage. Mrs. Reycraft was ill in bed. When Jansen entered the room and took his German automatic pistol from a bureau drawer, she became alarmed and begged him to put it away. Instead, he opened it and showed her that it appeared to be empty. Then he showed her husband, a cripple, whose leg was broken in rescuing a child from drowning last Summer, how the pistol worked. Jansen took out the magazine and put it back, thinking it was empty. There was an explosion and Mrs. Reycraft, who had been sitting up in bed, screamed and fell back with a wound in her abdomen.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Reycraft is survived by a boy, 5 years old, and a girl, 3.

NAB MONTGOMERY, HEADED FOR ORIENT

Financier of the Ponzi School Held in Los Angeles as $3,000,000 Swindler.

WAS IN FLIGHT FROM MEXICO

Intended to Live in the Far East, Says Assistant United States District Attorney McCoy.

Austin E. Montgomery, accused of stealing $3,000,000 from investors by a swindle resembling Ponzi's, was arrested in Los Angeles yesterday while en route from Mexico City to the Orient, where he intended to remain the rest of his life, according to telegrams received yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Peter J. McCoy.

Montgomery fled to Europe with $650,000 in cash last August when complaints from individuals on his "sucker list" caused an investigation of the affairs of the Community Finance Company at 1,482 Broadway, which Montgomery had organized and directed. He and his associates were later indicted upon evidence that they had simply stolen the money received from thousands of persons who thought they were investing it in a safe and tremendously profitable enterprise. Montgomery was traced by Post Office inspectors to various cities in Europe and then to Mexico City. He finally determined to make the Orient his future home and took the risk of crossing American territory on his way to catch a ship in San Francisco. He was being watched more closely than he supposed and was captured shortly after he had crossed the border.

For a time Montgomery is said to have made money faster than Ponzi by the intensive use of "sucker lists," which, according to Mr. McCoy, are easy to get. "There is a regular business done in them," said the Assistant United States District Attorney who continued: "Fresh names are added to the 'sucker' lists by men who make it a business to watch the Surrogate's Courts for news of wills, thus finding out persons who have newly come into money. They watch for verdicts in damage suits for the same purpose. They specialize, of course, in attempting to rob widows of their husband's estates, but they are after any person not used to handling money who has suddenly acquired a considerable amount of it in any way.

"Montgomery and his associates had a list of many thousands whom they flooded with clever literature. They found the largest number of victims in Baltimore and many others in Philadelphia, Wilmington and New York. His victims in New York were comparatively few, because the 'sucker list' has been worked so hard here that it has been exhausted, and also because their scheme involved working the stock market in New York City, and they could be more easily checked up here than elsewhere.

"They represented to their victims that they had agents on the floor of the Stock Exchange and methods of beating the market which infallibly resulted in enormous profits, and that a small investment in the Community Finance Company would produce returns varying from 5 to 20 per cent. a month.

"To attract victims and make the thing talked about among the victims and their families, they paid from 9 to 12 per cent. for several months, paying the interest out of the capital deposited with them. With this appearance of brisk returns, victims flocked to them by the thousands, and they soon accumulated huge sums of money.

"They did almost exclusively a mail order business. They represented that they had a magnificent suite of offices with direct connections with the market and they did not want investors to discover their misrepresentations. Montgomery kept a large amount of cash handy and was prepared to flee at the slightest alarm. As soon as complaints were made and an investigation started, he dropped out of sight. He was traced to Europe on the George Washington and then to Mexico City, where he was closely watched by the postal authorities. Recently information was received that he seemed to be preparing to leave Mexico.

"It was thought that he would probably cross the border, and a watch was kept at several places where it was thought likely that he would make his appearance. These precautions resulted in his capture. My information is that he had arranged to take his fortune in currency and securities to the Orient and make no further effort to live in the United States.

"His lawyers here had advised him to return to New York and stand trial. They had called here and tried to bargain about the amount of bail, but I did not feel that we ought to negotiate with them. After thinking it over, Montgomery apparently decided that it would be better not to go through with the trial."

14-YEAR SENTENCE FOR SLAYING WOMAN

Insanity Plea of Chauffeur, a War Veteran, Fails—Killed His Sweetheart.

James J. Corbett, 22, a chauffeur, who gave his address as 408 East 123d Street, yesterday was sentenced to Sing Sing prison for from seven to fourteen years on his plea of guilty in General Sessions to shooting and killing Mrs. Elsie Starace, 20, in the hallway of her mother's home at 112 East 112th Street on Nov. 23 last. He was indicted for murder in the first degree, but the Court accepted a plea of first degree manslaughter because of the absence of actual witnesses to the slaying.

Soon after Corbett's indictment, Judge Nott appointed a commission to inquire into his mental condition. His counsel, John V. Campbell Jr., contended that Corbett became mentally unbalanced while with the A. E. F. The commission reported that the slayer's mental condition was normal.

Before Judge Nott imposed sentence, Mr. Campbell reiterated his belief that the man was insane. He said that when Corbett was attached to a burial squad in France he carried the body of an American soldier about the battlefield for four days before he would bury it. Corbett told his superiors, the attorney said, that he couldn't bring himself to bury the body because he feared the soldier was alive.

He admitted that Army physicians had declared Corbett sane when he was discharged from the service, but added: "I was discharged from the army as physically fit by three physicians, yet a fourth physician found that I was suffering from nervous depression, which, if permitted to progress, would have resulted in insanity. I am convinced that Corbett was suffering from nervous depression, which caused him to commit this rash act."

When he was arrested Corbett said that he shot Mrs. Starace because she had broken her engagement to him a few days before and married another.

TRAILED HUSBAND, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Mildred E. Smith, Wife of Insurance Man, Asks Divorce.

Mrs. Mildred E. Smith of 1,026 Walton Avenue, the Bronx, appeared yesterday in Special Term of the Bronx Supreme Court before Justice Francis Martin, seeking a divorce from Harvey J. Smith, a member of the New York Athletic Club. He is in the insurance business at 50 Union Square West. The couple were married on May 15, 1914, and have one child, Irene, 8 years old.

Mrs. Smith testified that on the night of Oct. 9 last she and three detectives went to a house in Davidson Avenue, the Bronx, and there found her husband with another woman. Justice Martin reserved decision.

EMERALITE
The National Desk Lamp

KIND TO THE EYES

What Are Your Eyes Worth?

EYES are priceless and worth everything you can do for their preservation.

Most people do not realize the importance of a suitable desk light and abuse their eyes by working with a light that fatigues them. As the sight becomes weaker they seek stronger light which frequently causes permanent impairment of vision.

A correct working light is more a question of quality than strength. Daylight is best because Nature made it right for eyes.

You cannot buy eyesight but you can insure it with an Emeralite. Treat your eyes to the light they like.

Emeralites are those practical good looking lamps with Emerald Green shades that you see in the best offices everywhere. They are worth many times their cost for their attractive appearance and sight-saving service.

Better light means better eyes—better work

Genuine Emeralites are branded—look for the name on Green Glass Shade. It is your guarantee of satisfaction. Ask for Daylight Attachment—no other Desk Lamp has this.

Sold by Office Supply and Electrical Dealers. Complete Catalog showing over 50 patterns upon request.
